FINANCING JOB IS PROBLEM OF NEW CONGRESS

U. S. Ledger Getting Farther in Red.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam's national government ledger is in the red—in fact, getting redder and redder and how to get it back into the black of a balanced budget is going to be the great problem before the 72d congress.

REP. J. M. BECK. [Harris & Ewing.]

The new congress will meet for the first time on Dec. 7 unless summoned earlier by the President, and will be confronted at once with a multitude of proposals of increased expenditures to alleviate the business depression and unemployment, a multitude of schemes to raise more revenue by increased taxation and numerous demands for a reduction of expenditures by lopping off nonessential and wasteful activities of the central government.

Party leaders are drifting back to Washington already with more or less matured views of the course the administration and congress should take in meeting the most critical peace time situation that has developed in this country for a generation or more.

Sees Warning in Britain.

Representative James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.] came in today after a trip to Europe on which he was deeply impressed with the plight of Great Britain, which he attributed to "excessive taxation for socialistic purposes," and with the grave danger of the United States following the same road. Just as British statesmen are trying to save their country from ruin by a coalition government, Mr. Beck proposes a Republican and Democratic coalition leadership of the new congress for the purpose of abolishing "unnecessary and meddlesome bureaus" and effecting other economies. One phase of the coalition he suggested would be the election of a non-partisan speaker of the evenly divided house.

Mr. Beck estimates that not less than two billions of dollars annually could be saved by temporarily suspending sinking fund requirements and by scrapping such governmental machinery as the farm board, numerous bureaus of the departments of agriculture, commerce and labor and various commissions consecrated to paternalistic care of the citizenry in their occupations and in their homes.

Wants Wine, Beer Legalized.

The Pennsylvania congressman declared against any additional kind of taxes except one. He would have congress pronounce light wines and beer nonintoxicating in fact, which he says can be done constitutionally, and then impose an excise tax on such beverages, which he estimates would bring in half a billion dollars of revenue annually.

Unless there should be a speedy turn for the better in the business situation congress will face the probability that the treasury deficit for the fiscal year ending June 30 next will touch a billion and a half dollars on top of a nine hundred million deficit in the last fiscal year, which added six hundred millions to the national debt. The deficit for this fiscal year is executing that for the previous year at a rate indicating that it will be more than fifty per cent greater.

Leaders Look to Hoover.

A good many Republican legislators are looking to President Hoover for leadership in this crisis. But none has any more definite idea of what the President is going to do than the President himself. The only certainty is that he contemplates no drastic curtailment of government expenses, such as Congressman Beck suggests and no material reduction of expenditures except possibly on the army and navy.

Whether he will continue to meet the deficit by government bond issues or will propose additional taxes to balance the budget Mr. Hoover does not know. Just now he is like Micawber, waiting for something to turn up in the way of a sufficient improvement in business to promise increased revenue from income and corporation taxes and customs.

ALFALFA BILL FIXES GALLUSES AND WADES IN

He Hopes to Serve Common Folks.

William H. [Alfalfa Bill] Murray, fiery governor of Oklahoma, stepped from a Pullman in the Union station yesterday afternoon, hooked up his suspenders and proclaimed as his battle cry: "Bread and Butter, Bacon and Beans." Murray refers to himself "as the greatest fighter for the common people since Andrew Jackson," and his friends expect him to figure in the Presidential election next year, although he modestly affirmed he has no ambition except "to serve and accomplish things."

"Alfalfa Bill" is in Chicago to speak at the Labor day mass meeting in Soldiers' field this afternoon. He was met by a delegation headed by Congressman Frank R. Reid of Aurora; Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor; Ald. Oscar F. Nelson, vice president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and City Greeter George D. Gaw.

Galluses Unbuttoned for Comfort.

Handshakes were postponed until the governor had adjusted his galluses. He apologized with, "I unbuttoned them to be more comfortable on the train." In his progress along the ramp he shook hands with members of the delegation and with many startled travelers. The march paused at the engine of the Chicago and Alton train where Congressman Reid introduced C. E. Lundborg, 300 pound engineer.

Lundborg stared blankly and held the governor's hand loosely in his fist. Congressman Reid informed Lundborg he was shaking the hand of Gov. Murray. Lundborg became more puzzled.

"Alfalfa Bill," Murray roared.

Lundborg beamed and pumped the hand vigorously.

"You got a weak grip," said Murray.

A Contrast in Dress.

In the station the party paused for photographers. Murray stood beside City Greeter Gaw, in sharp contrast to the latter's sartorial perfection. The governor wore a pair of brownish trousers, a gray coat, bulging with papers, and white canvas shoes. The coat and pants had gone far since they left a tailor's goose. He wore an eye arresting lavender tie.

The governor champed a cigar under a bushy, one time blond mustache modeled somewhat after a street sweeper's broom. A pair of keen, steel blue eyes set off his lined, lean countenance.

The party went to the Congress hotel, where Alfalfa Bill gave an interview. The delegation crowded about to hear his words and laughed uproariously at his sharp rejoinders.

Anticipates Two Questions.

Before reporters could ask a question he shouted: "Wait a minute. There's two questions I'm always asked. I'm ready for you."

He reached into his pocket and pulled out a sheaf of flimsies. He distributed two to each reporter.

The first read: "Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma said: 'In reply to your question as to my running for President, I have to say, as I have said before, the politicians have, with but few exceptions, nominated presidents, and then politicians got their best services. It will be recalled from history Andrew Jackson and Lincoln were notable exceptions who were nominated over protest of the politicians, and, as a result for their pains, they had to meet the basest slander.

Predicts "Vitriolic Attack."

"'Were I to become President, the most vitriolic attack ever known in American politics would be turned loose against me.

"'Therefore, unless I am convinced that the people intend in 1932 to nominate the President, I should not desire such a stinging reward for my ambition. Indeed, I have no ambition except to serve and to accomplish things.'"

The second read: "Gov. Wm. H. Murray of Oklahoma said: 'In reply to your question on the eighteenth amendment, I repeat, I think the whole question of the campaign of 1932 should be based upon the correction of our economic errors.

"'In the first place constitutional questions should never become partisan questions but the people left free of all prejudice, anger and fanaticism, either partisan or ecclesiastical, so that such constitutional provisions shall be the reflex of sober second thought of the people as a chart of government.

VISITOR SEEKS AN EDUCATION AND GETS IT

Albert Glattfelder, an official of the Semiramis hotel in Cairo, Egypt, has been touring the United States for the last few months on a hotel educational visit. He is a guest at the Stevens hotel.

Yesterday Mr. Glattfelder noticed two men matching pennies in front of the Wrigley tower and he inquired the nature of their game.

"We're matching coins," answered one of the men. "My friend just won $700 from me." The two were inclined to be friendly and volunteered to show him Michigan avenue. In front of the Palmolive building the coin game was brought up again. Mr. Glattfelder was persuaded to match $720 in travelers' checks against the $700 won by one of the strangers.

The stranger who lost offered to hold his friend's $700 and Mr. Glattfelder's checks which were in an envelope. The coins were about to be flipped, when the stake holder had a change of heart. It wouldn't be fair, he said, for his friend, an experienced coin matcher, to compete against Mr. Glattfelder, a beginner.

He handed back Mr. Glattfelder's envelope. Mr. Glattfelder walked away. A block down the avenue, he had an idea. He looked into his envelope. The checks were gone.

HUNT $7,950 IN JEWELS LEFT BY WOMAN IN TAXI

Jewelry valued at $7,950 was left in a Checker taxicab last Friday night by Mrs. Gilder Jackson of Dover, Del., police were informed yesterday.

The report was made by Gilbert M. Smith, 1615 Ashland avenue, Evanston, an insurance broker and friend of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson. They had just returned from a visit to Haiti, and lunched with him in Chicago Friday.

Smith also reported the loss of the bag in which the jewelry was contained to the cab company, but did not receive a description of its contents and an estimate of their value until yesterday.

Steal Pastor's Suitcase at Church in Evanston

The Rev. H. G. Nylen, a Methodist minister of Smithshire, Ill., came to Chicago Saturday to officiate at a wedding. Yesterday he attended services at the Emanuel Methodist church, Oak avenue and Greenwood street, in Evanston, accompanied by Mrs. Nylen and their two children. He left a suitcase, containing their clothing, in one of the Sunday school rooms. At the close of the services he went for the suitcase, and found that it had been stolen. Its contents were worth $200, he told Evanston police.

Bank to Tell Full Story of Wolf's Theft

The entire story of the $2,000,000 embezzlement committed by Walter E. Wolf, manager of the coupon department of the Continental-Illinois Bank and Trust company, will be made public tomorrow afternoon, officers of the bank announced yesterday.

An audit of Wolf's bank records and of the various brokerage accounts in which he used stolen securities in the stock and grain markets for twelve years will be completed today, they said. The report is expected to indicate the approximate amount of the missing securities. The bank carries a blanket policy with Lloyd's, the London underwriters, insuring it against loss by defalcation to the amount of $2,000,000.

Wolf Expects to Plead Guilty.

After the bank report is made public, it is expected that Wolf will be turned over to State's Attorney Swanson. Indications are that he is prepared to plead guilty to embezzlement. Under the Illinois code the penalty is one to ten years' imprisonment.

One of the bank officials denied current rumors that the bank, in consideration of the coöperation Wolf has given in tracing the stolen securities, would not prosecute him.

"That's not true," he said. "Wolf will be made to pay the full penalty for his theft."

"E. Gregory" Account Revealed.

It was revealed yesterday that one of Wolf's accounts has been carried by Frazier Jelke & Co. under the name of E. Gregory. The identity of E. Gregory has not been learned. It is reported that the Gregory account is a portion of the account previously carried by Wolf in Stein, Alstrin & Co. under the name of Henry W. Wolf, his brother.

In November, 1929, as previously divulged, Samuel Ullman, partner in Stein, Alstrin & Co., instructed Morris Davis, customers' man who handled the Wolf account, to close it because of its continued losses. It is said Davis deposited the account with the Chicago Title and Trust company, and a few days later a portion of it was placed by Davis with the Jelke firm.

Davis Issues Statement.

Davis issued a statement last night through his attorney, Walter Bachrach. The statement said:

"About eleven years ago I was connected with the brokerage firm of Chandler Brothers. All of us in the office knew Henry Wolf's account, which was represented by his brother, Walter.

"Chandler Brothers went out of business and another brokerage firm took over the account. About a year later, at which time I was with Stein, Alstrin & Co., Walter Wolf came to see me and told me his brother, Henry, wanted to transfer the account to us. I told him I would be glad to take it if it was in good shape.

"Stein, Alstrin & Co. took over the account and I have been handling it. There was never any question in my mind that the account was Henry Wolf's and that his brother, Walter, was trading for him, nor was there ever any question of Walter Wolf's honesty. I am as surprised as his employers were at his conduct."

Plane Aflame, Airman Leaps from 200 Feet

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Cleveland, O., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Tearing around the ten mile closed course at a 170 mile an hour clip early this morning practicing pylon turns in preparation for the Thompson trophy race tomorrow afternoon, Walter J. Hunter, of the Hunter brothers, who held briefly a world's endurance record established at Chicago, jumped from his speeding plane at an altitude of but 200 feet when it caught on fire and landed with his life, although his parachute did not open until 40 feet from the ground.

Hunter suffered burns on his face, hands, and left ankle from the explosion which occurred in the motor housing, and was rushed to Berea hospital, where the burns were pronounced not critical. He will witness the trophy race tomorrow but will not be released from the hospital for several days.

Jumps to Save Life.

"I was flying at about 250 feet," Hunter said, "when my motor quit and I switched on the reserve tank. Flames shot back into the cockpit, burning my face and hands. I cut the switch and tried to bring the ship down with the rudder, but the flames got too hot for me, so I bailed out at about 200 feet. The parachute checked my fall about forty feet off the ground. I hit hard, but was unhurt."

Hunter's Travelair mystery S plane was completely destroyed by fire. He blamed neither plane nor motor, but thought a broken gas line started the fire when the motor backfired. Hunter's plane was slightly injured by fire Friday at Terre Haute, Ind., where he stopped for gas on the Bendix trophy dash to Cleveland, but Hunter escaped the flames and saved his plane.

Fourth to Jump at Races.

The St. Louis pilot is the fourth to join the Caterpillar club by saving his life in an emergency parachute jump at the 1931 races, two marine flyers and an army pilot having jumped earlier during the meet. His escape from death was considered miraculous as chances of a parachute opening in so short a distance are small.

Capt. Bert White of Rock Hill, S. C., this afternoon unofficially broke his own previous world's record altitude parachute jump by leaping at 27,000 feet. Capt. White's record was 24,800 feet, established over Los Angeles May 25, 1930. He drifted 13 miles this afternoon. The new record will not become official until the barograph Capt. White carried has been calibrated by the National Aeronautic association. The temperature at 27,000 feet was about 30 degrees below zero.

Woman Flies 187 Miles an Hour.

Miss Maude Irving Tait, flying in air races for the first time this afternoon, won the Aerol trophy race for women pilots and first prize of $3,750, covering the fifty mile course at an average speed of 187.574 miles an hour.

Miss Tait, society girl of Springfield, Mass., piloted a Gee Bee Senior sportster monoplane, powered by a Wasp motor, to a spectacular victory in which she ran away from the field of eight starters before reaching the first pylon on the first lap. Around the five laps of the ten mile closed course Miss Tait steadily increased her speed, flying at times at a rate approaching the 211 mile per hour women's world record.

Mae Haizlip, wife of Jimmy, Chicago racing pilot, took second place in a hard fought battle with Florence Klingensmith of Minneapolis. Mrs. Haizlip won $2,250 second prize and Miss Klingensmith $1,500 third prize.

First Experience in Race.

Miss Tait has been flying for three years but has not participated in races until this year. She handled the plane like a veteran racing pilot, taking the pylons without losing or gaining alti-

FLEET OF 100 PLANES BOMBS REBEL WARSHIPS

Sailors Leap In Sea to Save Lives.

BULLETIN.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 7 (Monday).—Chile's rebel navy early today raised the white flag of surrender at Coquimbo. The rebels were badly demoralized as the result of the bombing attack by 100 government airplanes.

BULLETIN.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 7.—(Monday.)—(AP)—Four destroyers at Coquimbo were surrendered to federal forces by their revolting crews today after the air corps had threatened to renew yesterday's bombardment, the government said. They were the Aldea, Riquelme, Hyatt, and the Orella.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Chilean air force delivered a smashing bomb and machine gun attack for 23 minutes this evening upon the country's rebel navy near Coquimbo in an attempt to end the revolt.

The bombs and machine gun fire were directed chiefly at four submarines which had arrived early today from the southern coast. One of the submarines was disabled, reports reaching here said, and the crew of the other, swimming for their lives to the shore, were arrested.

Later the government ordered the airplanes to concentrate for a second general attack. While the concentration was being effected small squadrons of airplanes were maintaining a constant watch from the air over the fleet and dropping an occasional bomb in an endeavor to force a surrender without the necessity of a further attack. Between 80 and 100 planes are engaged in the movements.

Town Cheers Aviators.

The population of Coquimbo lined the shore to watch the brilliant engagement in the sea and air and cheered wildly as the aviators, with excellent aim, thundered bombs at the navy, the largest in Pacific waters except the forces of Japan and the United States.

After twenty-three minutes, Gen. Carlos Virgara, commanding the air squadrons, ordered the bombardment halted until it could be determined, by renewed parleys, whether the crews of the battleship La Torre and the other rebel ships would surrender rather than undergo further attacks.

The bombardment lasted from 5:45 p. m. to 6:08 p. m.

The rebel crews did not return the fire of the airplanes, the government said, and it was believed they were hiding in the lower parts of the ships, seeking shelter from the bombs and the hail of machine gun fire directed from above their heads.

Bomb Sets Fire to Ship.

Details received here some time after the attack said the bow of the armored cruiser General O'Higgins, reported sunk in yesterday's dispatches, was damaged by the bombs, but the vessel was still functioning. The condition of the battleship La Torre was not reported. Rebel ships raided the private freighter Flora off Coquimbo before the bombardment and seized provisions.

The General O'Higgins was set on fire by a bomb which struck her but the crew put the blaze out. Another bomb dropped immediately afterward missed the ship but struck a launch containing a group of the sailors. The launch was sunk and the sailors are believed to have been lost.

When the bombardment became heavier the population of the town began to flee on two special trains and other conveyances.

Captured Cruiser Repaired.

The submarine which was most badly damaged in the attack, an official bulletin said, was the H-4.

Three destroyers and a second submarine put out to sea after the engagement, the bulletin added, but it said that the government still had sufficient naval forces remaining loyal to pursue the fleeing rebel vessels. Two additional submarines, the bulletin said, turned southward in obedience to government commands and are expected to be put into punitive service.

The cruiser Almirante Riveros, which attacked the base at Talcahuano yesterday and was captured by loyal troops, has been repaired by navy officers and crews remaining loyal to the government, it was said, and was ready to serve as the nucleus of the force which will be launched against the rebel ships at sea.

The government ordered the arrest of Carlos Froedden, minister of marine under former President Ibanez, and said it would bring him to Santiago on charges that his home near Coquimbo has been the meeting place of leaders of the revolt.

1,000 Killed or Wounded.

(Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.)

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 6.—The fight at the Talcahuano naval base yesterday and today in which coast defense forts were recaptured from rebels cost the forces loyal to the government no fewer than 300 men killed and wounded, according to information received here today. The rebel losses were reported much heavier and may have reached 700.

The engagement proved to have been a major operation, with numerous furious assaults on the fortifications before they surrendered. The strong, modern fortifications at Valparaiso, which were in the hands of the rebels, also have surrendered to land forces after vigorous attacks by regulars from Guintero Bay.

One cruiser at Talcahuano, the Almirante Riveros, attempted to help the rebels on land, but was driven back and forced to surrender. The warship raised a white flag while the battle was in progress and moved in toward shore. The loyal forces thought it was going to surrender then, but to their surprise the cruiser suddenly opened fire on them.

Artillery Fires at Ship.

Five loyal regiments on land immediately concentrated their fire on the cruiser and swept the decks. Field artillery blazed away with direct fire and airplanes flew out and dropped bombs around it.

The cruiser promptly retreated behind Quiriquina island and started to continue out to sea, but was halted by the airplanes. It then surrendered, making the first unit in the mutinous navy to yield to the government.

Airplanes also discovered submarines moving north with food supplies for the mutinous vessels at Coquimbo, where the revolt first flared. The airplanes called upon the submarines to surrender, but the crews refused, explaining that the entire navy was sworn to stick together until the last. The submarines went on toward Coquimbo.

Rush Troops to Ports.

Other military operations are under way in several parts of Chile, but no information as to details is available, as virtually the only source of information is the infrequent government bulletins. At Coquimbo it is reported that the mutinous warships are running out of coal and food.

The mutineers, it is reported, have decided to steam out to sea and north along the coast to attempt to replenish their supplies elsewhere. They have been keeping steam up for days, and it is believed that they haven't enough coal to last much longer and their food supply is even more limited.

Several regiments have been sent from Santiago to Valparaiso in motor vehicles donated to the government by civilians and the Arica regiment has been ordered to Antofogasta. Other units have been ordered to the unfortified ports of Tocopilla, Iquique, and Arica.

Civilians Offer Gold.

All land forces and virtually all citizens seem to be supporting the government wholeheartedly. The régime is receiving a flood of offers of the use of automobiles, private property of all sorts, including gold and jewels for strengthening finances, and of military service. Thousands of citizens are enlisting in the civil guard and thousands of students at military academies are volunteering.

The government has taken over the railroads, which are being operated under direction of army officers intrusted with the transportation of troops. Thousands of unemployed have been assigned to live in designated quarters and are being kept under strict guard to prevent their being influenced by communist agitators.

PLANES BOMB MUTINOUS NAVY

Arrows on map point to Coquimbo, where Chilean military planes last evening attacked warships of the mutinous navy with bombs and machine gun fire, sailors leaping into the sea for safety; and Talcahuano, where troops attacked the rebellious naval yards and where 1,000 are reported to have been killed and wounded. Between 80 and 100 planes participated in the attack on the warships at Coquimbo, dispatches said.

POWERS' WIFE IS HELD; SEARCH FOR MORE BODIES

Police Find Eicher Silver in Bluebeard Home.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Police acting under orders of Chief C. A. Duckworth today made a systematic search of the home of Harry F. Powers, confessed slayer of Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher and her three children of Park Ridge, Ill., and Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke of North Bridge, Mass., and uncovered additional property belonging to the two slain women. In the kitchen of the Powers' home they found a chest of silver identified as the property of Mrs. Eicher.

The police extended their search to the store adjoining the home and to three other houses and a garage, and after they had gone over all of the premises thoroughly they had a stack of clothing, much of which was identified as that of Mrs. Eicher and Mrs. Lemke. In a search yesterday the officers had found a quantity of clothing belonging to the two women victims of "Bluebeard" Powers.

Plan to Tear Up Floor.

As the officers were searching every nook and cranny in the little store operated by Mrs. Lulu T. Strothers Powers, the wife of the slayer, they were almost sickened by a nauseating odor permeating the premises, and it was decided to make a further search under the flooring of the building on the possibility that other bodies were buried there.

Mrs. Powers is under technical arrest. She is not in jail, but the sheriff's office has her under surveillance and will seize her if she attempts to leave town. Her sister, Miss Eva Belle Strothers, is under the same restrictions.

Identification of part of the clothing as the property of Mrs. Lemke was made by Mrs. Charles Fleming of Northboro, Mass., sister of the slain woman. When Mrs. Powers and Miss Strothers were asked about the newly discovered silverware and clothing they denied all knowledge of the articles or how they happened to be hidden where they were found.

While the search by the officers was going on today thousands visited the Powers home here and the murder farm at Quiet Dells. Mrs. Powers and her sister were asked by the authorities to revoke the lease on the farm, where courious throngs are paying admission fees to tramp about the place and satisfy their morbid yearnings. The two women said they didn't need the money, but that they legally had rented the property and intended to keep possession.

Sister Advertises for Mate.

Another revelation today in connection with the case was the announcement by the police that they had discovered that Mrs. Powers' sister herself was a contributor to a matrimonial agency. So pleased, apparently, was Eva Belle Strothers with her sister's success in obtaining a husband that she recently inserted an advertisement with the "Wedding Bells club" of Boston, setting forth her charms as a prospective wife.

When confronted with samples of the handwriting in the advertisement Miss Strothers denied emphatically that she ever had placed her name or an advertisement with the Boston club. She said the advertisement was a forgery, but a dozen witnesses here said the writing in the ad was that of Mrs. Powers' sister. The copy for the advertisement, which was sent to Chief Duckworth from Boston, follows:

"Here is my advertisement: Am an American, refined, intelligent lady, and of the highest class. Protestant. Loving disposition. Five feet four inches tall. Brown hair, blue eyes, weigh 100 pounds; age 40. Never married. Have means. Will correspond for matrimony only with American gentleman with means, from 40 to 50." 50."

MEMORIAL FOR EICHERS.

A memorial service for the slain Eicher children, Greta, Harry, and Annabelle, was held yesterday in St. Luke's English Lutheran church at Park Ridge, where they had attended Sunday school most of their lives. The Rev. W. D. Spangler, pastor of the church, led the prayers for the dead children. He reminded the others present of the excellent record of the three, Greta especially having distinguished herself by being present every Sunday of the present year up to the time she and her brother and sister were taken from their home by Powers.

BARCELONA, FREE OF STRIFE, GETS BACK TO NORMAL

BARCELONA, Spain, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Barcelona was free of sporadic attacks on constituted authority today for the first time in four days. Extra forces of police and civil guards, which occupied strategic points until after the collapse of the syndicalist strike late yesterday, began to retire.

For the first time in several days, Barcelona had telephone connections with the rest of Spain. Littered streets, which had begun to threaten the city with pestilence, received a thorough cleaning. Public utility services were resumed and transportation lines helped the city resume its customary activity.

Only glass factory workers, numbering 6,000, and striking telephone company employés were expected to hold out tomorrow against the general agreement to resume work.

Knocked Out with Ball Bat by Roadhouse Owner

Leslie Allen, 30 years old, of Highland Park, was taken to the Highland Park hospital last night suffering from injuries which, it was said, might cause his death. He told police that he was struck with a baseball bat by Ralph Petite in the Petite café, a roadhouse one mile west of Glencoe on Dundee road. Police are seeking Petite. His wife told them that Allen and two men entered the café and threatened her husband. He routed them in self-defense, she said. Allen is a laundry wagon driver.

CRUSADER CHIEF WARNS AGAINST REPENTING DRYS

Judge Congressman by Record, He Says.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Col. Ira L. Reeves, division manager of the Crusaders, an anti-prohibition organization, warned battalion commanders in ten west central states yesterday to beware of accepting "death bed repentances" from members of congress whose records are dry.

"We are not impressed with some of the recent conversions," he said. "Statements now made by office seekers do not tally with those made to our political action committee in Washington last winter, and we may find it necessary to inquire why the quick change of front. The best way to judge a man is on his record."

COL. IRA L. REEVES

Points to Chindblom and Hull.

In Illinois the wet leader called particular attention to Congressman Carl R. Chindblom of Chicago, who has announced that he will move northward to Evanston in order to run next year in the new 13th district and is expected to announce himself for modification. Col. Reeves also implied that the wet activities of Congressman W. E. Hull of Peoria might well be suspected as those of a candidate for the United States senate.

Col. Reeves said that a committee of Illinois Crusaders, including J. Richmond Dean, Ernest Kruetgen, Paul Mueller, and himself, called on dry congressmen from Illinois last winter and asked them to state their positions on the prohibition issue. Congressman Hull's change of position was made known at that time, Col. Reeves said. He added:

"Mr. Hull's beliefs on Volsteadism have changed so frequently that it would be difficult for our membership to think they may not change again. His senatorial aspirations will be of interest to all Crusaders."

The Interview with Chindblom.

Col. Reeves declared that Chindblom was "impossible" from the Crusaders' standpoint.

"Congressman Chindblom was most obdurate," he said, "and ridiculed the idea that liberals would ever unseat him because of his dry attitude.

"He told us that the more the wets opposed him, the larger his majority at election time. He is now moving into Evanston, which contains the fountain head of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, whose spokesman he has been. But it is said he intends to favor modification.

"In this same district, the 13th, Ralph E. Church, spokesman for the Anti-Saloon league in the state legislature, also has congressional aspirations. It has been the policy of the league to desert a bone dry for a slightly moist candidate if the latter's chance of success seem better. In view of past performances Mr. Chindblom's sudden change is significant.

Calls Attention to Record.

"We have advised the north shore commanders of the Crusaders, Henry M. Huxley of Evanston, Albert Snite of Highland Park, and Farwell Winston of Lake Forest, that Mr. Chindblom's record probably will be of more interest to them than his promises. Stephen A. Day is the only man in the district running on a repeal platform at the present time."

Charles West, mentioned recently as a candidate in the new 13th district, is a resident of the next district south, the new 10th, and is a candidate there.

HOLD UP LOOP CANDY STORE.

Two bandits entered the Mrs. Stover's Candy store at 33 West Randolph street yesterday, locked a clerk, Miss Mildred Smith, 640 Wrightwood avenue, in a back room, and fled with $45 taken from the cash register.

TRAYLOR IS BACKED FOR PRESIDENT BY HIS NATIVE COUNTY

Columbia, Ky., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Melvin A. Traylor for President movement, which had its inception in Texas, where the Chicago banker met financial success, will be given impetus next month in the county in which he was born.

MELVIN A. TRAYLOR.

Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, was born at Breeding, Adair county, about 15 miles from Columbia, the county seat. His friends here have arranged a celebration for Oct. 2 at which a movement will be launched to have Kentucky's votes at the Democratic national convention cast for the native Kentuckian.

Preparatory to this mass celebration, Traylor for President clubs are being organized throughout Kentucky. These clubs already have taken definite form at Danville, Winchester, Frankfort, Lawrenceburg, Lexington, and other cities, their object being to send delegations to the meeting here Oct. 2.

The meeting will be held at the fair grounds, and tentative plans call for burgoo and barbecue, traditional trimmings for Kentucky political rallies. The date coincides with the annual Louisville conference here of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, of which denomination Traylor is a prominent layman.

HOUSE OCCUPIED BY VON STEUBEN RAZED BY FIRE

Beacon, N. Y., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—The old Verplanck mansion, known as Mount Gulian, on the Hudson river road three miles north of here, where Baron von Steuben made his headquarters during the American revolution and where the Society of the Cincinnati was formed in 1783, was destroyed by fire last night. Oil-soaked rags in the wooden rear portion of the stone and wood house showed that the blaze was the work of an incendiary. Damage was estimated at $100,000.

The police are holding Charles Crater, 59, an eccentric one eyed Negro known widely through the neighborhood as "Deefay" on suspicion of having set the fire as well as several others within a few miles of here recently.

300,000 RUSSIAN YOUTHS SALUTE SOVIET LEADERS

MOSCOW, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Thousands of Russia's future citizens marched this evening through Red square in a great demonstration commemorating International Youths' day. With floodlights beating down upon the square and with torchlights carried through the procession casting an eerie glow over the scene, boys and girls ranging from eight to twenty-five years trooped slowly past the tomb of Lenin.

They saluted President Kalinin, Maxim Gorki, and a score of other soviet leaders who watched from an observation platform. Bands blared and rockets shot skyward. Banners waved and in the deepening twilight continuous volleys of cheers echoed from thousands of young throats as the embryo proletarians swept by in columns of four.

Estimates of the number of marchers ranged from 300,000 to 500,000. There were the pioneers and young communists, the juvenile branches of the communist party and also a majority of the youth of Moscow and nearby provinces. Those in uniform kept step with children in tattered clothing.

Woman Killed by Jump or Fall From 3d Floor Flat

Mrs. Marie McDonald, 54 years old, 5554 West North avenue, was fatally injured early this morning when she jumped or fell from a window of her third floor apartment. She landed on the sidewalk and was hurried to the Keystone hospital, where she died an hour later from a fractured skull. Mrs. McDonald's husband, John, an employé of a railroad, was at work.

FIVE KILLED AS WIND, RAIN, SNOW BUFFET EUROPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 6.—Wind, rain, hail, and snow storms lashed Europe over the week-end, leaving five persons dead, stopping navigation, flooding fields, and in some places paralyzing communication.

A seaman was washed overboard and drowned near St. Nazaire, and a farm laborer drowned near Cherbourg. Hail storms damaged tobacco crops and vineyards in the Gironde district.

Snow cut off communications in Savoy, while the Marne, Rhone, Saone, Moselle, and Meurthe rivers were flooded.

A worker was killed under a wall blown over by the wind in Bernhagen, Germany. Several other workmen were injured. Navigation on the Baltic coast was at a standstill, several barges being sunk. Two sailors were missing from a group of seven washed off an Italian destroyer at Spezia, Italy. The other five were rescued.

SIX CHICAGOANS ARE KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Rabbi Is Victim; Driver Held.

Automobile accidents in Chicago streets and on the roads of Chicagoland yesterday, the second day of the Labor day holiday, caused the deaths of six Chicagoans. Two were killed outside of Cook county and three within. Two other victims died as results of injuries received earlier.

Rabbi Bender Wolpe, 80 years old, 3344 Fillmore street, an authority on Jewish law and formerly connected with Temple Anshe Sholom, Polk street and Independence boulevard, was killed in Douglas boulevard at Keeler street as he attempted to cross the boulevard. The aged man, according to witnesses, dodged one car and stepped directly into the path of a car driven by Robert J. Ryan, 103 East Station street, Barrington. Ryan took the rabbi to Mount Sinai hospital, where it was said he had been killed almost instantly. Ryan was held by the west park police.

Two Die in Crash.

In a headon collision on road 41, ten miles south of Milwaukee, Sam Beer, 45 years old, 1041 Fullerton avenue, and Helen Novak, a Milwaukee girl, were killed and six others, including three Chicagoans, Edward, Tobias and Conrad Heleman, 817 West North avenue, were injured. The car driven by Edward Heleman collided with one driven by Joseph Certalic of Milwaukee, stepfather of the girl who was killed. Certalic's wife, Josephine, and two other stepchildren, Josephine and Jerry Novak, were injured.

Mrs. Mary O. Johnson, 64 years old, 931 Latrobe avenue, was killed and her daughter, Miss Alfhild Johnson and Miss Emma Muntz of Savanna were seriously injured in an automobile collision at Rochelle, Ill. Mrs. Johnson's husband, Gustaf B. Johnson, was driving through the town west bound from Chicago when his car struck one driven by Albert Muntz of Savanna, relative of the injured girl.

Other Deaths Listed.

The deaths of Rabbi Wolpe and five others increased the Cook county auto death toll for the year to 818. The other victims:

John Bertram, 16 years old, 3333 North Marshfield avenue. Died at his home following an accident earlier in the day at Damen and Wellington avenues. Bertram was riding with three other youths in a car driven by Eugene Schoenberg, 1954 Otto street, when it collided with one driven by Roy Klingenmarer, 2146 Wellington avenue.

Mrs. Lucy Stretch, 70 years old, 1715 Archer avenue, a grandmother. Killed when the car driven by her daughter, Mrs. John Wiseman, of the same address collided with another automobile driven by Miss Edna Gray of Milwaukee at 74th avenue and 58th street, Summit. The drivers of both cars were released under bonds and ordered to appear at the inquest today.

Unidentified man, about 45 years old and well dressed. Killed late last night by a motor truck at Milwaukee avenue and Halsted street. Charles Peretoy, 3306 South Wabash avenue, the driver, was held by North Racine avenue police.

George Kuchinski, 70 years old, 1742 South Union avenue. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered Sept. 1 when he was struck at 19th and Halsted streets by a car driven by Clarence St. Clair, 3825 Cottage Grove avenue, a Negro. St. Clair was held by the Maxwell police.

Lorraine Kowalski, 10 years old, 2324 North Menard avenue. Died at St. Anne's hospital from injuries received Friday when she was hit by an automobile at Menard and Fullerton avenues. Theodore Cleckno, 16 years old, 2448 North Springfield avenue, driver of the car, was not held.

Dies in Indiana Crash.

In an accident near Porter, Ind., Ellis C. Anderson, 50 years old, of Schneider, Ind., was so severely injured that he died within an hour. His car was struck by one driven by Richard Bross of Porter.

Word was received yesterday of the death of Mrs. Richard Stretton, 46 years old, formerly of Chicago. Mrs. Stretton and her husband, both of whom had been in Salvation Army work for many years, were driving from their home in Kansas City to Chicago when their car was involved in an accident which proved fatal to Mrs. Stretton.

Lige Crites, manager of the Oakbrook Polo farm near Hinsdale, late last night was reported in a grave condition at the Presbyterian hospital as a result of injuries suffered Saturday in an automobile accident in Spring road, one mile north of the farm. Pending the outcome of Mr. Crites' injuries all polo at the Oakbrook farm has been suspended.

Mrs. Paul Butler, wife of the owner of the polo farm, was less seriously injured when the car skidded in the gravel and overturned.

FEARED BY NEW GOVERNMENT

ACCUSED OF LEAVING HIS WIFE; CHARGE IS DISORDERLY CONDUCT

New York, Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Young Llewellyn G. Ross who stands to inherit several million dollars from his mother, Mrs. Helen H. Forcey of Petersburg, near Troy, was prepared to admit right out today that troubles never come singly even to a son of wealth.

Ross has just had the misfortune to be arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct under a quaint section of the law which says that a man is guilty of such conduct if he leaves his wife.

Mrs. Lewellyn G. says her hubby did that very thing and she isn't a bit sorry of having landed him in the toils. Moreover she is bringing suit for separation and asking $300 a week alimony and $2,500 counsel fees.

Ross was held in $300 bail for a hearing at Petersburgh next Saturday.

BOND SALESMAN LEAPS INTO RIVER OFF SHIP'S DECK

In view of scores of passengers, Harry Davis, 35 years old, 2756 Pine Grove avenue, a bond salesman, late last night leaped from the second deck of the steamer Theodore Roosevelt into the Chicago river at the Michigan avenue bridge.

He was fished out by Policeman Peter Anderson and the crew of a taxi speedboat, who went to the rescue. Taken to the South State street station, he said that he had leaped into the river while despondent. He declined to say why he was despondent.

Davis was standing near the upper deck rail when he took off his coat, necktie, and shoes. He turned to Sam Minsky 3513 Grenshaw street, another passenger, and asked: "Do you dare me to jump into the river?" Then he leaped despite Minsky's efforts to restrain him.

CRAZED GUNMAN SHOT TO DEATH BY HERO POLICEMAN

Detective Albert Blue, colored, winner of a TRIBUNE police hero award, yesterday walked into a darkened basement at 233 East Garfield boulevard, knocked down a barricade behind which a moonshine crazed Negro crouched with a shotgun, and killed the man.

The Negro, known only as Brown, had previously wounded a colored minister and his daughter when he opened fire with the shotgun on a crowded street. Blue escaped death when the shotgun jammed as Brown attempted to shoot him at a range of a few feet.

Brown was employed as a porter in a café operated by Dominick de Vito in the building where he was killed. Yesterday he entered a restaurant at 224 East 55th place, drunk. He fell asleep while waiting for his order, and, angered at the laughter of patrons in the place, went and got a shotgun.

He returned to the restaurant, but instead of entering opened fire at random from the curb outside. Slugs from his shotgun struck the Rev. Joseph Griffin, 229 East 55th place, and the latter's daughter, Naomi, 11 years old. The girl, seriously wounded, was taken to the Provident hospital.

Brown then fled to the basement at the Garfield boulevard address. Blue and his partner, Detective Sam Black, also colored, arrived on the scene shortly afterward and Blue entered and killed the man.

The exploit which won Blue the TRIBUNE award was of a somewhat similar nature. On June 27, 1924, he entered a house where a crazed Negro had fired at his wife with a revolver and shot him after the latter had killed another Negro who entered with Blue.

Mr. Ennis Lends a Hand to Motorists in Distress

Patrick Ennis, 8313 Racine avenue, and Miss Mabel Harkness, 2444 East 74th place, were sitting in Ennis' parked car at 50th street and Cornell avenue last night when three men stopped in a car near by and got out to fix it. They tinkered so long that Ennis got out and offered to help. Thereupon they robbed him of $1.50, ordered the girl out of Ennis' automobile, and drove away in it, leaving their own brokendown car standing in the street.

LONDON THRONG PROTESTS DOLE AND WAGE CUTS

Mass in Hyde Park for Big Demonstration.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—A crowd of several thousand people engaged in a demonstration in Hyde Park today while political leaders were preparing for the opening of parliament this week. The crowd announced its intention to see Prime Minister MacDonald at the house of commons Tuesday to protest against cuts in the "dole" and in wages.

The crowd was made up of members of the Independent Labor party and a contingent under the national unemployed workers' movement. It converged on Oxford Circus from all parts of London and, headed by a band of unemployed men, marched to Hyde Park bearing banners inscribed, "No Wage Cuts!" "Stop This Starvation!"

100 Policemen on Guard.

One hundred policemen watched the demonstration closely. The speakers included J. Beckett, member of parliament for Peckham and and F. Wise, member for Leicester, East. The meeting passed resolutions against "the declared intention of the national government to cut down unemployment allowances, social expenditure, and the wages of government servants at the dictation of financiers."

Meanwhile, political leaders were tightening their belts in preparation for what is expected to be one of the most tumultous week's in the history of the country's politics.

On Tuesday the special session of the parliament meets to approve, or disapprove, the new national government's plan for meeting the apparent deficit of approximately $600,000,000 in the budget.

The cabinet's program is completed, but it will hold a brief meeting tomorrow to decide the final lineup for the battle in the house of commons. It expects to have a majority of more than fifty votes, at least.

Labor Girds for War.

At the same time, British labor will also meet tomorrow at the trades union congress at Bristol to map out the plans of its warfare against the administration, the plans of which, it holds, are antagonistic to the workers.

Prime Minister MacDonald and other principal figures in the present crisis spent the week-end ostensibly resting, but actually most of them were busily engaged at their country homes working out their plans.

Few, if any, absentees are expected when the commons convenes. Every member has been impressed with the importance of the situation and the necessity for his being present.

J. H. Thomas, minister for the dominions and colonies, again felt the displeasure of his Labor colleagues today when a meeting of the general council of the Derby Labor party passed a unanimous resolution condemning his action in participating in the new national government.

"Membership of the national government," the resolution declared, "is incompatible with membership in the Labor party and, in view of Mr. Thomas' participation in the national government, we withdraw the party's indorsement of his candidacy for parliamentary representative for this constituency."

The veteran minister was present at the meeting himself and explained his action, and the motives for it, to the council. He said he was not surprised at the result, but added he would not resign his seat, but would "go through, regardless of the consequences, for good or ill."

A great crowd gathered at Bristol for the annual demonstration in connection with tomorrow's meeting of the trades union congress. Arthur Hayday, chairman of the congress, presided. Twenty-three members of parliament will attend the opening of the congress tomorrow.

Myers, School Head, to Aid Union Quiz in Enright Killing

Officials prepared yesterday for an inquiry into two phases of the activities of the electricians' union, in the belief that in its affairs lies a possible solution of the murder of Mortimer P. Enright, taken for a gang ride Thursday night.

Enright, a member of the executive committee of Local 134 of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, was chief electrician for the school board. President Lewis E. Myers of that body said that upon his return tomorrow from his Labor day holiday he will order an inquiry into one theory of the murder which involves reputed graft on board of education electrical contracts.

Mrs. Hefferan Asks Quiz.

Trustee Helen Hefferan joined in a demand for an investigation of supposed graft in school board contracts.

"While I am not a member of the building and grounds committee of the board," she said, "I know that reports have been circulated for the last six months concerning electrical contracts. I will insist that the board go thoroughly into the matter, including any connection between contracts and the murder of Enright, when we have our meeting Wednesday."

Probe "Estimate Board."

Assistant State's Attorneys Charles Bellows and Charles E. Lounsbury, in their investigation of the murder, are to confer tomorrow with President Myers and other members of the school board on that matter. It involves the reputed existence of a semi-official body in the electricians' union, called the "board of estimate," which is alleged to have, in effect, dictated what contractors and material supply houses were to bid on school board electrical contracts, and fixed the amount of such bids.

Prosecutor Bellows said that the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office had received a number of complaints regarding the existence of the "board of estimate," and for some months has been seeking concrete evidence which might be made the basis of a grand jury inquiry. Federal authorities are also reported to be interested, from the angle of possible restraint of trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

Member of Estimate Board.

Enright, a close associate in union affairs of Michael J Boyle, business agent of the organization, was a reputed member of the "board of estimate." President Myers denied that he had ever heard of the existence of the body, in promising the state's attorney's office full coöperation in the investigation.

"In the Lane Technical High school building project," he said, "I thought that the bids for electrical work were too high, and we advertised for new ones and got a lower price. It wasn't, however, that I had any suspicion regarding the bids. I just thought the first prices were too high."

Pay to Aid Jobless.

Another phase of the inquiry relates to the internal affairs of the union, particularly to the unemployment relief policy initiated by Boyle, under which all working members of the union pay 10 per cent of their earnings into a fund from which unemployed members get loans.

There is reported to have been wide dissatisfaction among union members because of the payments required of them, and from those out of work because of terms imposed for loans.

The murder of Enright, it is thought, may have been an attempt to intimidate Boyle. The latter, an iron handed ruler of the union for years, is reported to have considered retirement lately, and the installation of Enright as his successor.

LABOR TO MARK GOLDEN JUBILEE AT RITES TODAY

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray to Be Chief Speaker.

Labor day will be observed today as the golden jubilee of the American Federation of Labor. Protest against unemployment in a parade of union men down Michigan avenue, a mass-meeting at Soldiers' field, and athletic contests will commemorate the federation's birthday.

Parade Forms at 11 A. M.

The parade will form at La Salle street and Wacker drive at 11 a. m. The union men are to march in five divisions, representing the various trades. Two grand marshals, David McVay and Arthur W. Wallace, will head the march.

The musicians' union band will lead the parade. The building trades, metal trades, printing and allied trades, miscellaneous trades and officers of the federation are to follow in order. Bands will be interspersed along the ranks.

Will Hold Massmeeting.

Following the parade the mass-meeting is to open in Soldiers' field. Gov. William H. [Alfalfa Bill] Murray of Oklahoma is to be the principal speaker. Other speakers on the program will include Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, and former Gov. Edwin P. Morrow of Kentucky. The speakers are to express labor's attitude toward current problems of industry and insist on maintenance of an adequate wage scale.

The Soldiers' field program will begin at 9 a. m. with a track and field meet for playground children. At 4:15 in the afternoon a pantomime entitled "In Union There Is Strength" will be presented by a cast of several hundred school children.

George W. Perkins, 75 years old, 720 Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park, who voluntarily retired as international president of the cigarmakers' union after thirty-five years in that office and one of the few organizers of the federation now living, is to attend the meeting. Perkins was closely associated with the late Samuel Gompers, a member of the union, and president of the federation.

Tells of Many Gains.

On the founding of the federation in 1881 at Pittsburgh members directed its course on economic rather than political action, Perkins said. It advocated better wages and shorter hours rather than the reactionary programs of rival organizations.

"In 1881 wages were low," Perkins said. "Skilled workers in the building trades were getting $1.25 a day. Hours were long. With hard work the federation won intelligent people to its views. The membership has increased from 50,000 to over 3,000,000.

"There was no precedent for the federation to follow. It made its own course. The fiftieth birthday of the federation finds labor and capital in closer accord than at any time in its history."

Thousands left the city yesterday for visits to summer resorts and neighboring cities.

The Chicago Concert band will present a special Labor day program in the evening at the shell in Grant park.

Hunt Girl Burglar and Pal in Ambassador Hotel Raid

The girl burglar and her male companion who robbed the apartment of Mrs. Margaret Person in the Ambassador hotel on Saturday night of cash, furs and jewelry valued at $1,500 were hunted yesterday by the Hudson avenue police. Guests in the lobby of the hotel reported seeing the couple walk out, the girl wearing a fox scarf taken from Mrs. Person's apartment. The girl, they said, was about 25 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, and weighed about 130 pounds. The man was about 30 years old, 5 feet 2 inches tall, and weighed about 135 pounds.

KILLED BY ELECTRIC WIRE.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Arthur Bray, 28, Corning, Ia., was killed at Carlson, near here, when a telephone wire he was splicing touched a nearby high voltage cable and electrocuted him.

Patten Memorial Tablet Unveiled in Old Church

The United Presbyterian church which the late James A. Patten and his ancestors attended in Somonauk, Ill., was the scene yesterday of the unveiling of a tablet placed in the church in recognition of a gift of $25,000 made by Mrs. James A. Patten for the reconstruction of the building. Left to right: June Baine, granddaughter of oldest member of church; Albert E. and Jennie Winter, cousins of the late James A. Patten and the Rev. W. C. Davidson, pastor of the church.

paign questions of that character—infant baptism, "the final preservation of the saints" hate and fanaticism would be the order of the day and the great monopolies and mergers would continue to rule America. Our explanations and battle cry must be: Bread and Butter; Bacon and Beans.'"

"And that's all I'll say on those questions," he shouted.

The governor was asked what he thought was to blame for the depression.

"The system of banking and credits," he snapped. "I don't mean money but the system."

A reporter asked his remedy.

"I'll tell you that tomorrow," he laughed. "It's in the speech. I haven't got it written—it's going to be extemporaneous.

Predicts Oil Fight Victory.

"It'll be all right when you get it finished."

He demanded to know what time he could get a train for Oklahoma, explaining, "I'm pretty busy out there."

The governor spoke of his fight to raise the price of oil and hit shutting of oil wells by militia.

"We won't lose the oil fight," he said. "The price was 82 cents yesterday and I told 'em I wasn't bargaining. I said one dollar and I mean one dollar. The oil will stay in the ground, so we can't lose."

Likes Supper—Hates Banquets.

At the termination of the interview Alfalfa Bill turned to the reception committee: "Did you get my wire about the banquet?" he said. "I despise banquets, but if you got to have one I'll go."

Congressman Reid explained an informal supper was to be held.

"Supper," said Murray. "That's fine. Supper—not dinner. That's the way I like things. Dinner—faugh.

ROB HOME IN EVANSTON.

William N. Wyant, head of an investment company bearing his name at 39 South La Salle street, returned to his home, 999 Michigan avenue, Evanston, early yesterday, and discovered that burglars had entered the place and stolen two fur coats, valued at $500, belonging to Mrs. Wyant.

Two Day Celebration

An addition to the United Presbyterian church, built through the aid of Mrs. James A. Patten, was dedicated yesterday as part of a two day celebration attended by thousands. The church is near Freeland Corners, 4 miles north of Somonauk, in De Kalb county.

For nearly a century the Patten name has been associated with the rural church. Eighty-five years ago George Beveridge, the late grain king's maternal grandfather, donated the church site. Mr. Patten grew up in the section near there, and attended the church. It was his plan to enlarge the church, improve the Oak Mound cemetery close by, and establish a community center. Mr. Patten's widow and her son, John, inspired by his desire, financed an addition to the church.

A two day celebration was planned for Saturday and yesterday. On the first day homecoming was held, and people came from all parts of the country. Yesterday a tablet, presented by the young people's organization of the church, and bearing Mrs. Patten's name, was dedicated as part of the ceremony.

Speeches were delivered by Mrs. R. J. Howison; the Rev. W. C. Davidson, pastor; the Rev. John Atchison of Princeton, Ill., and the Rev. J. A. Spear of Tyrone, Pa., former pasters; the Rev. A. J. Randels, who once lived in the district, and Donald McAllister, who presented the tablet. Mrs. Patten was unable to attend because of illness. John Patten, the son, was present Saturday.

FIND SUITCASE; GIRL'S DRESSES AFLOAT IN POND

A suit case containing a woman's clothing was found yesterday floating in a pond on the farm of John Geisenfelt, one mile south of Higgins road near Itasca. Geisenfelt, fearing the owner of the suitcase had drowned, notified Morton Grove county highway police. Sergts. La Vern Roder and George Le Grue dragged the pond for two hours but found nothing.

The suit case, besides five dresses and other apparel, contained a number of unused envelopes which bore the return address of Frank Santolini, Box 377, Buhl, Minn. Another letter was addressed to Miss Sylvia Santolini, of Buhl, by Adela Schmitt, of New Ulm, Minn.

Police believe the suit case was owned by Miss Santolini and asked Minnesota authorities to learn if she is missing.

Bolivian Cabinet Quits; Seek to Prevent Crisis

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Sept. 6.—(AP)—It was reported unofficially today that the Bolivian cabinet had resigned, but that the ministers were continuing in office. The government declined to confirm the report, but it was understood President Daniel Salamanca would attempt to form a new cabinet before a crisis developed.

MACHINIST DIES OF INJURIES.

LABOR CAN END DRY LAW WITHIN YEAR, SAYS WOLL

Urges Such Action for Welfare of Nation.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Confidence that organized labor can "overthrow Volsteadism through modification" this winter was expressed today by Matthew Woll, president of labor's national committee for modification of the Volstead act, in a proclamation sent to Labor day gatherings throughout the country.

MATTHEW WOLL.

"There are nearly five million organized workers," said Mr. Woll's proclamation. "This great army, in labor meetings, will consider labor's outstanding problems. Chief among these are unemployment and the denial of freedom through Volsteadism."

"Volsteadism is a basic cause of unemployment and crime. We have the strength in coöperation with the great numbers friendly to our cause to overthrow Volsteadism through modification this winter.

"By the proper mobilization and direction of this great strength we can win a victory that will release great energies to provide employment, bring material benefit to wage earner and farmer, and turn the tide against the repression of freedom that is typified by Volsteadism."

Mr. Woll asserted that modification of the Volstead act means employment. He pointed out that it means also a market for grains and an occupation for workers, and declared in addition that it would mean a "death blow to a brand of crime that has grown out of prohibition as defined by the Volstead act."

'FINDS' JEWEL MINE FROM WHICH QUEEN OF SHEBA DREW WEALTH

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Rubies, diamonds, platinum and gold, such as the Queen of Sheba is supposed to have worn when she visited King Solomon, were brought to London today by Frank Payter, big game hunter, from mines he believes were the sources of the Queen of Sheba's wealth. Payter found the gems and treasure in a cavern hidden in the unexplored country 320 miles due west of Addis Ababa, Abyssinia. He intends to organize a new expedition within a few months to go back and get what he left behind.

"I am sure it is one of the caverns from which the Queen of Sheba drew her great wealth," Payter said.

An old Arab, he said, gave an English mining engineer a map in 1930 which the engineer showed Payter. The two men, he said, worked out the directions and discovered the treasure. There has been frequent mention in literature of the supposedly rich jewel and metal mines in the Abyssinian area.

50% OF GERMAN BUILDING IS OF GLASS AND STEEL

Architects Favor New and Radical Designs.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—Steel and glass are the basic construction material of about 50 per cent of all new buildings erected in Germany in recent years. The slender arches and columns of steel as framework for huge panels of glass of all colors can be seen in almost all churches, office buildings, railroad stations and factories built by Germany's young architects. The new building method is gaining rapidly in favor.

The inspiration for this new architecture comes from America. Prof. Walter Gropius, one of the pioneers in using steel and glass building, said:

"America has developed the wonderful technique of steel skyscraper construction. But it has hitherto been left to let the buildings speak for themselves and tell what they are. It has been thought necessary to pour them in molds borrowed from past styles, imported from Europe.

Awaits New Style.

"I wait for the time when the American people will have enough of all this, when they will let their tall buildings of steel and glass be themselves in form as well as construction; then form and construction will be one, and a new style will be born."

German architects see in their steel and glass buildings the fulfillment of the dream of the great master architects of the Gothic period.

"The columns of the churches the old masters built encircled huge stained glass windows, through which light flowed beautifully into their buildings," Prof. Gropius continued. "With modern technical knowledge at our disposal we can make slimmer columns of steel and let still more light and sun pour into our building."

New Function for Walls.

"With modern steel construction, walls cease to have their time honored function of burden bearers. The beams and girders riveted into one massive, yet light, rigid, pliant framework, carry the load. Walls become simply shells—and they can just as well be made of one protecting substance as another, as far as strength is concerned. In fact, the lighter the nature of the covering stuff, the better."

The new methods have proved so satisfactory to their owners that architects who formerly specialized in the heavy gingerbread style of the late 19th century or the "Wilhelminian" style can find no customers.

Business men who could not afford entirely new buildings have had the new principles adapted to their old buildings and have found that the cleaning and publicity value of the new outside justified the remodeling cost.

Follow Radical Practice.

In almost all new steel and glass buildings, the radical and successful practice is followed of putting the window-walls wall outside of the great concrete and iron pillars which bear the load. In that way, a literally unbroken front of steel-framed glass may be installed, extending from just below the roof to near the ground.

Such a building is that of the famous Bauhaus, architectural engineering school in Dessau, designed by Prof. Gropius. Two walls are of this nature. The other two carry out the idea of windows in consecutive "bands."

An architect who has probably carried the possibilities of glass to the utmost point in his plans is Mies van der Rohe. In one of his designs for a seven story office building, we see what appears to be a stack of trays, held apart from each other by pillars passing through them from top to bottom. Each of these represents the floor of one story. All else is glass in steel frames.

Another Modern Design.

Several jumps ahead of even this is the scheme for a thirty story apartment building. This resembles a lighting fixture in which rows of disks are mounted on a rod. Only here, instead of the disks being of glass, they represent the floors and they are the only things which are not glass—existing, of course, the great steel supporting pillar which runs up the middle.

The reaction of many to the sight or description of glass construction for dwelling houses is: "O, but what becomes of privacy?" For it seems almost like the traditional plight of the goldfish in his bowl. The architects point out that it is the simplest part of the whole construction to set up curtains which can be run around to cut off as much of the window walls as desired.

As for business blocks, the very transparency is a gain, for at night daylighting is used to produce novel and rythmic effects.

Example Is Cited.

One of the finest German examples of this is the Schocken store building in Stuttgart. One corner of the building projects in a semi-circle. It is glass from bottom to top. Inside the stairway with its railings is seen zigzagging rythmically from floor to floor. By day it is a means of climbing; at night indirect illumination makes it a thing of beauty and mystery.

Some of the new buildings have fire escapes enclosed in glass.

The beauties possible in steel and glass are illustrated by the famous "steel church" of Cologne and Essen. This church began life in 1926 at the Pressa exhibition in the former city. It was later taken down (another advantage of the construction) and transported to Essen, where it became the fourth church of steel in the city.

Stained Glass for Windows.

The architect was Otto Bartning. Stained glass was used for all the great window space, with modern religious designs by Elizabeth Coester. The utmost simplicity prevailed inside, and the pillars were rectangular and severe, yet the effect was one of richness and reverence.

The ideal heating system for the glass and steel system has recently come out of England, under the name of "panel system." This system puts the radiator in the ceiling, spreading over most of the room. Warm [not hot] water circulates and heat radiates evenly through the room.

As for costs, experience has shown German architects that four story or more steel and glass buildings are cheaper to build than the same buildings carried out in old fashioned materials.

NAB 150 CHINESE REDS ON DUTCH EAST INDIAN ISLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Sept. 6.—One hundred and fifty Chinese communists were arrested on the Dutch East Indian island of Riou, headquarters of communist propagandists who have fled from Singapore, according to dispatches received from Surabaya today. A secret communist agency for the far east at Shanghai was revealed recently by the arrest of the chief agitator, Noulens, a member of the Moscow executive department. He was shown to have direct relations with communist agents in Japan, the Philippines, Malacca, and the Dutch East Indies. Seized papers are said to have proved that $500,000 was spent in the last few months by the organization which Noulens headed.

FINAL HOLIDAY OF SUMMER ENTICES THRONG TO ROADS

Expect Half Million Cars on Highways Today.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Haven, Mich., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Here on the eastern shore of Lake Michigan, approximately 125 miles by highway from Chicago, the pavements are crowded today with a majority of the cars bearing the official windshield sticker which distinguishes their drivers as residents of the metropolis. It's the final summer holiday traffic rush of the year, and the scene here is one that is being duplicated at other resort centers within a radius of 150 miles from Chicago, particularly in the lake regions of Wisconsin, northern Indiana, and northern Illinois.

Last night, automobiles, many carrying picnic or outing paraphernalia, were speeding northward for a double holiday in the woods, lakes, golf links, streams and beaches of Michigan. The drivers were men who got through work at noon on Saturday, hurried home for their waiting families and then stepped on the accelerator for the open road.

There was a similar stream of north bound traffic this forenoon, impatient city folks speeding through the country. Many must have left Chicago at an early hour because it's a four-hour drive here from the loop, maintaining an ordinary pace.

Home from Vacation Land.

This afternoon, Chicago cars heavily loaded with baggage and many with summer cottage equipment formed a heavy south bound traffic. They were en route home from vacations, many to enroll their children in school with the beginning of the semester on Tuesday. They were returning tonight so as to escape the annual Labor day highway congestion.

Tomorrow those who are spending the double holiday in the country will be motoring back to the city with those who are returning from summer homes at the end of the school vacation period. If the weather remains as attractive as it is today, there will also be thousands driving from Chicago in the morning to return at night.

Police and traffic men estimate there will be a half million automobiles carrying one and a half million passengers on the pavements of the metropolitan area tomorrow. Drivers are warned to exercise more than ordinary caution, to maintain a speed that keeps up with the average of traffic, and on the wider roads to keep to the right except when passing.

THE TRIBUNE road car was sent here this week-end to inspect a new shore line pavement, shortening the distance and missing miles of bad road between South Haven and Benton Harbor. The Chicago Motor club reported it was open three days ago. It was closed to traffic but it was traveled by a few local cars.

Opens New Science Route.

The new road, when its connection with Benton Harbor is finished and the shoulders are graveled will carry the U. S. 31 markers which now lead traffic northeast from Benton Harbor through Coloma and Watervliet and around Paw Paw lake for a ride north on a bituminous pavement with broken edges and bumps that make driving at any speed dangerous.

The shore line route, nearing completion, consists of eighteen miles of concrete swinging gracefully through the wooded sand dunes with frequent views of Lake Michigan. It is free of billboards and hot dog stands, the state has sodded the slopes where the crowns of hills were graded, and the heavy second growth of timber is unmarred by man. The road is opening to travelers miles of country heretofore virtually inaccessible.

The countryside, in this last rush of summer tourists, reflected the change of seasons. Orchards and vineyards were heavy with fruit. In some fields there were shocks of corn. In the woods an occasional maple had leaves of bright red.

WASHBURN CHILD, AUTHOR, TO WED HIS HOUSEKEEPER

Newport, R. I., Sept. 6. — (AP) — Members of the household of Richard Washburn Child, author and diplomat, said today he was planning to marry his housekeeper, Mrs. Dorothy Gallagher Everson. The wedding is expected to take place in the fall. Mr. Child and Mrs. Everson were away.

Mrs. Everson will be Child's third wife. He married Maude Parker, an author, in 1916. They were divorced in Paris in 1926. On Sept. 11, 1927, he married Miss Eva Sanderson, then his literary secretary, and they were divorced in Newport in December, 1930.

Mrs. Everson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gallagher of Newport.

years that increased taxation will retard business recovery, not to mention a possible adverse effect upon the President's prospects of reelection. The other half favors a balancing of the budget without delay by means of additional taxation. Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon has indicated that he stands with the latter group. He opposes any increase of surtaxes, but favors a lowering of exemptions so as to extend the income tax to several millions of people with incomes now exempt. He would also impose gasoline and other excise taxes.

There has been a marked revival of discussion of a sales tax such as Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah] unsuccessfully fought for some years ago. Whereupon an outcry of protest has been hard from farmer and labor constituencies.

Would Prune Bureaus.

In outlining his views of government economising Congressman Beck took issue with the proposals of Representative William R. Wood [Rep., Ind.], chairman of the house appropriations committee, that army and navy expenditures be slashed. He thought the place to prune is in "some of the recently created departments of the government which are honeycombed with bureaus which would never be missed." In all the departments, he asserted, there are "many superfluous employés, some of whom do not do on an average of one hour's work a day."

"There is no occasion for a coalition cabinet, as in England, for our cabinet members are not, as in England, the leading members of parliament," said Mr. Beck. "The necessity of a coalition, which would rise above politics is in congress and if the best men of both parties would declare a moratorium on party politics and elect some fair minded and outstanding man as speaker would combine to cut public expenditures to the bone, there would be an immediate change for the better in our economic situation. There is no reason whatever, except party politics, why governmental expenditures could not be reduced from five billions to three billions, especially if we suspend during the period of this crisis further payments to the sinking fund.

Millions Go to Bootleggers.

"There should be no additional taxation, for existing taxes have contributed much to the demoralization of business in this country. I say this with one exception, and that is that it ought to be monstrous to every fair minded man that 500 million dollars of a possible revenue are taken from the government and largely turned over to the bootleggers, who have used these funds to build up the most appalling conspiracy against law and order that any nation has witnessed in modern times.

"In my judgment, as a student of the constitution, there is no constitutional reason why congress could not declare light wines and malted liquors nonintoxicating in fact and then proceed to impose a heavy excise tax upon these luxuries. If we adopted this simple expedient and abolished all the unnecessary and meddlesome bureaus, with which the executive departments are honeycombed, we could easily cut the necessities of taxation by two billions of dollars. There would then be no deficit, but on the contrary a large surplus; business would be less burdened and would take heart, and the wheels of industry, now sunk in the mire of industrial prostration, would again move.

Sees Fateful Session Ahead.

"Unless the coming congress, which may prove to be one of the most critical since the foundation of the government, can be impressed by a public demand that such a program be carried out, then the congress, in the habit of all legislative bodies, will drift along in its ever-increasing expenditures for unnecessary purposes.

"Let us beware of the fate of England. Its wealth also seemed inexhaustible, but today its business has been strangled by excessive taxation for socialistic purposes and the stability of the pound is only maintained by the aid of France and the United States."

CHICAGO FLYER, LOST, CRASHES IN GRAVEYARD

Flying alone in a cabin plane, Edward G. Hall of 7943 Kedvale avenue, Niles Center, was critically injured last night at Youngstown, O., when he became lost in the darkness and crashed his ship into a cemetery.

Hall is 45 years old and is employed as a communication engineer by the Chicago Surface Lines. He was granted a pilot's license several months ago and owned his own plane, which he flew for pleasure. Last night's accident occurred while he was flying to the national air races at Cleveland.

Officials at the Youngstown airport heard the roar of Hall's plane. Fearing he might be lost, they lit special flares and induced scores of motorists to flood the field with their headlights. Hall apparently failed to recognize the signals. He zoomed 200 feet above ground and into the flood lights of a golf practice course two miles away. Then he swerved south, at a low altitude, and cracked up in the cemetery, a few miles farther. His plane was demolished. He was internally injured and was taken to St. Elizabet's hospital, Youngstown.

PLANE PLUNGES IN OCEAN; PILOT, 2 GIRLS KILLED

Santa Cruz, Cal., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Two school girls and an aviator were killed in the fall of a seaplane into the ocean here today while 10,000 holiday pleasure seekers crowded the beach.

The dead are Annette Keiser, 15, and her sister, Katherine, 11, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Keiser, ranch owners of Sanger, Cal., and George Robinson, 22, Santa Cruz pilot, who had been taking passengers for short flights.

The plane had circled the bay and was nearing the pier when its nose went up. The ship stalled, then went into a spin and fell 150 feet into the ocean.

ZEPPELIN NEARS FRANCE ON HOP OVER ATLANTIC

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin on its way back from Pernambuco, Brazil, to Friedrichshafen, at 9:45 o'clock tonight said in a wireless message to its headquarters here that it was heading toward La Rochelle, France, and expected to land here tomorrow at noon.

HAMBURG, Germany, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Hamburg-American line reported tonight that the Graf Zeppelin had passed over Cape Finisterre, Spain, on its homeward voyage from Brazil.

ASK EXTRA SESSION FOR 'HUNGER LOAN' OF THREE BILLIONS

New York, Sept. 6.— (AP)— The League for Independent Action, of which Dr. John Dewey is the head, today addressed to President Hoover a plea for a special session of congress to deal with unemployment, and for a "hunger loan" of "at least 3 billion dollars."

The letter, forwarded by Howard Y. Williams, executive secretary, urged that the money be appropriated for public buildings to include housing of workers and construction of roads, river development and electric power lines in agricultural regions. In part the communication said:

"Hundreds of men and women are taking their lives every month in America because they will not face little families that they cannot feed, and so they end their lives. There have been over 1,800 suicides this year in New York City alone largely due to this cause."

THREE INJURED IN PLANE CRASH ON SOUTH SIDE

Three persons were injured, none seriously, when the airplane in which they were riding yesterday crashed at Ashburn field, Cicero avenue and 83d street. They were taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital in Evergreen Park where they were found to be suffering from cuts and bruises.

Joseph Heitz, 31 years old, 4531 Ellis avenue, the pilot and part owner of the plane, took off from the field with Marvin Pierce, 31 years old, 1524 East 66th place, and Stanley Durkee, 26 years old, 2030 Churchill street, as passengers. When Heitz reached an altitude of 300 feet he attempted to make a right bank. The ship struck an air pocket, its nose dipped and it went into a half spin. Before Heitz could right it the ship pancaked to the ground.

Heitz is not a licensed pilot but told the police he has been flying since 1919 and has more than 1,200 hours to his credit. He and Clyde Hadsworth, 4625 Greenwood avenue, own the plane, an Eagle Rock powered with a Curtis OX-5 motor.

Student Pilot Is Killed When His Plane Crashes

Ottumwa, Ia., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Herbert C. Wells, 33, student pilot from Omaha, Neb., was killed when a Buell bullpup monoplane went into a spin at 300 feet over the Legion airport today. Floyd Cliff, 18, of Ottumwa, a spectator, suffered a fractured leg when the plane struck him.

tude. Her time beat that of Mrs. Haizlip, in second place, by more than 22 miles an hour in average, and the time made by Miss Klingensmith by more than 27 miles an hour average.

Mrs. Haizlip flew a production model Laird, powered by a Wasp Junior motor and Miss Klingensmith a Cessna, powered by a Kinner motor. Mrs. Joan Shankle of Fort Sill, Okla., was fourth in her Lockheed; Phoebe Omlie of Memphis, winner of the transcontinental sweepstakes derby, was fifth in her Monocoupe, and Mrs. Betty Lund of Troy, O., sixth in her Waco biplane. Mrs. Opal Kunz of New York was seventh in her Travelair, and Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, Cal., eighth and last in her Waco biplane.

Makes 222 Miles an Hour.

Robert Hall flew the Gee Bee powered by a Wasp Jr., the plane that broke the American and world speed records unofficially, at an average speed of 222.623 miles an hour over five laps of the ten mile course to win a race for both men and women pilots. This rate is twenty-one miles an hour faster than the rate set by Speed Holman to win last year's Thompson trophy race at Chicago.

Second place was taken by James Wedell of Patterson, La., flying the Wedell Williams Special, powered by Wasp Jr., at an average of 221 miles an hour. James Haizlip of Chicago, in a production type Laird, powered by Wasp Jr., was third at an average of 164 miles an hour.

Von Gronau Visits Races.

Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, German trans-Atlantic flier, swung his twin motored Dornier flying boat, the Groenland Wal, over the airport this afternoon at the end of a flight from Chicago, where he terminated his flight from Germany by way of Greenland last Tuesday. Capt. von Gronau landed the boat on Lake Erie and motored inland to visit the races with his crew of three.

As Capt. von Gronau swung his flying boat over the airport, Capt. Frank Hawks, whose coast-to-coast record Maj. James H. Doolittle broke Friday after winning the Bendix trophy race, zoomed in front of the stands at the end of a flight from Concord, N. H. Capt. Hawks complimented Doolittle's record flight, but refused to say when he will attempt to regain the record.

William S. Brock and E. F. Schlee, around the world flyers, landed after flying the plane of George F. Harding of Chicago from New York with Mr. Harding and a party of friends. Mr. Harding recently returned from an air tour of Europe in his Fleetster plane.

The Diesel powered Bellanca monoplane in which the world's nonrefueling endurance record of 81½ hours was established by Walter E. Lees and Fred A. Brossy, arrived with Lees at the stick.

Dale Jackson Enters Trophy Race.

Dale "Red" Jackson landed in the Sweet Kiss Laird solution plane that speed Holman flew to win last year's Thompson trophy race at Chicago, and said the landing was forced, as he ran out of gas on arriving at the airport from St. Louis, where he got the ship, which is entered in the Thompson trophy race tomorrow afternoon. Jackson, with Forrest O'Brine, twice has set world refueling endurance records.

Jackson is replacing Lee Shoenhair as pilot of the Sweet Kiss, he told contest committee members, because Shoenhair is completely worn out by ten days of rushed work preparing the planes for the races. Shoenhair overturned the ship at St. Louis en route to Los Angeles to start in the Bendix trophy race. Since then, the plane has been repaired.

Wins Race Then Cracks Up.

Ray Moore, of San Francisco, "Hardest flying pilot west of the Rockies," won another terrific speed grind in the mysterious silver knife plane designed by Keith Ryder of San Francisco, at an average speed of 185 miles an hour, and in landing the fast little plane cracked up the landing gear when the motor cut out and he pancaked from forty feet. Repairs are being rushed on the plane to have it ready for the Thompson trophy grind tomorrow.

Johnny Livingston of Aurora, Ill., in a monocoupe at 149 miles an hour was second, and Ben O. Howard, Chicago air mail pilot, third. Vernon Roberts of Moline, Ill., took sixth and Arthur Killips, of Lyons, Ill., eighth.

Livingston's score for the meet was raised to eight firsts and three seconds, and a total of $5,680 in prize money. Howard's score was raised to two seconds and two-thirds, and a total of $2,100 in prize money.

Winston Kratz of Chicago took second place in a dead stick landing contest for men, losing first place to Roger Don Rae of East Lansing, Mich., by only 3½ inches. Yesterday Kratz won first place in the event.

Lieut. William Newhall of the Illinois National Guard aviation unit, stationed at Chicago municipal airport, won second place in the National Guard race for the Douglas trophy, covering the fifty mile course at an average speed of 143 miles an hour, losing to Capt. J. K. Gill of the Ohio National Guard by a fraction of a mile an hour. Lieut. Newhall flew an O-38 B type Douglas observation plane.

Bank Clerk's Dream Becomes Record Breaking Speed Plane

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Matty Laird, designer of the speed plane, Maj. James H. Doolittle flew from Los Angeles to Newark, N. J., to break the coast to coast speed record, and with which the famous pilot hopes to win the Thompson trophy race tomorrow, saved his money when he worked as an assistant paying teller in the First National bank of Chicago twenty years ago to buy parts and build his first plane.

E. M. LAIRD.

Matty didn't learn speed plane designing in a technical school, but learned as a boy, building winning model airplanes propelled by rubber bands, later by building and teaching himself to fly his first plane and then in the school of hard knocks as a stunt pilot barnstorming throughout the middle west, building planes in one of the early factories at Wichita, Kas., and teaching army cadets how to fly during the war.

Working for More Speed.

Today Matty had more important things on his mind than interviews as he sweated with a gang of mechanics removing the motor from Doolittle's plane and installing another, a faster, motor in preparation for the gruelling Thompson trophy grind.

Between shouted orders—and with one eye always on the work in progress—Matty told the story of his rise to fame as an airplane designer, starting with a pile of castoff parts, a monkey wrench, and a mountain of ambition and ending in today's limelight.

"Back in 1910 the old Chicago Record Herald contracted with Walter Brookins to make a series of flights on the outskirts of Chicago in an old model B Wright plane," Matty related. "I saw those flights and decided I would build and fly an airplane some day. Then I was working as an office boy in the First National bank, but I began to save my money to build model planes.

Won a Tribune Prize.

"I joined the Illinois Model Airplane club and won a number of contests with my rubber band planes, and right there I learned many of the fundamentals I am applying today in designing airplanes."

Laird first appeared in the public eye as winner of a CHICAGO TRIBUNE prize in a model airplane contest in September, 1911, at an air meet conducted by William Stout, now engineer for the Ford aeronautical department.

"In 1912 I bought a collection of old parts and built my own plane and motor and then taught myself to fly it," Laird continued.

"Until 1915 I continued to work at the bank, where I had become an assistant paying teller by that time, and spent all of my spare time and money improving my airplane and flying it. Then when I left the bank I began barnstorming around the middle west—stunting at county fairs and everywhere I could attract a crowd to pay to see me take my plane up and nearly tear the wings off it.

"That first plane, by the way, was the fuselage type, and I was a pioneer in that type of construction."

"During my years as a barnstorming stunt pilot I flew with such old timers as Katherine Stinson, Dell Loyd Thompson, and Art Smith, who used to fly along the lake front in Chicago.

"In the spring of 1917 at San Antonio I cracked up flying an experimental ship and spent several months in the hospital. About that time I turned to designing planes, more than flying them, and started an airplane factory in Wichita, Kas., where we built the original Laird Swallows."

Laird still has a decided limp and cotton white hair as a memento of that crackup.

Modern Plane Design Started.

"The Laird Swallows had the beginnings of all modern plane design and men who worked for me in that factory since then have begun building planes under their own names—such men as Lloyd Stearman, Walter Beach, later president of Travelair; George E. Weaver, who started the Waco Aircraft company, and others.

"Maj. Doolittle's Laird is a 'speed wing super-solution' and is an improvement over the first 'speed wing solution' we built last year. The first solution was flown by Speed Holman in last year's Thompson trophy race in Chicago, and Holman won first place at an average speed of more than 200 miles an hour.

"Doolittle's motor will have about 530 horsepower, compared to the 460 horsepower Holman's motor had."

Matty Laird, better known as Emil Matthew Laird, is only 36 years old. He has his factory at Ashburn field, 83d street and Cicero avenue, Chicago, and lives at 1437 Plaisance court. He has two brothers, both younger, Harold, who has just recently learned to fly, and C. L., who is about ready for his solo flight.

Identifies Lake Victim as Her Missing Husband

The body of a man recovered from the lake at the Navy pier on Friday was identified yesterday as that of Anton Kebrdle, 40 years old, 1410 South Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn. The identification was made by Kebrdle's widow, Anna. East Chicago avenue police learned he was injured in an accident in Berwyn a week ago and had been missing from his home since then.

Police yesterday sought two Negro bandits, believed to have been the slayers of John Roche, 25 years old, 4416 Wallace street, a taxicab driver, who was shot to death early yesterday in front of 4059 South Dearborn street. Roche apparently was shot when he leaped from his cab to resist a hold-up attempt. A jack handle was found beside his body. Fireman Marshal Crohan, a member of squad 3, with headquarters at 4005 South Dearborn street, saw the two Negroes fleeing from the scene.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A PERMANENT BENEFIT AND IMMEDIATE RELIEF.

State Representative Soderstrom of La Salle in a strong statement supporting the Austin-Kinzie elevated highway proposal expresses the viewpoint of the communities outside of Chicago. "The motorists of La Salle county," he says, "appreciate the need of a west side elevated highway into Chicago probably more than many Chicagoans. In our business and commercial trips into the metropolis we have smooth and fast travel over concrete highways until we reach the outskirts of the city. Then there is from seven to ten miles of nerve shattering delay and hazard in the congestion of the city's inadequate streets." And he points out that La Salle county "profits by its proximity to Chicago just as Chicago profits by its proximity to La Salle county. With the construction of an elevated highway at the western entrance of the city, with adequate pavement connections, the communities will be brought closer together and there will be mutual benefit."

This includes, of course, not only La Salle county but the whole area which has important business and social relations with Chicago, and the need for improving means of easy, safe, and speedy communication is urgent both for the sake of Chicago and the state. When to this important consideration is added the special need for supplying work in the present emergency and the fact that ample funds are available, the argument for expeditious action is overwhelming.

We think Representative Soderstrom will have the support of all disinterested citizens in and out of Chicago when he asserts that "the construction of the elevated highway this winter—not at some indefinite date in the future—is an obligation upon the state that Gov. Emmerson cannot deny."

THE YOUNG UPSTART OF THE ARMY.

If the summer of 1931 had contributed nothing to the world's amusement except the failure of the army flyers to sink the Mount Shasta it would have been a pretty good summer. That failure is not likely to be displaced as the Joke of the Year. The Mount Shasta, a sizable merchant ship, so old she was not worth breaking up, was anchored off the Virginia capes. The army flyers were to destroy her with bombs, and they let it be known that it would all be over in jig time. Then bombers spent a day looking for a ship at anchor and returned without having found her. The next day they flew out again and dropped thirty-eight bombs, of which only two struck the target. The ship remained afloat and would still be afloat if the coast guard had not sunk her with gunfire.

Considering all the extravagant conversation and writing by airmen to the effect that the air forces have rendered the navy obsolete, this was pretty funny. The Young Upstart who boasted how good he was and how he could lick anybody, no matter how big, when put to the test showed that he couldn't lick even an ancient cripple. We hope it will not spoil the joke to inquire how the Young Upstart got that way.

The army air service, of course, is the child of the army. It has, therefore, always been under the domination of the generals and the general staff, and this was particularly true in the tender youth of the service in 1917 and 1918. Then the generals were appointed solely upon the qualification of old age. This is called the rule of seniority. As it was applied in the world war, the generals were the oldest men in the army who could stand the strain of service in a château. And as for the general staff, it was composed of younger men who had won their appointments through their profound study of the wars of the past, from the campaigns of the Great Alexander and Hannibal down to the Franco-Prussian war on which they specialized.

The generals were getting to the point of life where the mind closes to new ideas; and the men of the general staff were not enthusiastic for anything new in warfare, because their tenure in their jobs was founded upon their knowledge of the old. If new methods were to be given esteem the staff prestige was jeopardized.

It does not take a profound psychologist to understand in the light of this analysis why the air force became boastful, cocky, and somewhat thin-skinned. Its attitude toward the other services was already clearly developed under Brig. Gen. Mitchell. As the grandees in the army took the position that the air force was of small consequence, the air force reciprocated by thinking and saying on every possible occasion that the air force was more valuable than the rest of the army and navy combined and some day would prove it if given half a chance. And that, in turn, did not make for better feeling.

A few centuries ago the artillery arm had to go through much the same sort of hazing of the new boy before being accepted on terms of substantial equality with the cavalry and infantry. It is not without significance that artillerymen likewise were proud, boastful, touchy, and clannish during their period of initiation.

Of course, the air arm has its limitations, but airmen will never recognize them until the other arms adopt a less resentful attitude toward the flying service. Probably the end of the feud is in sight, for every student officer, either in the army or the navy, is now required to learn to fly. The regulation should be extended to include every officer, old or young. The ability to fly is today as essential in the military profession as the ability to ride a horse used to be. When every officer can fly and every officer has a first-hand knowledge of the possibilities and limitations of air warfare the extravagant claims of the airmen and the no less extravagant disparagements of the other services will cease and the air force will take its rightful place in the scheme of national defense. And not before.

BUT DON'T FORGET THE EMPLOYED.

It is a troubled world in whigh we are living, but it might be a good deal worse. There speaks Pollyanna, perhaps; but it must be remembered that Pollyanna was only half a fool, the other half being Mr. McCutcheon's old friend, Lugubrious Blue.

To be sure there are millions more out of employment today than normally; but at worst the number of unemployed is much smaller than the number who are working and have been working steadily since 1929. Meanwhile prices have receded markedly and the millions who are earning wages or salaries are better off than they have ever been before. They are receiving, in effect, a wage increase every time the index of retail prices takes another tumble. As much, of course, is to be said of the host who receive fairly stable incomes from investment.

To point this out, of course, is not to say that all is right as right can be. But it does suggest from what direction the pickup will come, and it does offer a considerable hope that an improvement is not as remote as many tired watchers fear. It is not without significance that the manufacturers of mechanical refrigerators have been able to report a steady increase in volume throughout the depression. There is a vast amount of buying power in the country, and it is growing as prices decline.

As the current review of business by the National City Bank of New York puts it: "There is no question but that prices of many commodities are rapidly getting to levels which constitute a strong inducement to buyers . . . An outstanding feature of the situation, and one which suggests the natural way out of the present business impasse, is the notable response generally accorded by the public to offers of goods for sale at real bargain prices. Where real values are available there appears to be little hesitancy in buying . . ."

With a given income able to buy more goods than it has in a generation, with a growing demand for replacements and additional comforts, there is no justification for despair.

FOREIGN ENTANGLEMENTS.

A report from Paris respecting recent diplomatic exchanges between the French and Italian governments looking to an agreement on armament policy asserts that the offices of our government have been employed in conciliation. This, if authentic, is significant of our drift away from the policy of freedom from unnecessary foreign entanglements. Our government cannot intervene in such a vital national concern as the reduction or limitation of armament without incurring responsibilities. We have been told repeatedly, and THE TRIBUNE is entirely in sympathy with the protest, that our government has no commission to advise or admonish the governments and peoples of Europe. The notion is that we must pay up or shut up, or, in other words, that if we want the European governments to follow a course we approve it is not going to be granted because of the high motives which animate us but for some substantial quid pro quo. We have not heard and we do not believe the good offices of our government have been formally invited by either the French or Italian government. But, even if they were, we cannot avoid responsibility, or, in the better American term, entanglement, if we exercise them.

Justification for such activity will be based on the theory that we are engaged in an effort to bring about reduction or limitation of armament, and therefore are concerned to remove any obstacles wherever they appear. But there is no mandate from the American people to sacrifice our policy of independence from political entanglement for the sake of what may be obtained through international trading in the way of limitations or even reductions in armament.

The Other Side

CHICAGO THIRSTETH FOR FEDERAL MONEY BROOKS.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

In a witty editorial THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE draws a picture of California in pirate rig rifling Uncle Sam's pockets of $167,000,000 for a free gift of Boulder dam water. That newspaper speaks of "scandalous evidence that under shrewd handling Uncle Sam is a prize chump."

The Chicago editor has heretofore evolved much sarcasm about California's success at the federal treasury counter—Boulder dams, army air bases, navy dirigible bases, and the like—suggesting that the treasury might as well be moved to the coast and save trouble, and lamenting that Illinois shows so little of this go-getter spirit.

All good clean fun.

However.

On the same page with this satirical discussion of California and her federal loot may be observed a leading editorial, in which THE TRIBUNE points out that under color of unemployment relief much federal money is likely to be appropriated this winter, and urges Chicago and Illinois to sharpen their hooks and drag in all they can of this coin for quite a list of desirable improvements in the locality.

A better harbor for Chicago.

Ditto for Waukegan.

A harbor of refuge between the two.

A harbor for Calumet.

Improvement of the Fox river channel.

The getting this winter is pictured as likely to be good and Chicago will be blamable if she does not use both hands.

"Shrewd handling" is clearly suggested. But in this case will or will not Uncle Sam be proved a prize chump?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

AND NOW WE'RE GOING to sell some of our expensive wheat that the country bought from the farmers through the w. k. farm board to China. We're taking fifteen million bushels of wheat out of cold storage, and, while it cost us twelve million dollars, China gets it for seven million. Which is pretty soft for China, but, as far as the rest of us are concerned, not so good. We wish our benevolent government would buy winter overcoats at, say, eighty dollars apiece and let us have them at, say, fifty bucks. That would be nice with us needing a good warm overcoat and a hard winter coming on. And we don't say we're any better, but we think we're just as good as a Chinaman, anyhow. And, besides, we intend to be around here for some time, and, as we wouldn't pay cash for the coat because China isn't paying cash for the wheat, there would be every opportunity for the government to hound us down and get its money. But Chinese governments are here today and gone tomorrow. And an eighty dollar overcoat for fifty! Something ought to be done about this. Write to your congressman today.

ARIADNE HOLDS OPEN HOUSE.

"There should be a gathering place
For shades of love ill-fated,
Where one might go and finally learn
How uselessly one waited." —Judy Shea.

No longer do the shores of Naxos ring
With lovely Ariadne's cries alone,
Flung to a lover's disappearing sail,
Telling the tale of ecstasies outgrown.

No longer through the stilly, brooding night
Does she recall with tears his rapturous kiss,
Nor count in solitude through tedious days
Those unforgetting hours of mutual bliss.

They throng with poem passports to that isle,
Dear ladies, with complaining amorous peeves
To join Theseus' jilted sweetheart; there
Like her to wear a heart upon a sleeve.

But lest you think that only modern maids
Have lost the power man's nomad feet to stay,
Recall those "true confessions" (date B. C.)
Bewailing knights who loved and rode away.

I wonder what the insects think
Of my sprinkler on the grass?
Surely they must pause to stare,
Pause to wonder ere they pass.

Miracle of crystal drops,
Lovely wind-blown fountain spray,
Do the crickets cool themselves
On a summer's day?

Do the grasshoppers go home
Breathless at the vision seen,
Diamonds falling everywhere
On the grasses green?

What do ants and spiders think
Of the water mountain?
Do they bring their friends to view
My small home-made fountain?

THIS COLUMN OF CALUMNY is getting so much advertisement in the local rags that we are compelled to come forth from our violet bower of retirement and offer suitable acknowledgment. First, there is our old friend James Weber Linn, who for several months now has been shouting his wares from the Daily Times under the heading "Linn's Line." When this first came out we were so overcome with the gross flattery that we were unable to rise and make the graceful bow the occasion surely demanded. But when the Daily News ran a box on its first page Saturday calling every one's attention in bold black letters to "THE MORNING LINE" we knew something had to be done. Gentlemen, James Weber and Col. Knox, separately and collectively, unaccustomed as we are to public speaking and so forth, we thank you.

HOW SCOUTS TREAT SNAKE BITE.

THE following information about snake bite is that given to Boy Scouts, through their magazine and every other official channel. Through the Scouts it is hoped to have the facts get into the homes.

There are few poisonous varieties of snakes in North America. Of these, none exist in large numbers except water moccasins in several localities, and rattlesnakes in a few. Of the poisonous snakes but few are large enough to carry a dose of poison that will kill an adult. Most of the time the large, poison carrying snakes have only a small dose of poison stored in the poison sac. If a large poison carrying snake with a full dose bites through the clothing much of the poison will fail to get into the person bitten. Therefore, why get panicky about snakes?

If a person is bitten he should make an effort to find out whether the snake is of a poisonous variety.

The steps in treatment, as the Scouts learn them, are:

1. Apply a light tourniquet to the limb above the bite. As the swelling rises the tourniquet should be released and applied further up. Avoid putting it on too tight, or leaving it on too long.
2. Cut across from one tooth mark to another, so as to make a bleeding, oozing wound about as deep as the teeth entered.
3. Suck the blood and lymph out of the wound. Use the mouth, a thimble, breast pump, water glass, bicycle pump—whatever is handy. Keep up suction for one-half hour. Repeat for 15 minutes out of each hour for several hours.

Send for a physician. Use antivenin if it is available. Use it freely. The dose given generally is too small and it is not repeated often enough. The instructions do not refer to permanganate solution. When used in a test tube this chemical is efficient, but under practical conditions its use does more harm than good.

Nor are the Scouts advised to give whisky. This drug is not an antidote and harm is done if it is used as such. In the old days whisky given for snake bite killed more people from acute alcoholism than snakes killed by biting.

If the patient is profoundly affrighted and shocked, quiet his nerves by morphine or some opiate; or, if that is not available, by some other sedative. "Scouting" says: "It is undoubtedly true that fright kills many people who have suffered only from the bite of a nonpoisonous snake." Therefore it is important for the bitten man to keep up his courage, and to remain quiet physically and mentally.

Practically these same directions have been given in this column once a year for about ten years. They are approved by the United States public health service, and they have been confirmed by the research and clinical experience of Dr. Dudley Jackson and Col. M. L. Crimmons.

HARD WATER AND ROWING.

E. K. writes:

1. I have been going to a resort for several years where the water is so hard that I am troubled with constipation all the time I am there. I never have such trouble at home. Would it become a habit if I ate a senna leaf with my meals, or what would you suggest?

2. What would you think of a woman 69 years old exercising on a rowing machine to strengthen the shoulders and reduce the abdomen? I am becoming round shouldered, and it seems to be my only weakness. I am perfectly well in every way, but can't seem to hold my shoulders back when I am tired. I take long walks every day. My shoulders were always my weak spot.

REPLY.

1. If you must take a laxative, eating a senna leaf with your meals is about as near harmless as any. It is not probable that drinking hard water is responsible for your constipation.

2. Certainly it will do you no harm. If you have persistence enough it should do you good. With most people, such exercise is "on again, off again."

TWILIGHT SLEEP.

E. M. writes:

1. Do you approve of twilight sleep? If you do or do not could you give the reason why?

2. Could you explain its effects, and tell just what it is composed of?

I was very much surprised to find it used in a hospital today. I thought it was condemned.

REPLY.

1. It has a field, but not the one that was claimed for it in the ballyhoo periods.

2. It puts the mother in a state in which pain does not register. The chief objection to it is the danger to the baby. However, in an institution where the staff is trained and experienced, it is reasonably safe.

WILL NOT HARM.

Mrs. C. G. writes: Are the fumes from gasoline and carbolic acid, used on the beds for bugs, injurious to the eyes?

No.

ILLEGAL INTEREST.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I have been told by a friend that he was forced to make a loan on his automobile at the following rate: Commission on $300, $90 [30 per cent], and 6 per cent interest. I believe that this rate is illegal. Is this true? 2. What is the highest rate of commission? 3. What is the highest interest rate? M. K.

1. It probably is. You do not state how long the loan was to run.
2. There is no statutory maximum but the commission must not be used as a subterfuge to cover illegal interest.
3. Three and one-half per cent per month is permitted in special cases.

WOODEN FORMS REMOVED.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—[Friend of the People.]—On a vacant lot on South Meade avenue there has been stored all summer a high pile of wooden forms. These forms are loosely piled and constitute a menace to the life and limbs of dozens of small children who crawl on and under them. Anything that can be done to mitigate this nuisance will be appreciated. R. M. E.

An inspection was made of the premises in question and notice was sent to the owner to remove concrete forms off of lot.

JOINT TENANCY PROCEDURE.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I bought a piece of property before I was married and I have it cleared now. The deed and guarantee policy was issued in my name. I wish to have it in joint tenancy with my wife. I would like to be advised what steps to take to make this change. F. J. P.

You should convey to a third person and have him convey back to you by a joint tenancy deed, for which you can secure a form from a stationer. If he is married his wife should join. If he is unmarried or a widower, that fact should be recited.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The administration is moving all available troops to the Mexican border to reinforce the command of Maj. Gen. Fred Funston now there. Officials admitted tonight that a crisis has been reached in the relations between the United States and Gen. Carranza, leader of the Constitutionalist faction in Mexico. According to their view, Carranza is threatening an invasion of this country in order to bring all factions in Mexico into his camp to resist a common foe. Reports from Gen. Funston indicate that Carranza has lined up a large army at the border.

LONDON.—Admiralty reports from Queenstown show that one saloon passenger and six second class passengers lost their lives when the Allen liner Hesperian was struck by a torpedo or mine off Fastnet. Six third class passengers and thirteen members of the crew are missing, indicating a total death list of twenty-six. Wesley Frost, American consul at Queenstown, has affidavits of survivors that no warning was given the vessel before it was struck.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. J. Ogden Armour defended herself in a hand to hand battle with two masked and armed robbers in her home, 3724 Michigan avenue. However, after the bandits had forced her and three maids into one room they fled with $7,500 worth of jewelry.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 7, 1901.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President McKinley was shot twice by an assassin as he stood in the Temple of Music at the Pan-American exhibition, Buffalo, N. Y., at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The shots were fired by Leon Czolgosz, a resident of Detroit, who came to Buffalo recently from Cleveland. He at first gave his name as Fred Nieman, but after a time he revealed his identity and declared he was an anarchist who had only done his duty. The attempted assassination took place in the presence of 3,000 persons who had crowded into the Temple of Music and while thousands of others stood outside waiting for a chance to enter and shake the hands of the President. The first bullet struck the sternum in the President's chest, deflected to the right and traveled beneath the skin to a point directly below the right nipple. The second bullet penetrated the abdomen, pierced both walls of the stomach, and lodged in the back. Only a superficial wound was caused by the first bullet and it was removed within five minutes after the arrival of physicians. The second bullet was not found. An operation was performed on the President at the emergency hospital on the exposition grounds by Dr. Matthew D. Mann, Dr. John Parmenter, and Dr. Herman Mynter. They stated after the operation that they were hopeful and that while the wound is serious it is not necessarily fatal.

President John G. Milburn of the exposition introduced the President to the great crowd and then men, women, and children came forward to shake his hand. In the line was Czolgosz, whose left hand was wrapped in a handkerchief in which was concealed a .32 caliber derringer with two bullets. As the President extended his hand Czolgosz dashed aside and brought the pistol hidden in his handkerchief up against the President's stomach and fired the two shots. The assassin was seized immediately and but for remarkable diligence on the part of officials he would have been mobbed and beaten to death. The President was removed to the home of Mr. Milburn in an ambulance. Two telegrams were sent to Vice President Roosevelt at Isle La Motte, near Burlington, Vt., notifying him of the shooting and of the President's condition. Mr. Roosevelt started for Buffalo at once.

SEPTEMBER 7, 1881.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Garfield was removed from the White House to Long Branch, N. J. He was taken from his sickroom at 6:30 o'clock this morning on a stretcher and placed in a large express wagon which bore him to the train. He bore the fatigue of the journey quite well, and his pulse, which was 118 on starting the trip, was reduced to 102 before it ended. The train reached Long Branch at 1:10 in the afternoon and the President was taken immediately to the Fancklyn cottage. The excessive heat of the day was the chief feature of the journey and it had the effect of increasing the pulse in the evening to 124, with a temperature of 101.6. A later dispatch from Long Branch says Mr. Garfield is very weak, with his pulse 128. The latest report is that he is sleeping and physicians seem more hopeful that the change will be beneficial than they were at 6 o'clock.

CHICAGO.—In compliance with Gov. Cullom's proclamation, and inspired with a profound love and sympathy for the suffering President, a portion of yesterday was dedicated to public prayers for his recovery. During the two hours from 10 to 12 o'clock all the city, county, and national offices were closed and there was a general suspension of business. During the President's trip from Washington to Long Branch TRIBUNE bulletins were anxiously scanned by a large crowd in Madison street.

STEEL HOUSES.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Your editorial under the caption "Steel Houses" falls somewhat short of satisfying the lumber industry concerning Mr. McCutcheon's cartoon of Aug. 28, according to my humble judgment. Knowing the high character of THE TRIBUNE as I do, it is disappointing that the error of the cartoon was not graciously acknowledged instead of an attempt made to present argument for the idea advocated by Mr. McCutcheon. You have apparently tried to justify the cartoon without yet recognizing the injustice done.

You refer to wood trim and paneled walls being used in buildings constructed of steel and stone, and state that anything which will stimulate house construction would stimulate the use of wood for such purposes. All well and good, but it doesn't necessarily follow that the substitution of steel house framing for wood framing is essential to the stimulation of house construction, and the wood trim which might be used in the steel house would also be used in the house of wood frame. The fact still remains that what Mr. McCutcheon advocates calls for a drastic curtailment of the use of wood in the end.

You state that steel will not compete with wooden walls, but with walls of brick and stone so far as this city is concerned, but you are referring in that connection to buildings "of any considerable size" and your statement could only apply to certain zones and types of buildings with which Mr. McCutcheon's cartoon was not concerned. His idea was centered on the small dwelling house, where wood is particularly suitable and not entirely restricted even within the city limits. Furthermore, you will concede that the influence of THE TRIBUNE extends beyond the city limits of Chicago and to many communities throughout the country where restriction against wood construction is rare.

The lumber trade recognizes the necessity of finding new uses for its products, just as you suggest, and is making such an effort, but it is just as essential that we retain old uses, whether done "frantically" or otherwise, and the fact that wood has been used for centuries in house construction does not mean that it is obsolete, as your closing question might be intended to imply. A thing is obsolete when it has gone out of use or when something obviously better for the same use has been developed and so accepted by users. Wood construction for dwellings is not obsolete.

L. S. BEALE,
Secretary-Treasurer, the National Hardwood Lumber Association.

THE FACE BENEATH THE HAT.

Decatur, Ill., Sept. 2.—Thank you, Adelaide M. Shedd. You expressed my sentiments to a T in regard to the Empress Eugenie hats, only I felt like two jackasses—for my face is a full, round, German looking, red face. So—just imagine! Here's to the big hat!

AS MUCH MONEY AS EVER.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—In their desperate efforts to keep alive, many businesses are resorting to price cutting which does not permit of a living wage. They are forced to this by the ruthlessness of buyers who take advantage of the times to force prices down. This is just as unfair as is overcharging by the dealer. I know you will agree that "the laborer is worthy of his hire" and that those who serve a useful purpose are entitled to a fair compensation. I think you will also agree that if those who have some surplus would spend it, instead of locking it up, this psychological depression would immediately ease up. Remember, there is just as much money in the world as there ever was, but the trouble is it is frozen solid by paralyzing fear.

RUSSELL FREEMAN.

NATIVITY AND CRIME.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—In your editorial "Nativity and Crime" you give consideration to the conclusion of the Wickersham investigators that the native born are responsible for more crime than the foreign born. You point out that the term "native born" also includes the American born children of immigrants, to which you object as giving an erroneous impression as far as the "racial" factor in crime is concerned.

As I interpret you, you incline to believe that, even making allowance for depressed social and economic conditions, there is something inherent in the newer immigration which predisposes its American born offspring to a greater incidence of criminality than was found in the old immigration [northwest European].

Please let me refer you to volume two of the Wickersham "Report on the Causes of Crime," page 338, where you may read:

"At the beginning of the present century these areas of highest rates of delinquents, which are for the most part areas of first immigrant settlement, were occupied by the older immigrant groups, such as the Germans, Irish, and Scandinavians. Since that time these nationalities have almost disappeared from these areas and they have been succeeded by the newer immigrant groups, such as the Polish and the Italians. This change which took place, both in the areas adjacent to the central business district and to the large industrial developments, did not bring about any appreciable change in the relative rates of delinquents in these areas."

Hence, this indicates that social and economic rather than "racial" factors are of most importance in the causation of crime in the immigrant groups. As an American of colonial ancestry, I bear no brief for the newer immigration, but it is time that we approach questions of this sort from a scientific standpoint rather than to attempt to rationalize our preconceived notions as to the relative worth of various peoples.

GLAD TO OBLIGE.

Leon, Ia., Sept. 2.—Please allow space to the great-granddaughter of two soldiers of the revolutionary war, the widow of a civil war veteran, and the grandmother of a man who served his country abroad in the world war to express her pride and delight at the action of the American Legion, as reported in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, in rejecting a resolution condemning the prohibition amendment. Our country is still safe while its real defenders refuse to be led into any such mistakes by selfish propagandists.

MRS. A. L. CURRY.

A MOVIE OPERATOR'S WORK.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—I have worked in the same booth with student or "cub" motion picture operators, and it has been my experience that the second person in the booth is more of a nuisance than an assistance. The design of the machine makes it impossible for more than one person to work on a machine at a time. In case of a break in the film, in threading, adjusting the arc lamp or any manipulation, the second person can be of no assistance, except as a tool passer. Only one projector is running at a time. The average reel of film runs for twelve minutes. It requires about five minutes to prepare the second machine for the change over and to rewind the film, which leaves the operator something over five minutes out of every twelve with nothing to do but make minor adjustments and watch the picture. The above figures vary slightly with different operators, but are essentially correct and allow sufficient time to watch the screen and project the picture perfectly. Stronger evidence that only one operator is needed in a theater of the size under discussion is in the fact that thousands of these houses all over the country are satisfying their patrons with pictures perfectly presented by one operator per shift. I am not acquainted with any theater owner nor do I hold financial interest in any theater. EX-M. P. O.

$5 MILLIONS OF U.S. CONTRACTS LET IN AUGUST

Building Projects in Total.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 6.—[Special]—Contracts for the construction of forty-seven buildings, including the new Chicago postoffice were awarded by the treasury department during August, the White House announced today in making public a report showing the status of the 700 million dollar public building program.

The value of the projects placed on the market during the last month was more than in excess of $25,000,000, three-fifths of this being represented by the Chicago postal contract. The new buildings brought the total value of all building projects now under contract or construction up to 181 million dollars. Two hundred and twenty-nine buildings in all were in the hands of contractors on Sept. 1.

The White House report shows that 20,000 men will be employed directly and indirectly, on the public buildings program on Jan. 1, of next year. At present the number employed directly and indirectly was listed as 39,000.

Two-Thirds of Program Lags.

As of toll, less than one-third of the $700 million dollar program is now completed or under contract. Construction contracts especially for the larger projects went forward slowly during the first few months after the president inaugurated his emergency building program and up to date not as much money has been expended on building work as had been expected. Figures showing exactly how much of the $700 millions appropriated last year to stimulate employment actually has been expended have not been made public.

The White House reports hows that up to date 496 million dollars worth of projects have been specifically authorized. Of this amount 121 buildings, costing $99,589,549 have been completed. A total of 229 projects involving an expenditure of 181 millions is under contract in whole or in part, and have been purchased for sixty-two buildings estimated to cost $19,-000,000, sites have been selected in 202 communities where 178 millions is to be expended and sites are in process of being acquired in 199 other cities and towns.

Projects Under Contract.

The location of projects under contract either in whole or in part, and their limits of cost, in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin were listed as follows:

ILLINOIS—Chicago, $24,725,000; Carlinville, $125,000; Bloomington, $325,000; Freeport, $375,000; Pekin, $165,000; Dixon, $165,000; Woodstock, $90,000; Rockford, $75,000; Havana, $70,000; Carrollton, $65,000; Spring Valley, $60,000.

INDIANA—Fort Wayne, $1,150,000; South Bend, $1,100,000; Lafayette, $275,-000; East Chicago, $185,000; Muncie, $180,000; Kokomo, $175,000; Greenfield, $160,000; Warsaw, $95,000; Lebanon, $80,000; Decatur, $85,000; London, $60,-000.

IOWA—Mason City, $385,000; Cedar Rapids, $350,000; Iowa City, $190,000; Oxford, $85,000; Marengo, $65,000.

WISCONSIN—Milwaukee, $1,850,000; Oshkosh, $420,000; Racine, $320,000; Appleton, $300,000; Marshfield, $120,000.

MICHIGAN—Flint, $650,000; Bay City, $450,000; Benton Harbor, $120,000; Boyne City, $65,000.

Sites Selected.

Projects and their limits of cost for which sites have been selected, plans completed and which have reached the specification stage were listed in the following cities:

ILLINOIS—Aurora, $395,000; Highland, $70,000.

INDIANA—Auburn, $115,000; Greensburg, $95,000; Noblesville, $80,000.

WARNS WOMEN G.O.P. CONCEALS ITS PROPAGANDA

Washington, D. C., Sept. 6.—(AP)—A warning to Democratic women "not to permit themselves to become parties to the dissemination of Republican propaganda disguised as hand books of nonpartisan organizations," was voiced today by Nellie Taylor Ross, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee.

NELLIE TAYLOR ROSS.
[Acme Photo.]

In a statement made through the committee, Mrs. Ross stated that a recent pamphlet issued under the auspices of the General Federation of Women's Clubs by the George Washington bicentennial committee "reads more like a partisan campaign document issued by the Republican national committee in the interest of the candidacy of President Hoover than like a tribute from the members of a nonpartisan organization of woman to the memory of the first President."

The former governor of Wyoming will start this week on a speaking tour of cities in Utah, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, California, Texas, and the middle west. The propaganda warning, the statement said, will feature her speeches.

GANDHI DROPS HIS SPINNING TO SING CHRISTIAN HYMN

Joins 'Lead, Kindly Light' at Ship Service.

ABOARD S. S. RAJPUTANA, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi dropped his ceaseless spinning to attend a Christian religious service today aboard this liner, which is taking India's Nationalist leader to the London round table conference.

As a compliment to India's "holy one," Capt. H. Morton Jack had the Hindu's favorite Christian hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," sung. In the solemn stillness of the Red sea, Gandhi's own tiny, lisping voice was easily distinguishable above the others.

At Suez he was warmly welcomed by Egyptians and Indians, who declared his attempts to liberate India were an inspiration to Egyptians to shake off the foreign yoke. As at Aden, Arabia, Gandhi appealed to Moslem Egyptians to help cement Hindu-Moslem unity.

Romps with Children.

Gandhi continues to enjoy his sea voyage. He romps with children, caresses babies, and jokes with parents.

Apparently the most comfortable passenger on this steamer in the burning heat of the Red sea, he said he would modify his loincloth costume in England only if the weather turned cold. In that case he would don a heavy woolen loincloth reaching to his ankles and wear a white homespun jacket made by Raymond Duncan, brother of the late Isadora Duncan, American dancer.

When the Mahatma awoke this morning he found a large caricature of his small, emaciated self pinned to his cabin door.

"It is not so bad," he said, "but it is incomplete, because the artist failed to sign it."

Will Not Attend Theater.

Gandhi continues to receive scores of telegrams from various parts of the world, including many from the United States, inviting him to lecture, seeking statements, inquiries about his program in England and wishing him success at the round table conference.

The mahatma has drawn up no formal program either for the round table conference or for his stay in England. A London newspaper asked him whether he would attend the theater, social functions and places of amusement.

"I have neither the desire nor the time to indulge in social functions or amusements," he replied.

In preparation for the conference he has been reading volumes of the first round table proceedings, but these invariably cause him to fall fast asleep.

QUAKE IN TOKIO ROUSES LINDYS FROM SLUMBER

TOKIO, Sept. 7.—[Monday.]—(AP)—A sharp earthquake was felt in the Tokio region at 5:26 a. m. today, but no damage was reported beyond the breaking of mantel ornaments in many houses. The shock was of the horizontal type.

Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, who returned to the capital yesterday from Nikko where they had gone as part of their sightseeing tour, were aroused from sleep with a start, but afterward returned to bed.

The Lindberghs were tea guests of Baron and Baroness Shidehara here yesterday afternoon. Baron Shidehara is the Japanese foreign minister. Today the city of Yokohama will tender the famous Americans an official welcome.

CHINA PEASANTS PROTEST WHEAT DEAL WITH U. S.

Ready to Meet Yankee Prices and Credits.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Sept. 6.—Much objection is aroused in Manchuria, notably in Kirin province, over the American farm board's wheat deal which the government is determined to carry out despite a Manchurian offer to meet American prices and credits.

Kirin farmers telegraphed Nanking, stating that ample wheat is available at prices equaling American prices, hoping that a portion of the order can be placed, and also offering a percentage on flour.

Ration Wheat for Flood Victims.

The national relief board estimates it must ration wheat for more than 10,000,000 persons in six months, asserting that an ample market remains for the Manchurians. It is argued that more than 10,000,000 tons will be required until spring, hence the American purchase represents only half of the necessities without counting the commercial needs.

The board also fears a rice shortage in addition to the destruction of vegetable crops and animal requirements. It is also necessary to compel flood victims to utilize beans, millet, and other northern grown foods.

Float 80 Millions Flood Bonds.

The central political council has decided upon an issue of $80,000,000 in flood bonds, secured by special taxes, pointing out that the number of victims is mounting daily as the result of the addition of thousands of Hankow refugees further down the Yangtse river. Already about 30,000 refugees have been driven to Nanking. They are huddled outside of the city's gates, where strong barricades have been erected.

It is estimated that there are 2,500,000 persons homeless in the Chinkiang area and several millions in the Huaiho river and Grand Canal regions. Therefore, every available ton of the Manchurian wheat crop will be necessary, as well as the farm board purchase, it is pointed out.

Fear New Flood Disaster.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Fresh tidings of disaster reached Shanghai tonight from widely separated areas, emphasizing the nationwide character of China's flood calamity, but confirmation was still lacking of the reported holocaust at Kunghsien, Honan province.

The Kunghsien alarm was found to be based on a message received at Peiping from the Honan Relief association, appealing for immediate aid because "about one million persons were drowned around Kunghsien," by recent floods which were reported to have ruined all houses in the district.

The figure was interpreted as merely another case of Chinese carelessness with ciphers, especially since the total population of the six surrounding counties including Kunghsien barely exceeds 1,000,000.

Seven Counties Flooded.

Meanwhile reports of further distress were received from the provinces of Shensi, Honan Kiangsu, while a new dark spot in China's flood map appeared in northwestern Anhwei province where seven counties were said to be inundated. Details were lacking.

Dispatches from Nanking said that President Chiang Kai-Shek tomorrow will inspect the Grand canal area in Kiangsu province. The president is deeply concerned over the communist threat in the Wuhan area, including the cities of Hankow, Hanyang, and Wuchang, and has detailed Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, minister of war and Chiang's right hand man, to assume direction of the Hupeh province campaign against the Reds. Several units of the Nanking garrison have been assigned to Gen. Ho's command.

Meanwhile conditions at Hankow were steadily improving and train service to Peiping has been restored. Temporary raised sidewalks and pontoon bridges permit dry shod movements in the city streets again.

Yellow River Rising.

Many sources report the Yellow river is rising menacingly, especially dispatches from Sainfu, which describe the river towns in Shensi and Honan as panic stricken. The scourge of the Yangtse river was felt afresh in the area centered at Sinti, 75 miles southwest of Hankow, where several big dikes burst under pressure of the flood waters.

An expedition of lighters left Hankow today headed for the Sinti district carrying food and medicine hoping to rescue the 80,000 refugees reported huddled on the remaining dikes. The Grand canal continues to spread havoc in the Kiangsi basin where it was reported still greater areas were inundated.

THIS KING'S SON MAY GROW UP TO BE PROFESSOR

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Crown Prince Michael, heir apparent to the throne of Rumania, passed his third grade examinations with a general average of 98.7 per cent, it was announced today.

The crown prince, who was king before his father, King Carol, returned to the throne, is nine years old.

During his examinations, it was said, he was entirely unabashed by the presence of the king, the premier, a board of three professors, the mayor of Sinaia and the king's adjutant, and he answered all questions "smartly."

Mississippi Is Expected to Set New Low Record

Quincy, Ill., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—The Mississippi during the past week reached a maximum stage of 4.4 feet above low water mark. In three days the river has fallen 3.1 feet, being at a stage of 1.3 feet above low water mark. The government forecast says the stream will fall slowly now, and it is expected it will go to a lower mark than in August, setting a new all-time low record.

WOODRUFF TO BE WAUKEGAN BANK PROBE WITNESS

Jury Also Expects Auditor's Report.

George Woodruff, chairman of the board of the National Bank of the Republic before its merger into the Central Republic bank, will appear before the Lake county grand jury tomorrow at Waukegan in its investigation of the Waukegan State bank, which closed on June 17.

GEORGE WOODRUFF. [Moffett Photo.]

John Macon and Charles Bond, auditors for the grand jury, are also to give a report tomorrow. They are expected to report on alleged transactions between the Waukegan bank and the National Bank of the Republic, which was the Chicago correspondent of the other institution.

Attacks Bank Statements.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith has charged that on the bank's published report of Dec. 31, 1930, there was listed as deposits $200,000 which was in reality money due the National Bank of the Republic, and that in a similar report in March there was $550,000 listed as deposits when it was really due the Chicago bank.

Woodruff and three other former officials of the National Bank of the Republic who have been called to testify tomorrow will be asked to sign immunity waivers, a procedure which has been followed in the investigation with all the officials of the Chicago bank who went before the jury.

The other three witnesses called are Edward Schuster, E. L. Wagner, and William H. Miller. Schuster was at the Waukegan bank for several weeks as an observer representing the Republic bank shortly before Carl W. Stenger, president of the Waukegan bank, was made chairman of the board, and Norman O. Geyer installed as president. Stenger, Geyer, Milton C. Smith, a vice president of the Waukegan bank; John Murray Connors, another vice president, who was arrested last week on charges of making unauthorized loans, are all reported to be named in true bills voted by the grand jury.

Other Witnesses Called.

Other witnesses will be Harry McCreight, an auditor who made an examination of the Waukegan bank last October on behalf of the Republic bank, which examination, State's Attorney Smith charges, disclosed that the Waukegan bank was in a shaky condition at that time, and Joseph Slomer and Edward Durkin of Waukegan, former directors of the bank.

The Chicago Federation of Labor yesterday passed a resolution, introduced by Ald. Oscar F. Nelson, its vice president, demanding that State's Attorney Swanson investigate the conduct of Auditor Nelson in connection with bank failures in Cook county, and charging him with negligence.

JUDGE M'GOORTY RETIRES AS CHIEF JUSTICE TODAY

Cites Court Savings and Rise in Sentences.

Judge John P. McGoorty, who retires today as chief justice of the Criminal court, to be succeeded by Judge Harry M. Fisher, has made public the results of the year's work. The report shows a substantial saving of the taxpayers' money as well as a substantial increase in jail sentences for criminal offenders.

The judge also points out that the various improvements made in the Criminal court during his term of office have resulted in the speeding up of criminal trials and have cut almost in half the number of persons having to serve on juries.

The two outstanding improvements as pointed out by the report are the inauguration of the public defender system and the change in the law which allows a defendant in a criminal case to waive a jury trial. The incoming chief justice is given credit for this latter improvemnt.

1,979 Persons Sentenced.

A tabulation of the actual disposition of criminal cases shows that 1,797 persons were sentenced to various penal institutions in the year ended Aug. 31, 1931, as compared to 1,874 in the preceding year. The judges during the last year, however, placed more defendants on probation than in the previous year. The tabulation comparing the year ended Aug. 31, 1930 and Aug. 31, 1931, follows:

	1931.	1930.
Indictments disposed of....	4,261	4,343
Sentenced to penitentiary..	826	877
Sentenced to state ref'm'ty	490	417
Sentenced to county jail..	136	226
Sentenced to bridewell....	527	354
Total sentenced	1,979	1,874
Found not guilty.....	765	524
Released on probation....	705	585
Pleas of guilty.....	1,079	1,181
Nonjury trials	648	178
Jury trials	480	1,202
Regular jurors drawn.....	7,405	15,795
Special jurors drawn.....	920	4,825
Jury vouchers issued.....	3,658	7,807
Money paid petit jurors..	$160,005	$315,907
Defendants in jail awaiting trial	481	589
Defendants awaiting action of grand jury.....	153	132

Taxpayers Saved $150,000.

The saving to the taxpayers by decreased payments to jurors is more than $150,000. This was made possible by the fact that it was not necessary to summon as many jurors because a majority of the court business now consists of trials before the judge, due to jury waivers under the new law.

Another saving has been effected by the public defender's office in cases where murder charges were at issue. Under the statutes an appointed lawyer is entitled to a fee from the county for defending a person accused of murder where the defendant has no funds. Under the public defender system no appointments of outside lawyers are made and therefore no fees are collectible. The sum saved is estimated at $12,500.

Judge McGoorty also calls attention to the fact that $42,184 was collected by the state's attorney's office on bond forfeitures, due to new methods adopted during the last year. Only $5,382 was collected in the preceding year.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Breaking the News

NEW INVENTION STAMPS WATCHES AND AUTO BODIES

LONDON, Sept. 7.—[Monday.]—(AP)—The Daily Mail this morning announced the invention of a new stamping and pressure machine which, it said, would "revolutionize British industry."

The Mail said that the machine could be used in stampings of every sort from watch mechanisms to motor car bodies, and for making nails, bricks, composition materials, and the manufacture of furniture from pulverized wood.

It said the machine was invented by Frank Humphries, who had been working on it for seven years and that $250,000 has been spent on world patents.

Augusta Angsten, Widow of Philip, Taken by Death

Mrs. Augusta Angsten, widow of Philip Angsten, former member of the board of education, died yesterday in her home at 9640 South Winchester avenue. She was born in Niles, Mich., and was 74 years old. Surviving are two children, Peter J. Angsten and Mrs. Mary Carey, wife of Peter B. Carey, vice president of the Chicago Board of Trade. Peter Angsten, the son, is president of the Veterans' club, a former member of the North Shore park district, and organized the state industrial commission in 1913.

Rescue 9 from Wind Tossed Boat Off Massachusetts

Woodshole, Mass., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—A motor fishing craft with its engine out of commission and nine persons aboard, tossing helplessly in the high wind and heavy sea just outside Buzzards Bay, was picked up tonight by the yacht Shodun and towed to Hen and Chicken lightship, where the rescued took temporary refuge. Coast guard cutter 146, in response to a message relayed by radio from the steamship Plymouth, which had been hailed as it passed the lightship, brought the rescued nine here.

Russian Scientists Lose Lives as Boat Capsizes

MOSCOW, Sept. 6.—(AP)—M. Bousik, Russia's most prominent topographical expert, and his assistant, Kalinin, drowned today after their motorboat capsized in the rapids of the River Indegirka, a tributary of the Yenesei. They were surveying the river by a new method which had made Bousik famous in Russia.

Brooklyn Beer War Claims Another Victim in Shooting

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Brooklyn's beer war claimed another victim today in the shooting of Henry Halperin, known to police as "Knockout," who was probably fatally wounded. Halperin was shot as he stepped from the door of his restaurant in Morrell street, Brooklyn.

22 TAKEN FROM SINKING BOAT LANDED AT MIAMI

Miami, Fla., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The motor vessel Tamaru docked here tonight with twenty-two persons rescued when the 52 foot cabin cruiser, Al Wilda, sank after springing a leak 18 miles west of Bimini island last night. Seven of the passengers rescued were women. All passengers and the crew of four were saved.

Capt. L. T. Irwin of the Tamaru saw the cruiser's distress signals last night, put about and reached the Al Wilda seven minutes later. Transfer of passengers and crew was effected without confusion. The Al Wilda sank fifteen minutes after the last man was taken off. She was chartered for a week-end cruise by Frank Quigley, Miami, from her owner, E. B. Elliott.

Funeral Tomorrow for Attorney Paul Compart

Funeral services for Paul F. Compart, 54 years old, Chicago attorney and professor at the Chicago Law school, who died on Saturday, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow from his residence, 6017 Harper avenue, with burial in Oakwoods cemetery. Prof. Compart was born in Berlin, Germany, and brought to Chicago by his parents when he was a youth. He held degrees in medicine from the University of Illinois, and in law from De Paul university. A son, Paul Jr., survives.

Girl Rescued from River Is Expected to Recover

Marie Cameron, 19 years old, of the Lewis hotel, 1166 Milwaukee avenue, a taxi dancer, who was rescued on Saturday night after she had leaped into the river at Washington street, was despondent because she was unable to find work, she told the police. She was taken to the county hospital, where she is expected to recover. She is the mother of a 3 year old son, "Skippy," and is separated from her husband, Robert, of El Paso, Tex.

Bandit Offers Apologies After Gun Is Discharged

An embarrassed bandit offered profuse apologies to Raymond Watkins, 18 years old, 7844 Vernon avenue, when he discharged his revolver accidentally in forcing Watkins to halt his automobile early yesterday. He had his victim drive to 91st street and Hamilton avenue, where a second robber joined them, and Watkins and Miss Katherine Haigh, 9049 South Hoyne avenue, were robbed of $5, a watch and a ring.

Too Tall for High School, Cousins Decide; Run Away

Robert McLaughlin, 15 years old, 1938 West Garfield boulevard, and Charles McLaughlin Jr., 16 years old, 816 West Garfield boulevard, cousins, are each six feet one and a half inches tall. They decided they were too tall to enroll as high school freshmen tomorrow, and ran away from home yesterday. Police were told that they probably went to Detroit, where Charles' father is an official of the Cadillac Motor Car company and two uncles are policemen.

Patrick J. Hooper, Irish Editor and Statesman, Dies

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Ireland, Sept. 6.—Patrick J. Hooper, late editor of the Freeman's Journal, died today. He played a prominent part in Free State politics as a member of the senate and three months ago was elected deputy chairman. His father was editor of the Cork Daily Herald.

Fire Wrecks Abandoned Plant of Aircraft Co.

Fire for which a 3-11 alarm was sounded yesterday wrecked an old two story building at 1725-9 Sedgwick street, formerly occupied by the Heath Aircraft corporation. The damage to the building, which had been unoccupied recently, was estimated at $10,000.

101.8 Degrees at Omaha; Near September Record

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 6.—(AP)—With the temperature reaching 101.8 degrees at 5 p. m., Omaha sweltered today as a new local heat record was set for Sept. 6. The previous high was 101 in 1922. The mark set today was .2 of a degree short of the September record, 102, set in 1895.

BABY BOY DIES OF BURNS.

Herrin, Ill., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Bobby Prather, 2 years old, son of Robert Prather of Mine B camp north of here, died last night of burns sustained when he fell into his mothers' tub of scrub water yesterday.

Mothers Often Err by Offering Child Too Much Advice

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

He caught a catfish.

What a thrill!

"Can't I have it for lunch?"

Not being sure about the edibility of small catfish his mother hesitated.

"What," she said, "would you say to frying it and giving it to Pat? He loves fish." [Pat is the dog.]

Cleaned and washed and fried, the catfish was at last done. A dozen times his mother checked herself as, experienced cook that she was, she watched the unaccustomed young fingers struggle with the whole procedure up so badly? He could have found a out the flame. Now let it cool . . . no, don't set it on the table . . . no, no, not in the sink—no, not on the floor—just leave it on the stove."

Then she stopped and said to herself, "Now, why did I have to finish up so badly? He could have found a place to put the hot pan while the fish cooled off. Here I am trying to give myself a much needed lesson in not giving directions about everything, in letting the children find things out for themselves, in allowing them to do things wrong so as to learn how to do them right, but I can't keep my finger out of the pie to the end of the story."

Do you ever put yourself through a course of sprouts that way?

Sometimes capable or clever mothers need it more than the others. They know so well how a thing should be done that they are apt to manage and direct their children in order to hurry things along or to prevent their making mistakes.

It often takes patience and self-control for mothers to remember that children are entitled to their mistakes in learning something new. They gain in power, inventiveness, and independence by working things out themselves. Even if it takes them several times as long and the result is not so good, the gain to them is greater.

To be sure, there are exceptions—where you work with them on something or where they ask you to help them. But generally speaking, first see that the work or play they are undertaking is not to difficult—then let them alone unless they appeal to you for advice or actually need you to avoid disaster or discouragement.

FOOD TALK.

Mrs. J. W. A. writes: "I have had fine success with a recipe for peach marmalade that appeared on your page. May I use the same recipe for pears? If not, will you suggest a recipe for pear marmalade or pear butter?"

Yes, you may apply the peach recipe to the pears, Mrs. J. W. A. I have, however, a recipe for pear jam which I like very much, that you may want to try. It was presented to me by a woman who won fame throughout the country, several years ago, for her marmalades and jellies.

PEAR JAM.

12 pears
2 oranges
1 lemon
Granulated sugar

Peel the pears and slice very thin. Juice the oranges and lemon. Put the fruit peel (orange and lemon) through a grinder. Combine juice and peel with the pears. Let this come to a boil slowly, and then boil rapidly until thick. Turn into sterile jelly glasses.

Like the marmalade, the above recipe is equally good for pears and peaches. Personally, of all the ways to fix pears, I prefer them with a little ginger. Here is my recipe for them:

CHIPPED GINGER PEARS.

4 pounds of pears
4 pounds of granulated sugar
¼ pound of candied ginger root
2 lemons

Peel the pears and slice very fine. Slice the ginger-root and boil these together with the sugar for one hour, slowly. Boil the lemons whole in water until tender, then cut up in small bits, removing the seeds. Add to the pears and boil an hour longer. Pour into sterile glasses.

Inasmuch as pears are abundant and cheap at the present writing, I hope a great many of you will find time to make the jams suggested. Now, let's skip back to tomorrow's menu for a moment.

BAKED HAM IN MILK.

1 thick slice of smoked ham
2 tablespoons of brown sugar
1 teaspoon mustard (dry)
Hot milk

Mix the sugar and mustard together, and rub well into the ham on both sides. Place in an iron spider or casserole. Cover the meat with hot milk, and cook very slowly (300 degrees F.) for 45 to 60 minutes, or until the milk has cooked away. One pound of ham serves three people.

RASPBERRY WHIP.

1 tablespoon of gelatine
¼ cup of cold water
½ cup of boiling water
¼ cup of sugar
2 tablespoons of lemon juice
1 cup of raspberry juice (fresh or canned)
Whites of 3 eggs
Pinch of salt

Soak the gelatine 5 minutes in cold water and then dissolve in boiling water. Add the sugar, salt, lemon juice, and the raspberry juice. When the mixture begins to stiffen, beat until it is frothy, and then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites.

Pour into a wet mold and place in a cold place. Serve with whipped cream. Yield: Six servings.

BORERS KILLING LILACS.

Dr. R. W. Lee, 3441 Foster avenue, took the trouble to call between patients Saturday to inform this department that he had just discovered that borers had infested his hybrid lilacs and that the bush trunks were badly chewed up. Minute sawdust on the ground was telltale proof that the trouble was caused by the borers.

This professional man with a hobby of dahlias reports he is following the recommended practice of forcing carbon bisulfide, to be had at florists or drug stores, into the worm holes by use of a common atomizer. He then stops up the holes with putty, to give the chemical a chance to kill the borers who are deeply entrenched.

He said ants had been prevalent about the bushes, and wondered about the possible connection. But the ants are not responsible for the borers, which were hatched from eggs laid in the lilac bark by flies earlier. They especially prefer loose bark in which to sink the proboscis and deposit eggs.

If serious damage has been done by borers, the bushes are so weakened that they become diseased or die, so that most authorities feel it is better to take out the bored bushes and replace them with new ones. The lilacs which have been grafted as fruit trees are and some other shrubs apparently resist the borer better than do hybrids or seedling lilacs.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

A Practical Joke.

When I started working for my present employer he thought it funny to tease me and ask me to do nonsensical things, and I, being green, fell readily into every trap he set for me.

An outstanding experience which will take me some time to forget occurred after my boss asked me seriously to get from Mr. Fish a report he had for him. I went up to Mr. Fish and said politely, "Mr. Fish, Mr. A— would like the report you have for him." He looked at me a little while and then said, "Are you trying to be funny or don't you know my name?"

I looked at him in wonderment and he said, "Perhaps you don't know my name is Salmon," and so saying he handed me the report. I scurried off and still blush when I meet "Mr. Fish."

CLAIMS RETIRED REALTOR SET DOG ON HIM IN ROW

Hubert W. Butler, retired real estate dealer living at 1550 Tower road, Winnetka, will appear before Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter in Evanston Thursday to answer the charge of William Vachler, 1461 Sherman avenue, Evanston, that Butler set his dog, a St. Bernard, on Vachler.

The incident followed an altercation between Butler and Vachler over the acceptance of a trunk which Vachler delivered at the Butler home. The trunk had been purchased by Miss Katherine L. Schram, Butler's sister-in-law.

Vachler insists that Butler set the dog on him and that the big animal tore his coat and trousers to shreds. Butler said that the dog, seeing a stranger in an angry discussion with his master, lunged at Vachler, but was restrained by Mrs. Butler before he had done any great damage.

Vachler first tried to have the Winnetka police arrest Butler, the latter said, but was told that the affair was a matter for the civil courts, and after that took his complaint to the Evanston court.

GEIGER—Edward Geiger. In memory of our beloved son and brother, who passed away two years ago today, Sept. 7, 1929.
FATHER, MOTHER, AND BROTHERS.

PERNIN—Dr. A. G. Pernin. In fond and loving memory of my dear husband, who passed away four years ago today, Sept. 7, 1927.
It is now four years since you are gone, dear,
But your presence is forever with me.
I miss you more and more each day, dear,
But should go on, as life must be.
Guide me and help me always, dear,
As without you I cannot see.
May you rest in peace and quiet, dear,
And the Lord will watch over me.
Your loving wife,
MARGUERITE C. PERNIN.

Russian Horror Calmly Told by Noblewoman

Irina Skariatina Recites Story of Perils.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"A World Can End," by Irina Skariatina. [Cape Smith.]

"A WORLD CAN END" is subtitled "A Chronicle of the Russian Revolution"—just that, nothing more. The whole thesaurus of words denoting horror and anguish and degradation and hunger and illness and that most terrific of all inhumanity, man's inhumanity to man, might have been ravaged to make a subtitle for "A World Can End." For the record which the author makes of those six years of revolution in Russia during which she "lived"—in the sense that she did not die, not in the sense that life held much for her—there is almost incredible suffering both on her part and on the part of those around her. There is no horror of human life which did not in some way touch her. She even stole a bite of food off a dog's dish in her hunger. She watched her mother and father die by inches through starvation and the constant unexplained arrests to which they were subjected. She saw horrors which would make most books of fiction sound impossible.

IRINA SKARIATINA.

But the mood of the author in "A World Can End" is not a mood of superlatives, nor yet a mood of sensational recitation. She writes with the utmost simplicity, with restraint, and with a dignified lack of complaint, one of the most amazing and the most touching of human documents.

"A World Can End" is an unforgettable life story. It may be only one of the countless books that have come from the exiled Russians of the old regime, who managed to escape from the soviet régime. But it has a certain new gripping quality that becomes tenser and tenser as the book progresses.

It begins with the usual reminiscences of a childhood which, like that of the Grand Duchess Marie recorded in "The Education of a Princess," was rather more lonely than anything else. Irina Skariatina was the youngest child of a noble Russian family, living in the lavish manner which has fascinated the outer world in novels of the old régime, a manner so much grander than the royal families of America have ever achieved, or even than the movies have ever convincingly portrayed, for it is impossible to scale the modern American mind to its grandeur. She, like the Grand Duchess Marie, had few playmates, and, unlike Marie, she had no devoted brother with whom to share her loneliness. She grew into a young woman, was introduced with great ceremony to society, was married, like the grand duchess, unhappily, and left her husband. She, too, went into the Red Cross and became a nurse.

Those reminiscences form the first part of the book. The middle of the book consists of the diary which she kept from March, 1917, to February, 1918. It is an important document from two points of view. It records the progress of the revolution as viewed by a keen observer and a victim who did not appreciate the full extent to which she was a victim. And it records the slow disintegration of a civilization also as viewed by a keen observer and a victim of that disintegration who did not appreciate the full extent to which she was a victim.

Irina Skariatina actually did see the end of a world, and she set down, day by day, the insidious manifestations of that ending. Unlike many of the men and women of her class, she and her parents did not try to escape from soviet Russia. It was not until after her father's death and after her mother's life was doomed if she remained in Russia that an attempt was made to get the dying old woman out of the country. The mother was ironically married to a foreign gardener for a stated sum, and was left by her hired "husband" just over the border, only to die of the pneumonia which she had contracted on the journey. The author was sent out of the country through the activity of the American Relief association, but allowed to depart only when a bolshevik doctor had sworn that she was about to die anyway.

That middle part of the book is a day by day setting down of great human interest, however important its records are historically.

Then the diary suddenly ceases and the last part of the book is the record which the author wrote after she had left Russia, of her last months there. If there are any lower depths of anguish to which the human mind and body of a sensitive human being has been subjected in fact or fiction, I have not read of them. Hunger, disease, terrific cold, exhaustion so complete that human beings died in the snow from sheer lack of power to crawl further, imprisonment, the fear of death a constant menace until it became a hope—the chronicle of man's urge to live through anything, she sets down. "A World Can End" is a remarkable spectacle of man's unquenchable thirst for life.

The scale of human experience that the author records is remarkable, the crescendo of ease and comfort and luxury, the crescendo of suffering and horror. "A World Can End" is not great literature, but it is a great human document.

BY MAE TINEE.

Good morning!

Should a father tell?

The father in "Silence" thinks not.

Clive Brook is the man who keeps his mouth shut.

"Silence" details one of those stories in which an erring man, buffeted by waves of conscience, becomes exceedingly noble. The chap under discussion faces death rather than spill a truth that would bring disaster on the daughter of himself and the long deceased woman to whom he never had given his name. Paradoxically, this silent man is the one who tells the tale. Not to the world, but to the supposed priest who has come to receive his last confession.

As Jim Warren in his prison cell pours out his soul to the lone listener, the camera carries you back to the '90s, when Jim was young, and a lady who kept a dive loved him, and bands played "The Bowery." You meet the girl whom he adores, and wrongs, and who, in her dire extremity, is married by another man. Then, years later, you see what happens when a man's past catches up with him.

Interesting, quite, though the yarn boasts no elements of the unusual.

Mr. Brook acquits himself well, though unremarkably, as the hero. He WILL say ga-a-arl for "girl." Peggy Shannon in a dual rôle is sweet and capable. But the acting honors go to the chap who plays a certain blackmailing Silvers—John Wray his name is—and to Marjorie Rambeau as the lovin' loose lady.

Direction et cetera are fair and there are several laughs to be found in the lines.

KIND: Crook melodrama.

QUALITY: Fair.

ACTING: Exquisite Joan Bennett gives a touching performance. So does the little fellow who plays her small son. Other portrayals are fair to middlin'.

DIRECTION: Conscentious.

STORY: A maiden who has slipped during her first months in the big city regains her foothold on life. She manages to retain it despite banana peels thrown in her path, through the loyalty of a police inspector who never did think she was a Bad Girl. This gentleman's singularly astute machinations result in the downfall of those who would trip her up. Ah, for a friend like that in the department!

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Some.

See you tomorrow.

SWEDISH DAY SET AS BENEFIT FOR THE JOBLESS THIS WINTER

Swedish National day, on Sunday, Sept. 20, is to be turned into a huge benefit to provide a fund to care for families of that nationality who may be caught this winter in the unemployment situation. High carnival at Soldiers' field will commemorate the day, with all phases of the 250,000 Swedish population of the city contributing their share to the program of speaking, singing, choral numbers, drills, gymnastics, and soccer football.

Every cent realized will be turned over to the fund, according to John E. Ericsson, building commissioner, who is general chairman for the event. Funds to defray the expenses of the spectacle are now being raised by private subscription, and a sufficiently large crowd to fill the stadium is anticipated.

Grocers Meet Today to Debate Ways to Greater Net Profits

Merchants from six states are to meet at 10 o'clock this morning at the Apollo theater in the opening session of the two day annual northern regional convention of the Independent Grocers' Alliance of America. More than 2,200 from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri, and Tennessee are expected to attend the meetings, which will take the form of a grocery merchandising institute.

"Greater net profits" will be the theme of the institute, and every phase of food distribution in the modern retail outlet will be discussed in a series of short sketches, chart presentations, dialogues, and motion pictures.

This evening the convention visitors will be guests of the associated manufacturers at a party in Hotel Sherman. The convention will close tomorrow evening with the annual banquet in the same hotel.

Polish Children Display Skill in Forest Pageant

What the summer vacation has meant to 300 Polish children who have been spending it in the forest preserve, at Camp Bemis, was revealed yesterday in a program and exhibit attended by Mayor Cermak, President Emmett Whealan of the county board, and Charles G. Sauers, superintendent of the preserves. A program of gymnastics and dancing was held, and the results of vocational training given the youngsters was seen in the display of various articles made by them during the summer days. President Whealan gave a brief address to the children, their parents, and members of Polish Falcons No. 2, who support the project.

Murray Butler Talks for State Job Insurance

Would Have Industries Bear Chief Part.

Southampton, N. Y., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Security against unemployment, the five day week, rationalization of production, tariff reduction—were some of the measures urged by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university. He spoke at the Parrish Art museum here tonight.

He called on organized industry itself to undertake the major portion of the task by a voluntary insurance system, but declared for some form of state unemployment insurance for those workers who cannot be brought within the purview of direct protection by industry. He wanted, however, safeguards against possible degeneration into a "dole."

He also saw the need for unemployment relief by local communities in cases which do not lend themselves to treatment either by industry or by the state. He warned against a federal unemployment insurance system, saying whatever governmental action in this regard may have to be embarked upon would have to be by the respective states.

Dr. Butler attributed the present world depression to the wide and rapid extension of machine production, economic and commercial dislocations arising from the world war and to influences generated from changes in the value of the accepted standard of the world's monetary system.

The establishment of a balance between production and consumption by means of the expansion of the purchasing power of the population and as a measure of attaining some form of social organization and control of industry was urged by Dr. Butler.

Insull Employes to Give Garden Show This Week

An elaborate and unusual display of garden products, flowers, and vegetables largely, is to be opened to the public, free of charge, Tuesday and Wednesday, by employés of three Insull utility corporations.

The annual garden show of the Utility Employés Home Garden association will be held on those days in customers' hall of the Commonwealth Edison building. Some 40,000 employés of Commonwealth Edison company, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois are eligible for the prizes to be awarded.

O. T. Kreusser Picked to Direct Chicago's Industrial Museum

The appointment of O. T. Kreusser to be director of the Museum of Science and Industry was announced yesterday by W. Rufus Abbott, president of the museum board of trustees. The museum will be in the rebuilt World's Fair Fine Arts building. It was endowed by Julius Rosenwald and is located in Jackson park.

Mr. Kreusser comes to Chicago from General Motors corporation, having been chairman of that concern's new devices committee, director of its proving grounds, and director of engineering tests for the Fisher Body corporation. During the war Mr. Kreusser developed training courses for the army and navy aeronautical schools on the ignition systems of Liberty motors.

"In Mr. Kreusser," said Mr. Abbott, "we have found a brainy man with a wallop—and that is exactly what we need if we are to complete this great educational project on scheduled time."

Mr. Kreusser will take up his new duties within two weeks. Bids for reconstruction of the interior of the old world's fair building are now in the hands of the south park commissioners. Probably ten months will elapse before the building is ready for occupancy.

Cellophane Dress for Bride Shown at the Hotel Sherman

It is easy enough to know what has been and is being worn. It's not so easy to say what's going to be worn—especially when bridging the gap of half a century. Artists who put their imagination to work on the problem and evolved costumes to be shown this week at the Hotel Sherman, at least achieved some novel results as their ideas of what the modes of 1931 will bring forth.

There was, for instance, a bridal costume of cellophane, with a flaring headdress of the same material, built on a modest wreath of flowers such as brides always have worn. The gown itself is a flounced and floor length affair, with a fitted bodice and the same deep decolletage that grandma wore when she was a girl. The bridesmaid's gown, in harmony, was designed on the present day silhouette, with a long skirt, tiered, and a length of ribbon on one arm doing duty as a sleeve.

There also was a bathing suit which by present day standards would be called extremely daring in cut. Made of a thin dark silk, it covers the figure from neck to heels, but includes various slashes which permit of filtration for the ultra-violet rays. A knee length cape and silk and rubber cap complete the ensemble.

THE STAGE

THE Erlanger theater's schedule of bookings has been arranged for the fall. This playhouse will open for the season Oct. 11 with Noel Coward's comedy, "Private Lives." The company will have Edith Taliaferro and Donald Brian in the rôles originated by Gertrude Lawrence and Mr. Coward.

This engagement will be for three weeks, and will be followed by George C. Tyler's revival of Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton," with Walter Hampden and Fay Bainter as stars. On Nov. 15 Earl Carroll's "Vanities," eighth edition, a revue which had a run at the New Amsterdam theater, New York, last season, will arrive.

"The Green Pastures" will begin its unlimited engagement at the Illinois theater tonight. The curtain will rise at 8:20 for evening performances and 2:20 for matinées. The management of the Illinois announces that Sunday night performances will be given, beginning next week. Tickets for all performances for the next four weeks have been placed on mail order and box office sale.

The Adelphi theater will offer its first contribution of the new stage season Monday night, Sept. 21, under the title of "Unexpected Husband." This comedy by Barry Conners will end its New York run Sept. 19 and will come to Chicago with its original cast, including Mary Howard and Arthur Aylesworth. "High Hat," now at the Adelphi, will close its engagement next Saturday night and go on tour.

Rehearsals of Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra," three dramas under one title, will begin in New York today. The cast, however, is still incomplete. Philip Moeller will direct the production for the Theater Guild and at least seven weeks will be spent in preparing the trilogy for its première.

The first musical comedy of the Shuberts' New York season will be a librettization of "Up Pops the Devil." It is scheduled for an early October première, under the title, "Everybody's Welcome." The cast will include Frances Williams, Oscar Shaw, Ann Pennington, the Ritz Brothers, and Harriette Lake. Try-out performances will begin next Monday night in Newark, N. J.

Clark and McCullough, co-stars of "Strike Up the Band" last year, will lead the cast in Peter Arno's musical comedy called "Here Comes the Bride." The show will begin its career in Detroit Oct. 4. C. C.

Mrs. G. S. Leavitt Is New W. C. T. U. Vice President

Announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Ella A. Boole of Evanston, president of the Women's Christian Temperance union, of the appointment of Mrs. Gertrude Stevens Leavitt of Portland, Me., as first vice president of the organization.

Yearly Tragedy of Childhood Is Due Tomorrow

Ball Bats Put in Storage for Opening of School.

Bathing suits and ball bats go into storage tonight as 500,000 Chicago children prepare for the opening of the public schools tomorrow. Weeks of preparation have put everything in readiness, according to Supt. William J. Bogan, and Chicago's 14,000 teachers, though unpaid since April, will be on hand to register what is expected to be a record enrollment.

"The enrollment is expected to exceed by more than 11,000 the September enrollment for last year," said Supt. Bogan. "Depression is the answer. It is a truism among school men that hard times cause a marked increase in school enrollment. Dull times mean a brisk business in education. An increase of more than 7,000 is expected in the junior high school enrollment alone. A decrease, and that not large, is expected only in the primary grade enrollment.

Although three new schools are being opened a serious seat shortage exists. About 62,000 children will be confronted with irregular and inadequate accommodations, Mr. Bogan said. The building program has been at a virtual standstill for want of money.

Despite handicaps, Supt. Bogan has undertaken a program of educational innovations designed to keep Chicago schools abreast of the latest scientific advancements in education. Particular attention is being paid to reading and arithmetic. New reading courses have been prepared for many of the elementary grades and in some schools "reading clinics" will be conducted for children with specific difficulties. Special attention is to be placed on skill in obtaining information from books, use of index, and outlining; compulsory memorization will be eliminated.

Arithmetic will receive special attention at several schools which will be set up as experiment centers. The difficulties of the children in attacking new operations will be analyzed and presented on the basis of a study made last year by a committee of principals under the direction of Dr. G. T. Buswell of the University of Chicago.

Child study methods, which have been in successful operation at the Sullivan Junior High school for the last two years, will be followed through all of the grades in the Joyce Kilmer school. Scientific technique will be used to discover individual and trait differences in mental endowment, special talents and personality.

"The entire procedure," said Superintendent Bogan, "will operate to the end that children may develop completely, freely and happily."

Of particular interest to teachers is a course in creative writing to be given by Prof. John T. Frederick of Northwestern university. Beginning on Sept. 26, there will be 24 weekly lectures at the university and an equal number of roundtable conferences to be arranged in various schools on request. The purpose is to instruct teachers how best to teach children composition and English.

Summing up conditions and plans, Superintendent Bogan last night issued the following statement:

"I take this opportunity to express my hearty appreciation of the remarkable coöperation shown by the teachers and principals toward the central administrative offices and the board of education during the last year. All citizens of Chicago, if they knew the facts regarding the loyalty and devotion of the members of the teaching body would no doubt be as appreciative as I am, and would give every aid for the maintenance of teacher morale. As it is generally known that the board of education has been unable to pay any of its employes for several months except through tax participation certificates, the public doubtless realizes by this time the serious handicaps under which teachers work.

"Notwithstanding these handicaps they have contributed generously of their meager funds to aid the less fortunate, particularly school children. They will doubtless continue to do so even though their financial condition grows steadily worse. In these days when economy is the watchword of every honest public servant, the taxpayers should know that they may expect a great saving during the coming year by the reduction of pupil failures through skillful, modern methods of teaching developed by those who are devoting their lives to the service of the children. Of this prospective achievement I congratulate principals and teachers and the public."

Two new elementary schools have been added to the Catholic school system during the summer and will open Tuesday morning with the other 287 of the city, it was announced yesterday by the Rev. Daniel F. Cunningham, superintendent. The new units are St. Margaret's, in Beverly Hills, and St. Robert's, at 4556 McVickers avenue.

St. Margaret's has a capacity of 1,000 students and St. Robert's will accommodate 500. Aside from these schools, the enrollment is expected to continue at approximately the same level as last year, when it reached 214,000 in the grade and high schools combined. This attendance is distributed among 389 elementary and 66 high schools. The teaching staff is about 5,000, most of them nuns of various orders.

"This year arrangements are being made by the parish priests to see to it that many children whose parents probably will not be able to pay tuition for them, receive the same opportunity for education that more fortunate families have," Father Cunningham said last night. "Our school system is supported both by parents of the children and by members of the different parishes, and while the winter may be hard, we don't want any child to be denied instruction on that account."

Pick Winners Today in County Contest Held for Students

Twenty-one semi-finalists in the home project contest conducted during the summer vacation by Edward J. Tobin, county superintendent of schools, will be selected today. Three candidates will be selected in each of the seven county school districts.

The semi-finalists will be given until the first Saturday in October to prepare the results of their summer's work and to submit a written statement. Then they will gather in the county building office of Supt. Tobin, where four judges, representatives of four fields—medicine, business, labor, and education—will pick seven winners. The latter group will share the awards, which range from $50 for first place to $5 prizes for sixth and seventh places. All the money will be given in the form of bank books with sums credited to the account.

The contest is the sixth conducted by the county school system, and includes three major calssifications: School home projects, including the growing of crops, care of poultry or farm animals and similar farm work; vacation activities, which include intellectual exercises, social activities, and those which prepare for the enjoyment of leisure; financial activities, the earning of money, the initiative shown by the youth or girl, and the use of the earned funds.

All these varied activities are included in credits given by the school. In addition to the curriculum similar to that of the city schools the rural pupils must earn sixteen credits in home project work, which more broadly ranges from the keeping of blooded stock, through physical culture, and the outside reading of approved books.

Pupils to be eligible must be 11 years old, have the consent and cooperation of their parents, and must pursue at least one home project during the summer in addition to reading one book on the school reading lists.

Throughout the summer an inspector in each district has been visiting the students in their homes, watching their progress in their chosen fields, and keeping an account of the efforts of each pupil. The inspector will aid the children chosen from his particular district in preparing the account of the summer's program.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Through a typographical error, George L. Brannen, partner in the brokerage firm of Frazier Jelke & Co., was misquoted in the article yesterday concerning the market speculations of Walter E. Wolf, bank embezzler. Mr. Brannen was represented as saying his firm had knowledge that one of Wolf's accounts now with his company under another name had been questioned by another broker. Mr. Brannen's actual statement was that his firm had no knowledge of the questioning of the account by the other broker.

Playing With Fire

By WILLIAM MAC LEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Lee Reynolds is the owner of a ranch which drought has almost ruined. She leases a Mexican rancho and moves her starving herd there. She is barely settled when a revolution breaks out. Megares, boss man of the border, is the leader. Ranse Brennan, a former foreman of Lee's, is his right hand man. Brennan was discharged by Lee and swore revenge. Lee hires a new hand, who is recognized by Dune Daggett, an old ranch helper, as Jack Hadley, a millionaire oil man of California, whose father owned a mine near Lee's ranch and was murdered by outlaws. Hadley is searching for the murderer of his father. Hadley and Lee call on Megares, who is, apparently, friendly to them. Megares calls at the ranch for dinner and is infatuated with Lee's guest, Mrs. Doris Silver. Next day while out driving Lee and her ranchers are attacked by a band of soldiers.

INSTALLMENT XIX.

MEGARES AS PROTECTOR.

Jack kept going and presently came to a clump of wild cherries. A minute later he was among the bowlders along the edge of the dam.

"You're not hurt?" Lee asked quickly as he emerged from them above the rimrock. She was busy trying to give first aid to Stumpy.

Jack examined the wound of the cowpuncher. The bullet had struck the small of the back and plowed through the vitals.

Briefly Hadley outlined their plan of action. He spoke to Lee. "You and Doris must ride fast to the ranch. Get help and send it to us. You can save us if you hurry."

He lifted Doris to the saddle. "I'm afraid," she moaned. "I—— I——"

"Don't be a fool. I'll hold them here. Ride with Lee and you'll be all right."

He did what could be done to relieve the wounded man. It was not much. To Jack it was apparent that he would not live many hours.

"Don't you worry none about me," the cowboy said. "I'll make out. You go back an' tend to those greasers."

Jack returned to his post. The agitation of thick brush showed the defender where men were creeping up the gulch. He dropped a bullet into the moving foliage and the quivering of branches stopped.

Stumpy had crept to the edge of the rimrock, rifle in hand.

"You lie quiet, Stumpy. I'll do this job," Jack told him.

"Lemme help. It won't hurt me any . . . now. I got mine."

"In much pain?"

"Not so much." After a moment the wounded man plumped out a request, boyishly. "You tell Miss Lee I was game, Smith."

"Game as any one I ever knew, Stumpy." Jack fired at a man dodging across the creek into the cherries. "I'll certainly tell her, though she knows it already."

thies. This poor lost dog of a vaquero, who all his life had been cuffed from pillar to post, had evidently given his heart in dumb devotion to his mistress.

Bullets came pinging against the rockrim and whistled over the heads of the Americans. From somewhere in the bowlders not far below the dam a sharpshooter was sniping.

A flame seared Jack's shoulder. He had been hit. Presently a head was very cautiously lifted above an edge of outcropping quartz. Jack blazed at the forehead aboye the peering eyes. A body pitched into the open and somersaulted into the sharp bowlders below.

The attackers had had enough. Cautiously they gathered their casualties, crept down the canon with them and disappeared around a bend.

When Dune Daggett and the Lazy R riders arrived thirty minutes later, guided by Lee, they found the two on the rimrock holding the battlefield alone.

Lee slipped from Nugget and ran forward to Jack. "You've been hurt," she cried.

"A flesh wound," he told her. Then, in a lower voice, "Stumpy is dying. Forget me and think of him."

Lee knelt down beside the lad. She could see he had not many minutes to live. He smiled feebly.

"Can I do anything for you, dear Stumpy?" she begged. "Anything—anything at all. Have you any father or mother?"

"I ain't got no one . . . If you'd sing for me it'd kinda ease me over the bumps." He got it out a word at a time, gasping for breath.

"Yes. What shall I sing?"

"Sing . . . 'The Cowboy's . . . Dream,' ma'am, if—if——"

Lee sang to him, her arm under his head, her face close to his so that as he slipped away he might hear.

She stooped and kissed him. A smile, happy as that of a pleased child, lit his pale face. The body stiffened and then relaxed, sinking down.

Megares smiled at Lee with all the benevolence of the cat which has swallowed the canary.

"I am desolated to learn of the atrocious attack upon you by murderous bandits. After our cause has triumphed it shall be my pleasure to rid the country of such vermin. Meanwhile, dear lady, I must protect you. By the way, how is Senor Hadley?"

"Doing very nicely. He is up and about, though we think he should remain quiet and rest."

"I shudder to think of what might have happened to you. I shall establish a headquarters here, as well as at Palo Duro."

"But is it necessary that we should trouble you so, General?" Lee protested. "Now that we are warned we can look after ourselves. We shall stay close to the rancho in the future."

"It is decided. If any evil should befall you or Mrs. Silver I would not only be grieved myself beyond measure, but I would be held responsible by your government. So I forestall this evil. From today I am a guest of the rancho. Let me hope, a welcome one."

He knew how welcome he was and he let his appreciation of it show in his grin. Whether she wanted him or not was the least of his worries.

Megares was usually away during the day. He rose early, breakfasted alone, and drove to Palo Duro. Hadley gathered from what he could pick up that the rebellion was not making headway. Locally the revolutionists were in control, but their numbers were not increasing fast and the forces of the government were being consolidated for a decisive campaign.

Megares' intentions regarding Doris he scarcely took the trouble to veil. There was a feline streak in the man. He had jumped to the conclusion that Hadley was in love with Mrs. Silver and he took delight in making love to her before the younger man. Somehow he had learned of Brennan's feeling toward her and he brought Ranse out to the rancho several times for the pleasure of seeing the man's curbed rage when he purred over her.

It did not take Lee long to discover her status in the house. She and Hadley were stopped by a guard as they were starting for the corral where the Lazy R riders were calf branding.

In Spanish Hadley asked the man by whose orders they were detained. He learned that the general had given instructions.

"He's drawing the net closer," Hadley commented to Lee when they were alone.

"What are we to do, Jack?" she asked.

"There's one thing we could do . . . maybe, if we got the breaks. Slip away—the three of us and your riders—and push for the north."

At dinner that night Lee asked Megares if they were prisoners.

"But no, dear lady, why do you ask?" the general replied.

"One of the men you left wouldn't let me and Mr. Hadley out to check the calf branding. He said you gave him orders we were to stay inside."

Megares appeared to be distressed at this interpretation of the incident. "Absurd, Miss Reynolds. You are my charming hostess and I am your indebted guest. But you are too daring. I must protect you against these assassin guerrillas. You are safer at home."

The general had brought Brennan to dinner with him. The big man laughed unpleasantly. Megares glared at him.

Her nerves a bit on edge, Doris made petulant complaint. "Good gracious, what's the matter with everybody? I haven't seen a real smile or heard a laugh for a week. I wish you'd take your old revolution off somewhere and bury it, General."

"If you would help me to forget it, lovely lady, I would be enchanted." He leered across the table at her and spoke in a strange whisper. "I will walk with you in the patio after dinner and discuss that, chiquita, if you will so far honor a rough soldier."

It was while he and Doris were smoking together in the patio that Lee approached Brennan.

"Why did you laugh when Gen. Megares said he must protect us from the guerrillas?" she asked.

A Friend in Need

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Invalid Collects Stamps.

"I am a girl, 23, and have lain helpless for three years following tuberculosis meningitis. I am gradually growing stronger, but will not be cured for many months. I am seeking some means to brighten up the weary days and have turned to stamp collecting. I am just beginning and would appreciate any stamps from other collectors, also any literature on the subject. M. R."

Ardent collectors often accumulate more than one of a kind in stamps and perhaps a few of the duplicates could be sent to M. R. There are so few diversions to occupy the bedridden invalid, I should like to see her get all the possible joy out of her stamp collecting.

Bedding Required.

"Do you think you could get me a spring for a full size bed and a mattress for a three-quarters bed? We also need bed linen and blankets. My husband deserted us seven months ago because he was out of work and couldn't support us. My son is old enough to work, but he cannot find a job. MRS. K."

Can you supply Mrs. K. with these articles which are so urgently needed? She has no means of providing these for herself and must depend on those who are blessed with more of this world's goods.

One Nest's Enough for Masculine Home Body, Thinks Doris

BY DORIS BLAKE.

That recent shooting episode in which there figured a lady not the gentleman's wife and an ambitious young statesman ought to remind men that they'll get into far less trouble if they will direct their extra spending money into the legal mate's savings account. No gentleman has ever been criticized for that legitimate disposition of his money. No reputation wrecked. No career ruined.

It takes a heap of honest living to right one's good name after it has been spread on the news records in sensational type and story, as the latest victim will testify in years to come. Always there will be some long memoried person to say: "Wasn't he the man who figured in so-and-so."

Where do these goofy gentlemen get the idea that they haven't arrived until they get themselves [and fair company] set up in a love nest?

From where do they get the idea that they're great guys getting away with the double style of living? Who told them that that extra apartment upkeep was any barometer of success?

Texas Guinan's well known greeting to her night club patrons is the word for these male "home bodies" who must have a couple of homes to swell their chests.

If it's conquest and heavy male stuff they're trying to play, their pride is due for a terrible fall. For the woods are full these days of dames, lazy, unscrupulous, ease loving creatures who'd take on any man who'd pay the rent—and extras. It's the strong man who can look one of them in the eye and say: "No, thanks, you run along your way, and I'll go mine."

Theirs is a business luring them on. Part of their salesmanship is seeming amiable, agreeable to any back street arrangement suggested. But it's a business that develops claws, whether they were there in the beginning or not, the better to hold their bait once they've got the hooks in. No man dreams that his affair is going to be spread out for the world to read. Nor obviously does he realize that even without publicity he's going to have to pay dearly to get free of his entanglement.

For that matter, why should he go free? He's always over 21, boasts of having all his wisdom teeth, but behaves like a plain, unvarnished simpleton.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Sept. 7.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. William R. Coe Jr., who were at the Pierre, have returned to their country place in Glen Head, L. I. Mr. Coe's brother, Robert D. Coe., sailed yesterday to take up his duties as third secretary of the American embassy in Istanbul, Turkey.

Miss Margaret A. Sparrow of this city and Locust Valley has gone to Paris for an extended visit with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Grant Sparrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Junius Parker have gone to Briarcliff Lodge for the remainder of the month.

You are well suited as to age, Anna. Most girls prefer to go out with boys who are somewhat older.

Paris Shops, Lunches in One Color Suits

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The fashionable world that makes Paris a general headquarters comes to town, these first fall days, to do a little shopping or to lunch, from some of the nearby resorts, though the season is still ostensibly closed. These pilgrims when they appear in Paris are almost invariably wearing some new version of the jacket ensemble. The one color jacket and dress have replaced the contrasting jacket and frock almost entirely. Gray and beige jacket ensembles are back, and many a chic shopper wears a simple suit or jacket outfit in one of these two practical shades.

The jackets of such ansembles have become longer, and instead of ending at the hip bone they extend well below the actual hipline, as does the Worth jacket in our sketch. They are usually trimmed with fur, and give importance to the fur trimmed suit for late fall and early winter wear.

The model sketched here is made of smoky gray broadcloth and has a wide, draped collar of gray ermine that matches it exactly. The jacket is belted with gray suede and has a rounded, cutaway closing. The sleeves widen slightly above the wrists and are slit up a few inches at the back.

Under this jacket is worn the frock shown in the small sketch, made of gray broadcloth to match the jacket, with a yoke and sleeves of gray georgette. This yoke descends in a vestee in front and its V-shaped closing is embroidered in bright blue scallops and dots. Three blue buttons hold the embroidered edges together, as shown. The short sleeves also have embroidered edges.

This is the kind of ensemble that is going to be supremely smart for street wear in early fall.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you happened to be out on that recent rainy day when folk were caught midway between street car and shop you, too, might have seen the "wet plume" sisters observed on the big shopping avenue. And you, too, would have said, "But why Eugénie plumes with the sports frocks?" The sudden downpour they were not responsible for—but the ensemble mistake, made more grotesque, with the downpour, was theirs.

Now, if there is one thing that must be done with this new millinery of ours, it is to shop, to look, and to listen for harmony of hat and dress. As a matter of fact, the open question is whether the new millinery is not just a bit too much in advance of the clothes for sweet harmony's sake. It is argued that the dresses aren't yet Second Empirish enough for the bonnets. But you can thrash that out among yourselves.

Meanwhile, if you're buying a bonnet of the new angles, dips, and feather trim, just consider what dress company it is going to keep. Already, of course, we are being treated to moderation in Eugénie millinery output so that one can be adjusted harmoniously in frock and hat.

The hue and cry that the average woman cannot wear the millinery of today just has to be ignored. She'll wear them or die in the attempt. So she might just as well make a serious business, and not an afternoon shopping jaunt of her hat purchase. There's the business of coiffure, too, that has to be gone into thoroughly. It makes all the difference in the world in the hat. And as long as hats have set a completely new style in millinery, why not look into a completely new style of coiffure.

There's no reason on earth why a woman should go through life with a coiffure "uniform." Here's a grand chance to see just how much of a riot you might become under other coiffure circumstances. It's good for the soul to revolutionize that exterior person now and then. The new shaped hat helps but you might as well complete the job with a dashing new coiff.

Jane Condon, T.W. Brophy III Are Engaged

BY THALIA

Mr. and Mrs. James G. Condon of 1500 Lake Shore drive announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jane Condon, to Truman W. Brophy III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Truman W. Brophy of 1530 Lake Shore drive.

Miss Jane and "Bill" Brophy have been with each other ever since their younger school days when she went to the Girls' Latin school and he to the Boys'. She studied for a year in Europe with a traveling school, and attended Northwestern for a while, too.

She made her debut during the 1926-27 season, and since then has been an active worker in various activities on the boards and committees of the Junior league, the Service club, the Arden Shore association, and the Lighthouse.

Mr. Brophy is a grandson and namesake of the distinguished oral surgeon and prominent Chicagoan, for his Dr. Truman W. Brophy, and on his mother's side of the late Bernard A. Eckhart and Mrs. Eckhart. He was graduated in 1930 from Yale and studied last year at the University of California. No date has been set for the wedding, which will take place some time this winter.

The young people are enjoying the status of "telling people" and receiving the enthusiastic attention always accorded to the newly engaged up at Shattuckwoc, Wis. They're guests over the Labor day week-end of Mr. Brophy's aunt, Mrs. Reginald Willson of Milwaukee, at the Williams summer place.

There's an end-to-summer feeling in the social atmosphere, and everybody is getting ready to throw off the vacation state of mind after the holiday week-end. Country clubs, most of them had dinner-dances Saturday night, and are having special golf events today for the men. Country homes almost all have large or small house parties, according to their respective capacities.

Weekend notes—Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum had a Labor day house party of young people for her son, Bervyn, at the Baums' Longcroft, across the lake near South Haven . . . The Yih Wagenen Allings and their son-in-law and daughter, the Charles T. Downs, went up to Harbor Point for the wedding of Miss Emily Otis and Nathaniel A. Owings . . . the John T. Fries II. of Winnetka had some guests from Milwaukee. . . . Gen. Allen Foreman was wearing a flowing maroon tie with white polka dots to match his pocket handkerchief on Saturday. . . . Miss Ghita Watson and Walter Field McLallen III. got their marriage license Saturday morning at the county building . . . The John Colemans of Lake Forest went to Huron Mountain for the week-end, and a few days extra . . . President and Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins of the U. of C. are to get home today from their vacation on the island of Inland.

Mrs. Lorenzo Johnson, her daughter, Mrs. George B. Massey, and her daughter, Nicole, who have been in Santa Barbara all summer, have returned to Winnetka. Before they left Las Olas, the place in Santa Barbara, Mrs. Johnson's grandson, Raymond Hardenbergh Jr., who was with them, had four eastern visitors, Stewart Patterson, Edward Leedy of St. Paul, Thomas Boal of Winnetka [another of Mrs. Johnson's grandsons], and Benjamin Crawford, son of Mrs. Frank Taylor Crawford of Winnetka.

I don't remember hearing or seeing anywhere that Miss Mabel Linn had a house in Hollywood for the summer. She has, though, and she left it week before last for a visit in Santa Barbara during the fiesta festivities.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Burnham, who are at their Mackinac island place, "Lovers' Leap" [now why is it called that, I wonder?], are to sail on the 15th on the S. S. France with their daughter Mardi, who is returning to l'Ecole Brillantmonte at Lausanne, Switzerland, for another year.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Johnston, who's been feted during the last fortnight at pre-nuptial parties, has several more on her list before her marriage on Saturday to Conway Howard Olmsted of New York.

Miss Eleanor McCormick and Miss Dorothy Ranney, who are to come from Bar Harbor and Charlevoix respectively to act as bridesmaids, will be hostesses at a dinner on Wednesday evening at Onwentsia, and on Thursday evening the bride's cousin, Mrs. Willard Newhall Boyden [Angela Johnston], who is to be maid of honor, is giving a dinner for Miss Johnston and her bridesmaids. Mr. Olmsted is to hold his bachelor dinner on the same evening.

The bridal dinner will be given on Friday evening at Onwentsia by Miss Johnston's brother, Hulburd Johnston, and there will be a dance afterward. While the young people are being entertained at Onwentsia the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, will give a dinner at their Lake Forest residence for relatives of the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Patterson of Philadelphia have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaretta M. Patterson, to John Mead Montgomery of Evanston.

The engagement of Miss Jane Condon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Condon of 1500 Lake Shore drive, to Truman W. Brophy III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Truman W. Brophy Jr. of 1530 Lake Shore drive, is announced by Mr. and Mrs. Condon this morning.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

For the third consecutive year a neighborhood group of Berwyn children remembered the suffering among babies in the tenements during the summer weather, and set to work with a will in an attempt to swell THE TRIBUNE free ice fund.

On two years they gave circuses, but this year they tried something new—a puppet show. It was called "Little Red Riding Hood," and was so well advertised that $2 was raised for the ice fund.

The children made their own puppets. Those taking part were Betty Smith, Martha Smith, Donna H. Carey and Jess Elizabeth Hartsough.

Some time ago the initials "F. J. C." appeared in the list of donors. Yesterday the ice and Camp Algonquin funds each received a check for $3 accompanied by this note from the same source. "I am inclosing a second small check to help in the need. I wish it could be much more."

Thus the small gifts as well as the larger ones swell the funds, bringing them a little nearer the goals set for the 1931 season. More ice may be delivered to underprivileged homes to keep whole families well.

FREE ICE FUND.

Earl Dodd Sherman and playmates	$ 12.12

Dedicates Yankees' $1,000,000 Church in Paris; Raps Russians

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 6.—In his dedicatory sermon inaugurating the new $1,000,000 American church of Paris today, its pastor, the Rev. Dr. Joseph Wilson Cochran, remarked upon the striking antithesis between the spirit existing among the Americans who had the faith to raise this edifice and the spirit in Russia.

"The Old Testament, verified by history, teaches that religion determines national vitality and performance," Dr. Cochran said. "Have we learned this lesson?

"While the soviets are turning the majestic fanes of the orthodox church of Russia into barracks, granaries, warehouses, and museums on the theory that 'religion is the opium of the people' and God merely the bogey of a capitalistic state, we find ourselves dedicating this noble pile of faith in the continuity and progress of the kingdom of God on earth."

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Washington society is literally "out of town." The only member of the cabinet here is Secretary Mellon. He is spending the week-end and the holiday quietly in his luxurious apartment, 1785 Massachusetts avenue.

The chief of cavalry, Maj. Gen. Guy V. Henry, and Mrs. Henry, accompanied by their younger daughter, Patricia, and their son, John, have returned from the north. Miss Mary Henry, who made her debut last winter, is in Montana and will go to West Point this week for a visit before returning to Washington.

Mrs. Borah, wife of the senator from Idaho, has returned to their home here, where the senator will join her this week. She has been for some weeks the guest of former Representative and Mrs. T. T. Ansberry in their summer home in the White mountains of New Hampshire.

The Peruvian ambassador, Señor Don Manuel de Freyer y Santander, has leased the home of Representative and Mrs. Richard Aldrich, Massachusetts avenue and 15th street.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Buck of Chicago, who are making a motor trip in the east, are spending some days at the Mayflower

These Finer Wool Fabrics

In a Special Selling at a Price Far Below Usual

Lucky is the woman who sews—for fine wool fabrics at the price will enable her to have the very best fashions at a cost so small as to be negligible!

There are dozens of weaves to select from, sheer ones, pebbly weaves, the rough spongy woolens, in a quality so fine as to be distinctive. Black, the dark clear browns, dark and bright greens, reds from the wine shades to the bright ones; beiges, blues.

Again we repeat: Fashion and quality are offered in this selling at prices almost impossible to duplicate, and which will last during this sale only.

Sale of New Fall Silks At $1.75 Yard

Every Weave a High Fashion—An Incredibly Low Price

Satin Crepes, Canton Crepes, Flat Crepes, Novelty Suitings

You'll want silk frocks—some to contrast sharply with your coat, some to match or blend. If you make them yourself of the fabrics in this sale, you can have so many more.

And the nicest thing about this group, besides its superior quality, is the fact that there is practically every kind of fall silk to choose from, in a complete range of fall colors.

This sale presents values far greater than we have offered in years for silks of this quality and fashion. Complete your fall wardrobe now with frocks for every occasion made of these lustrous rich fabrics. Priced for this selling only, $1.75 yd.

At the Same Time We Offer a Limited Quantity in

A Sale of Black Silks at $1.75 Yard

Flat Crepes, Canton Crepes, Satin Crepes

Silk Section, Second Floor.

"The Black Diamond"

Something new in a hat fabric—as black as black can be—with a soft deep pile that catches high lights deftly and has a velvety richness that is in perfect complement with the new Empire fashions in hats. It blends with velvet frocks in a formal way and contrasts the dull silks smartly.

This collection includes tricornes and brims which have been modified beautifully into perk little hats that are generally becoming. Headsizes from 21½ to 24.

Black, brown, kiltie green, riff red, algerie, Admiralty blue.

Claire Soeurs inspired this two-piece knitted frock, with its sleeveless bolero, square neck and deep yoke of contrasting color. Brown with Spanish tile or green, black with Spahi red or green. 14 to 18.	It looks like a frock—this three-piece suit, with a vest-blouse of satin, a jacket with buttons and scarf of baronduki. Spanish tile, tallyho green, durbar brown chellita cloth. Sizes 14, 16, 18.	Contrasting fabrics are as smart as two colors this season. The broad yoke of this crepe frock is of cut woolen resembling mesh. A wide belt stresses the fitted silhouette. Black, green, beige. Misses' sizes.	With mesh weaves demanding so much attention this fall, this woolen frock in a soft mesh weave is important. A three-piece suit, with color contrast its supplementary theme. Rust, wine, brown, navy. Sizes 14 to 20.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Vito Frasier crawled out of a [illegible] yesterday to win his twelfth victory of the season in the year's American league final at Comiskey park. The Detroit Tigers were his victims, 4 to 1, and the win gave the Sox an even split in the 1931 series between the two teams.

VITO FRASIER.

The performance restored Frasier as a possible starter in the big 100 per cent charity game against the Cubs, though the decision between him and Lefty Faber will be held in abeyance pending the goings on in the double-headers in Cleveland today and tomorrow.

Sox Get Only Six Hits.

While the Sox were pleased to close their home season with a triumph, it cannot be said they accomplished any great amount of bone crushing in racking up their four runs. For the third successive day they were held to six hits, all singles again, but Victor Sorrell was wild—he issued 11 passes in all, four of them to the Chicago batter. Three of Sorrell's walks were mixed up with three Sox singles in the seventh, the inning in which the Chicagoans effected their entire scoring tabulation for the day.

For a long time it appeared that the Sox were going through the entire afternoon without any punch whatever. In the second inning they filled the bases full with but one out, as a result of two walks and an error, but Blue was called out on strikes and Sullivan rolled out to Alexander. In the fourth inning they had two on, as a result of two walks, and could make no headway; in the fifth they had the bases full with one out, and got nowhere, and in the sixth they permitted two more base runners to perish.

Appling Capitalizes on Muff.

The Tigers made their run in the sixth on three hits and might have made many more but for the fact that Luke Appling, who had a great day, turned a muff into a double play. Koenig led off the inning with a single to right. Stone popped to Kerr, but ponderous Dale Alexander beat out an infield hit because Sullivan paused to take a full pitcher window before throwing to first. G. Walker followed with a single to right, scoring Koenig. Rogell then sent a pop fly to short left and Appling muffed it. But Luke picked up the ball and threw to Sullivan, who got Alexander at third, then threw to Kerr, who in turn threw to Blue to double Rogell between second and first.

Jolley Starts Rally.

The Sox rally in the seventh was started by Smead Jolley, who made his first appearance in a starting lineup since May 21. Smead singled to center with one down and went to third on Appling's single to center. Fothergill then was sent to bat for Kerr and Lyons was put on third to run for Jolley. Fothergill popped a fly to short left and in his eagerness to get to the plate to head off the tying run Stone dropped the ball. He recovered in time to force Appling at second, but Lyons had made the score 4 to 1. Grube walked and Frasier got his fourth successive pass to fill the bases, then Blue walked, forcing in Fothergill. Sullivan then knocked his second hit, a single over second, Grube and Frasier scoring and Blue taking third. Watwood forced Sullivan.

Frasier didn't walk a batsman until the ninth, then he passed Alexander and G. Walker. Rogell got three balls, then forced G. Walker, Jeffries to Appling. Richardson ended the game by hitting into a double play, Jeffries to Appling to Blue.

KAYE DON BEATS WOOD; SETS NEW SPEEDBOAT MARK

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Roaring like a meteor over the Detroit river course, Kaye Don, with his Miss England II., British challenger, defeated Gar Wood in his Miss America IX., in the first heat of the Harmsworth trophy race today.

The quiet mannered Briton drove his roaring hydroplane to a new competitive race speed record of 89.913 miles an hour for the 30 mile run. In one lap of the five mile course he pushed the silver and white hulled hydroplane around the gourd shaped route at a speed of 93.017 statute miles an hour.

It was the first time in Gar Wood's career as defender of the famed British international trophy, which he first won in England in 1920, that he has finished second in any heat of this speed boat classic. His average for the 30 miles was 87.027 and his fastest lap was at a speed of 91.989 statute miles an hour.

Don Gets Best Start.

Wood took his defeat philosophically. "It was a good race and I am satisfied," he said. "Remember, we have another race tomorrow, and with better water and favorable conditions we will give Don a run. If he wins it will be all right. The Harmsworth has been in this country too long; it's getting mildewed here."

"It was the stiffest race I've ever had," was Don's comment. "We hope to do as well tomorrow."

To win the trophy Don must win two 30 mile heats.

Miss England II. literally leaped away from the defender. Making good his promise of several days ago, Don got his craft across the starting line ahead of Wood. It was on the straightaways that he had hoped for the speed necessary to beat the gray haired veteran. Approaching the start, a few seconds before the gun, Wood and Don were abreast, with America VIII., driven by George Wood, following closely behind.

Barely Miss Disaster.

About an eighth of a mile from the start, Don and Wood almost simultaneously called for wide open throttles. Don's craft, holding the water splendidly, shot forward to take a lead. He steadily increased this, until at the finish he was nearly a mile and a half ahead of the defending craft.

The challenger skidded badly on some of the sharp turns, but Don surprised the thousands of spectators with the skill with which it rounded them and immediately gained speed again on the straightaways. Only once did the skidding propensities of Miss England II. seem to threaten mishap. Near the end of the second lap Miss England's exhaust tubes belched flames and she skidded about 50 feet toward a landing dock. Thinking fast, Don shut off her engines, and by skillful maneuvering straightened her and was away again, having lost little, if any, of the big lead he had piled up.

No Straightaway Time.

No time was recorded of the maximum speed attained by Don on the straightaways, but to attain a timing at the rate of more than 93 miles an hour on one five mile lap with its three positive turns and one wide sweep, race officials estimated he must have had his craft well up near the 110 miles an hour it made at Lake Garda, Italy, last year.

The pace that Don set is emphasized by the fact that even Miss America VIII., regarded more or less as a safety entry for Wood, also broke the Harmsworth record, averaging 85.861 miles per hour.

The second thirty-mile heat is scheduled for 5:30 p. m. tomorrow. If a third is necessary, it will be run Tuesday.

Scotch Soccer Player Dies of Kick in Head

GLASGOW, Scotland, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Kicked in the head during a soccer match between the Celtics and Rangers yesterday, John Thompson, 23-year-old Scottish internationalist, died today. An operation failed to save his life. Thompson, a goalkeeper, was a member of the Celtic team that toured the United States and Canada last summer.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

Business may be off at the race tracks and slightly below peak figures in the baseball parks, but there is no depression in intercollegiate football. At least not at Notre Dame.

TUG WILSON.

Thousands have been wondering about the effect of Knute Rockne's death on the popularity of the teams that will carry on for Notre Dame.

There is no better way to gauge drawing power than by applications for tickets. While the opening of the season is still a month away, there are indications that this will be the biggest year from the point of attendance in the school's history.

On Oct. 10 Notre Dame plays Northwestern at Soldiers' field. It is too early for a game of this importance, but it was the only date suitable to both schools. Tug Wilson of Northwestern and Jess Harper of Notre Dame have doubted all summer whether the game would fill the stadium while the fans still are talking baseball.

It Might Be Smith.

They apparently need worry no longer. Northwestern already has sold 25,000 tickets. Notre Dame has disposed of 20,000. That is nearly half the capacity of Soldiers' field. Mr. Wilson says there have been more applications for tickets to the Notre Dame game than all the other contests on the Northwestern schedule combined. The demand at Notre Dame for the battle with the Wildcats is greater than it was at this time a year ago, when thousands were turned away from Dyche stadium because there were no seats available.

Notre Dame this year plays the Army at Yankee stadium, New York. Each school sells half of the seats. Art Haley, ticket manager at Notre Dame, reports that his allotment of 40,000 will be gone by the end of this week. Tickets for the Southern California game at South Bend have been selling surprisingly fast. Mr. Haley states that business is also good for the Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh games.

Those Carnegie Foundation fellows ought to look into this right away. Didn't they say football interest was on the wane?

About Owl Baseball.

E. Lee Keyser, president of the Des Moines club of the Western league, dropped into this department the other evening to correct what he claimed was erroneous information recently given out by Dale Gear, president of the league, in regard to night baseball. Mr. Gear had been quoted in the newspapers to the effect that baseball after dark was losing its appeal.

Mr. Keyser, a pioneer of the moonlight game, has facts and figures to show that his idea is still sound, provided the lighting effects are adequate. He contends that only a small percentage of the men and women in the smaller cities find it consistently convenient to leave their homes or business in the afternoon.

"The trouble with night baseball is that only a few parks have a real lighting system. Among the good plants are Des Moines, Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Indianapolis. There are lighting systems and lighting systems. You can get one for $9,000 or you can spend $20,000 to $30,000. The results will be in that ratio. Mechanics of the play are not impaired where good lighting has been installed.

"In our case owl baseball has greatly stimulated week night trade. The Des Moines club will have as much money in the bank at the end of this season as it did in 1925 and 1926, when we won pennants under the sun. Those were the days when baseball was in a healthy condition everywhere.

"Compare our record with some of the American association clubs which never have gone in for night baseball. Four or five years ago a team like St. Paul, for instance, played to more than 300,000 in a season. Mike Kelly, manager of the Minneapolis club, tells me they do not expect to reach more than half that figure this season.

"It isn't fair to compare figures for

NOW MR. HORNSBY IS WORRIED OVER CHARITY PITCHER

Double Headers Leave Cubs in Troubled State.

In the midst of his other troubles Rogers Hornsby, Cub manager, is trying to figure where he can locate a pitcher to employ against the White Sox in the unemployment fund game scheduled for Comiskey park Wednesday afternoon.

Pat Malone was the original choice and still is a nominee, but his appearance depends entirely on what takes place while the Cubs and Cardinals are battling this morning and afternoon at Wrigley field.

The plans Hornsby had made were upset by the five successive flops at Cincinnati last week. The scheme was to get out of Cincinnati, if possible, so that Les Sweetland could have worked against his pet team, the Pirates, yesterday, thus leaving Root and Bush for the Cardinals today.

It Might Be Smith.

Root by taking yesterday's assignment used up his energy, at least for 48 hours, which will leave him available for the Sox if Hornsby wants it that way. If Malone should handle half of today's program Bob Smith will get into line as a candidate for the charity effort.

It is assured now that the jovial Mr. Jolley will be among those present when the game starts before what might prove a record breaking baseball crowd for Chicago. The loss of Carl Reynolds, through an ankle injury, took from the Sox one of their most dangerous hitters, so Manager Bush has decided that the gap can best be filled by Jolley's bat. Smead still is bothered slightly by the ailing ankle which kept him out of employment most of the season.

Barton May Play.

The Cubs are expecting to be treated to a look at the veteran Red Faber's revived spitter. They have seen a few of these same things this year, notably Burleigh Grimes and Jack Quinn, and what they did against that variety of pitching is nothing for them to mention while asking for a raise. They are hoping they can train up a bit by swinging against Grimes today.

Vin Barton, the Cub right fielder who was called home by the death of a brother, is expected to return in time to do his bit for charity. If he doesn't show up Pitcher Bud Teachout probably will perform in right field.

Although box seats for the show are about exhausted there will be ample space for the $1.00 grand stand spectators. Approximately 30,000 of these tickets will be placed on sale at Comiskey park at nine o'clock on Wednesday morning.

HURLINGHAM 4 LOSES, 15-9; SANTA PAULA TRIUMPHS

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Making their final practice preparations for the United States open polo championship starting at Westbury on Wednesday, Argentina's two entrants, Santa Paula and Hurlingham, won and lost today.

Santa Paula trounced Tommy Hitchcock's Greentree four at Port Washington, 12 to 4, while Hurlingham bowed to a United States army team at Mitchel field, 15 to 9.

Santa Paula, lining up with Alfredo Harrington, Juan and José Feynal and Andres Gazzotti, formed a 25-goal side that swept through the 27-goal Greentree combination without trouble.

Hurlingham's eight-goal No. 1, Juan B. Miles, suffered a shoulder injury in the first period when he fell from his mount. He will be out of play for at least a week.

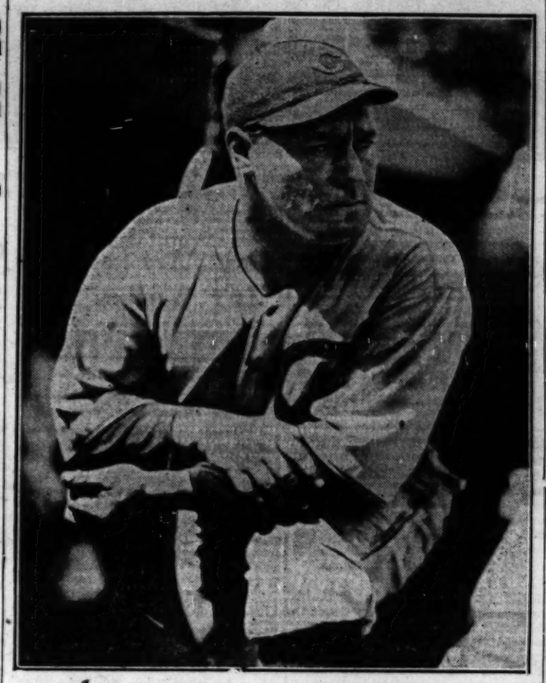
GRIEF FOR PLAYBOY



It's a tough life, Hack Wilson will tell you. He's not a bit cheerful as he reflects on his poor season. Now his troubles are multiplied. He was suspended yesterday for the rest of the year and his pay stops. Whata life!

Ever Hear This Fish Story? They Put the Gloves on 'Em

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 6.—And now come the Siamese fighting fish to appease mankind's lust for vicarious battle. The Siamese fighting fish, which are on exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History, are said to have an intensely romantic nature and a jealous disposition.

Imposing on the tender emotions of the fish, the Siamese peasants place the males in two bowls close together and place their wagers on the impending fight. Up to this time the two fish, being total strangers, have nothing against one another. But when the money is all down a bowl of good looking feminine fish is placed between the two bowls containing the susceptible males.

The gentleman fish now begin to make themselves as attractive as possible, showing their muscles and performing fancy dives until they become suddenly aware, from the divided attention of the fair sex, that competition is rife. This causes mutual resentment and one fish remarks to the ladies: "Pardon me, but if that fish over there is annoying you, just let me know."

Toss 'Em in Bowl.

Their anger now reaching a certain stage, one fish observes that but for the presence of ladies he would be glad to settle the matter, fish to fish. At this point, the cynical Siamese peasants remove the bowl containing the sirens and dump the two males into one bowl.

It is said that they attack instantly, and that in a few minutes one or the other is dead.

This is clearly a foul abuse of the love motive in a sporting contest, and I doubt that chivalrous American sportsmen will approve the Siamese fish fight unless some other method can be found to arouse the fighting instincts of the fish. Even the moose call has been frowned upon by the better class of sportsmen because when the guide puts the horn to his mouth and yodels into the wild, that call, to the bull moose, is intended to sound like a lady moose singing "Body and Soul."

Must Have Husky Voices.

It must be that lady moose have very husky voices like some actresses, for otherwise the bull moose could not be deceived by the voice of a guide yelling through a horn. At any rate the more honorable type of sportsmen contend that when the horn is used at all, the guide ought to be compelled to say, "This is a party of New York sportsmen with big rifles out hunting moose."

This might frighten off the moose, but with not a few of the city sportsmen who go into the woods this would be quite all right, too. It is an acknowledged fact that the greatest fear of some moose hunters is that they will find a moose or vice versa.

In none of the contests between men or animals is the heart interest of the contestants exploited for the destruction of one or the other of the principals.

Exploit Love Angle.

The prize fighters fight for guarantees with the privilege of a percentage, the dogs in the pit fight because they have been starved, and the roosters gouge one another in the mains of Florida and Cuba because they happen to have disagreeable dispositions. Just why it is that the Tennessee doodlebug fights to the death, refusing to leave the confines of a six inch circle scratched on the ground with a twig or match stick until he kills his opponent or is killed himself, has never been satisfactorily explained.

It is hard to believe, however, that

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Those Cubs don't seem able to turn around and make a fresh start in the right direction. Even Charley Root, the fellow who usually sets things in order, couldn't shake them out of their losing ways yesterday. The Pirates defeated him, 5 to 4, in a struggle that, while worth looking at, didn't prevent the north siders' string of defeats from stretching to seven games, the first six of which were piled up by the humble Reds.

Although faced by Glen Spencer, a youngster who has been a source of annoyance to them all season, the Cubs, at least for the greater part of the game, were able to keep themselves from being submerged. Once they whittled down a two run Pirate lead and later did the same to a one run lead. But just after this second tie was created Root caved in and two Pittsburgh runs in the eighth were just enough to prevent a rally in the home half from being of any value. The latter incident was cut short by a double play.

Youngsters Hit the Ball.

If nothing else the 20,000 in attendance at least saw Hornsby's two Boy Scout infielders at their best. Two singles rattled off the bat of Billy Herman, and Pepper Adair did a bit better by doubling in the fourth and singling when the Cubs were making their vain effort to stave off defeat in the eighth. With the exception of this pair the Cubs were slightly remiss in their duties as sluggers. And to partly eclipse his hitting Herman, whose single was followed by a hit by Cuyler in the opening inning, allowed himself to be plucked off third base.

Bush and Smith will be summoned for the morning and afternoon games with the Cardinals today. The Cubs may have to look at Derringer and Grimes. The preluncheon battle will start at 10:15.

Pirates Pick Up Two.

Paul Waner's drive, which caromed off Adair's chest for a single with one out, started the Pirates on the way to a pair of runs off Root in the second. Piet had to do something to reward some of his fellow citizens who came out from Hegewisch to hand him a traveling bag. He doubled to left, P. Waner halting at third. On a single to left by Thevenow the elder of the Waner boys scored, but Piet halted at third. Grace fouled to right and Teachout, who is not yet wise to all the outfielding tricks, reached into the stand and caught the ball. Piet scored on the play.

To compensate for his excusable mistake, Teachout assumed responsibility for getting the Cubs under way in the home half of the second. He spanked a single into center. Grimm assisted by coaxing a pass from Spencer. Adair's sacrifice bunt moved the two runners along and both scored on Hartnett's line single to

IGNORES CLUB'S TRAINING RULES, HORNSBY SAYS

Malone Is Fined for Same Offense.

Get New Outfielder

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 6.—(AP)—President E. Lee Keyser tonight announced that Mike Kreevich, star right fielder of the Des Moines club of the Western league, will play in the Chicago Cubs outfield tomorrow. Kreevich was purchased by the Cubs two weeks ago and was to have reported to the Cubs in the spring. The suspension of Hack Wilson today caused the Cubs to make arrangements for the immediate delivery of the player.

Hack Wilson, the National league's home run hero of 1930, has been in a Cubs uniform for the last time. He was formally drummed out of the ranks yesterday. At the same time a substantial fine was imposed on Pitcher Pat Malone.

PAT MALONE.

Following a conference between Manager Rogers Hornsby and President William Veeck announcement was made that "Wilson has been suspended for the balance of the season."

His future as a major leaguer depends entirely on whether any other club will accept his services after the present season comes to a close.

Wilson was immediately paid off for five days of work during September. The balance due on his $33,000 contract never will be paid. The loss to Hack is approximately $3,500.

"Fails to Observe Rules."

The charge against Wilson is "failure to observe training rules" as laid down by Hornsby. Malone was deemed guilty of the same offense, but because he isn't a chronic offender he was dealt with less severely. He and Wilson are supposed to have cut up a bit before leaving Cincinnati Saturday night.

The banishment of Wilson brought the end to a problem which had confronted Hornsby since early in the season. When it became evident that Wilson was no longer a terror with the bat, Hornsby benched him. Grieved over his own collapse, Hack endeavored to console himself by openly declaring the club was giving him a bum break.

He complained at various times that he had been assessed $1,800 in fines. If this is true his losses for the season will be in the neighborhood of $5,500.

Escapes Earlier Suspension.

It also was learned yesterday that Wilson would have been suspended in New York ten days ago if Hornsby hadn't changed his mind. Upon learning that Hack had transgressed while in the metropolis, Hornsby ordered that he be given transportation back to Chicago. Wilson pleaded for another chance. Before the entire team he made a club house speech in which he promised to mend his ways. At the same time he lauded Hornsby as a man who had played fair with him. After this speech the manager decided to withdraw the suspension order.

Wilson came to the Cubs by draft from Toledo at the end of the 1926 season. He had been the property of the Giants, but a clerical error in the office of the latter club made him subject to selection. The Cubs, having finished in last place in 1925, had first pick. Hack's biggest season was last year when he hit 56 home runs. This year he has 13 to his credit.

1926	.321
1927	.318
1929	.345
1930	.356
1931	.261

RESUME PLAY TODAY IN U. S. MEN'S NET MEET

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—After a first round of 20 preliminary matches which reduced the field in the men's national singles tennis championship to 64 contestants, the golden jubilee tournament is scheduled to get down to serious competition tomorrow.

So far no serious disturbances of form have been seen nor any signs of an outstanding contender for the title. Johnny Doeg, the defending champion, who is not expected to retain his title, had little trouble winning his first round match yesterday as did all of his leading rivals who were scheduled for action. Up against opponents of minor caliber, Frank Shields of New York and Cliff Sutter of New Orleans, second and sixth of the seeded list, won in straight sets.

Fred Perry of England, leader of the foreign brigade, struck a tartar in Julius Seligson, chunky New Yorker, who held the intercollegiate title a few years ago, but won in four sets.

BRAVES BLANK GIANTS.

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Ben Cantwell shut out the Giants with four hits today and gave the Boston Braves a 5 to 0 victory. Boston's triumph broke New York's winning streak at eight games and ended the Braves' succession of defeats at nine.

Not a Giant reached third and only Ethan Allen could make more than one hit off Cantwell. The Braves rapped Clarence Mitchell hard, batting around in the second inning to score four runs. Score:

SMITTY—THE BENCH WARMER

COCHRANE'S BAT HELPS A'S BEAT RED SOX, 5 TO 3

Boston, Mass., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Athletics made it four out of five from the Red Sox by taking the series final today, 5 to 3. Outhit, 10 to 8, the champions were kept in front by Mickey Cochrane's bat, the star catcher driving in four runs with a home run and a double. Dib Williams also hit for the circuit.

Al Simmons was back in left field for the A's and went hitless against the offerings of Milt Gaston, who had one bad inning, the third, when Williams hit his homer, Rommel singled, and Cochrane hit for the circuit. Score:

SENATORS BEAT YANKS.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Yankees left town tonight exactly as they came Friday, one and one-half games from second place, as they lost the final of their four game series here today to Washington, 4-1.

The home run duel between Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig was halted today as neither got so much as a single in four trips apiece to the plate.

Eight of Washington's ten hits off Pennock and Pipgras were divided by Manush, Myer, Kuhel, and Spencer. Score:

Pirates Hand Cubs Seventh Beating, 5-4

They Make It 3 to 2.

A pass was responsible for the Pirates breaking the 2 to 2 tie in the seventh. Root gave the ticket to Thevenow to start the inning. Grace bounced one toward first and it passed over the bag fair by a matter of inches. Before Teachout could pluck it from the gutter in front of the grand stand Thevenow was over the plate and Grace on second.

There was a trace of charity involved in the collection of the run that let the Cubs tie the score again in their half of the same inning. After Adair went out on a fly to left Hartnett bounced to short and Thevenow kicked the ball. Root scratched a single through short. Dan Taylor banged a single to center to score Hartnett.

The runs that whipped Root in the eighth didn't begin to show until after Grantham had popped out and Traynor had fanned. P. Waner singled to center and scored when Piet's fly to the right field corner rolled off Teachout's fingertips for a double. Thevenow doubled to left and Piet scored. Grace was passed purposely and Spencer was nailed on a fly to Cuyler for the third out.

Pass Up Chance in Eighth.

The home eighth, which for a minute offered the Cubs an opportunity to get back on even terms for the third time, opened with a walk to English. Teachout looked at a third strike, but Grimm singled to left. Adair whacked a hit through short to score English. A wild pitch moved Grimm to third and Adair to second. Hartnett was deemed dangerous enough to deserve an intentional pass, filling the bases. Then Hemsley batted for Root and tapped to Spencer for a double play by way of the plate. After this there was only a single by Cuyler with two gone in the ninth. A moment later English fanned.

FIVE HURT WHEN RACE CAR JUMPS TRACK IN CRASH

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Five persons were injured, four of them seriously, today when a racing automobile left the track during a 50-mile race here.

The injured are: Ed Ostwick, 27, Detroit, both legs fractured; Ed Mitchell, 27, Dearborn, leg fractured; David Byron, 26, Detroit, spine injured; Cecil Jackson, Negro, Ypsilanti, leg fractured, and John Ladd, 11, Ann Arbor, bruised.

The five were standing around Mitchell's automobile, which he had parked on the inner rail for repairs. They were struck by a car driven by Joseph Pipesh Jr., Detroit. Pipesh swerved to avoid the group, but his fender caught in that of another car, and his machine leaped in the air, clearing the Mitchell's machine and landing in the group.

Alfaney Walker Wins Net Title at Morgan Park

Alfaney Walker defeated Lucille Williams, 6-2, 6-2, for the girls' tennis championship yesterday at the Morgan Park courts. The final match for the men's singles title between Dozier and Carter will be played tomorrow. Dozier and Smith will meet Geddes and Carter for the doubles championship.

Traps Are Laid for Wolves in New U. S. Forest

BY BOB BECKER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Argonne Forest, Wis., Sept. 6.—If you should enter this new national forest which the government is establishing up here east of the town of Three Lakes and step out on a trail near the Pine river watch out for small sandy spots on the forest highway. Beneath some of these patches of sand are number four wolf traps set by a predatory animal trapper who is after the wolves and coyotes in this area.

It was quite by accident that we happened on to the trap line of the wolf hunter yesterday. With Ray C. Iverson, the resident forester in charge of the Argonne unit, as our guide we went into the national forest to see what Uncle Sam was doing to get the tract ready for the public.

We also wanted to see how the foresteers had improved the fire detection and fire fighting system in the unit. Both of these activities are being pushed with the heavy emphasis on the fire fighting business because right now it is most important.

Iverson drove us over a new road to the Pine river, a dandy trout stream which we have fished in former years, and then on a few yards to the camp of the road crew which is completing this forest highway so that it will connect with highway No. 55. The cook casually mentioned that the state and federal trapper had his overnight cabin just a few yards away.

Then came the news that the wolf hunters were running a trap line more than twelve miles through the wilderness beginning just a short distance from the Pine, and northeast toward a big tract of virgin timber.

Right after lunch we picked up the trapper's trail and followed it through the spruces, balsams, pines and birches as it wound over the high ground overlooking the trout stream in order to inspect a couple of wolf sets.

We saw two of them. The trapper had buried a steel drag, the chain and the set trap in the sand. A small canvas cover had been placed over the trigger of the set. Then he had splashed some scent on a log nearby. An animal sniffling at this scent would step into the set. In one of the two traps we found that a porcupine had been caught. The scent lure had brought about his downfall.

U. S. RIFLE TEAM MAKES BID FOR ITS FIFTH TITLE

Camp Perry, O., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The United States small bore rifle team today put in a strong bid for a fifth straight annual victory in the International Lord DeWar cup match when it posted a score of 7,846 out of a possible 8,000, only 3 points under the winning mark of last year. The 20 man team fired on the local course during the national rifle matches.

Only two other teams, from England and Canada, entered this year's competition. The English team posted 7,822, so that Canada, yet to shoot, is the lone remaining threat to a fifth consecutive victory for this country. The teams fire on their home courses, 40 shots per man from 50 to 100 yards.

The American team had a score of 7,876, but 30 points were deducted because two shooters took what were called "warming" shots during the match.

Shortage of Ends Worries Army Coach

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—While a military band blasts out martial airs on the parade ground and officers swing their companies back and forth in the famed precision of West Point cadets, Maj. Ralph Sasse drills his tiny band of football warriors in a corner of the lot and wonders where Army is going to get enough ends to go around this fall.

Big Ed Messinger and Carl Carlmark, for the last couple of years as fine a pair of wingmen as any college team in the east could boast, graduated into the regular army this spring, leaving behind the biggest problem Sasse will have to conquer. Army has many veteran backs, three exceptional tackles, two good guards, at least one topnotch center, but only one tested end.

Backs to Be Drafted.

He is Dick King, a 190 pounder from Georgetown, S. C. Dick Sheriden, from Augusta, Ga., and a couple of big plebes from last year's freshman squad have possibilities. Last year's subs and draftees from the back field and tackle will form the rest of the end squad.

But what Army lacks in ends is amply made up in ball carrying talent. From the double wing back formations that were powerful enough to beat Harvard last season, all but one of the 1930 backs will be running again. Wendell Bowman has graduated, but Ray Stecker, who galloped to victory over Navy; Tom Kilday, who tied Yale; Ken Fields, Ed Herb, Henry Sebastian, Bill Frentzel, Joe MacWilliams and Rosy Carver are still in cadet harness.

Price Back at Tackle.

Big Jack Price, 225 pound captain and one of the game's greatest linemen; Ed Suarez, and Jack Armstrong will fill the tackle berths. Milton Summerfelt and Harley Trice are the first string guards and there are two good centers available.

Army faces another testing schedule. Ohio Northern opens here Sept. 26, with Knox college visiting Oct. 3. Oct. 10 comes Michigan State, and Harvard Oct. 17. Army visits Yale Oct. 24 and entertains Colorado college, a possible Tartar, Oct. 31. Louisiana State Nov. 7; Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh Nov. 14; Ursinus Nov. 21; Notre Dame in New York, Nov. 28, complete the schedule.

GERMANY BEATS FRANCE, 89 TO 62, IN TRACK MEET

PARIS, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Germany's track and field athletes today defeated the French, 89 to 62, in Colombes stadium. It was Germany's fifth victory over France in the five years the international meet has been held.

Times and distances, in general, were well short of world's records, perhaps because of recent heavy rains that slowed up the track. Germany showed great strength in the shorter track events and in the field, capturing ten of the fifteen first places and nine seconds. Their performances today indicated the Germans will be strong contenders for the Olympic track title at Los Angeles next year.

In the morning event—an international walkers' contest—the Italian, Valente, bettered the world's record for 25,000 meters, which he covered in 2 hours 3 minutes 13 2-5 seconds, as compared with the listed record of 2:05:12 2-10 set in 1927 by A. Schwab of Switzerland. It was Valente's third successive victory in this annual event. Jean Keller, France, beat the famed German middle distance ace, Otto Peltzer, by two-fifths of a second in the 800 meter run, which he covered in 1:55 3-5.

EVER HEAR THIS FISH STORY? PUT GLOVES ON 'EM

there is any love interest in these battles. In the first place, doodlebugs seem to be all of one sex, and even if there is a fair sex among them, it is doubtful that even a doodlebug would carry much torch for another doodlebug, they being uniformly unattractive.

It is true that when Max Baer, the California heavyweight, was boxing in New York last winter, a love angle was exploited by the press agents of the Madison Square Garden corporation, but Baer was a young man who used to bang his head against the steel pipes in his dressing room in the belief that when his opponents hit him, their punches would feel trivial by contrast. The story of his romance was received with a certain skepticism because one could not be sure whether he was really in love or merely goofy from banging his head against the pipes. There are those who hold that the two conditions are almost alike, anyway.

So, notwithstanding some really beautiful human interest copy from the Garden's mimeographs, Baer fought merely as another prize fighter, and not as a lover struggling for a fortune so that he could claim a lady's hand. James Jennings, the house author of the Garden firm, always described the lady in his copy as "the snooty and high toned society divorcee and belle of the exclusive bon ton set." But press and customers still refused to concern themselves with the boy's personal problems.

New Job for Commission.

If the authorities of the Museum of Natural History intend to fight their Siamese fish there will arise a delicate question of jurisdiction between the New York prize fight commission and the fish commission. The prize fight commission has taken over amateur boxing lately, thus providing a number of good jobs for deserving Democrats, and might wish to assert authority over the fish fighting racket, too.

In that case, fish fighting will degenerate rapidly, and, of course, some promoter will come along with a Primo Carnera fish and throw it into the water with a lot of docile carp and suckers. And, of course, James J. Johnston will be sure to come up with a Fainting Philip Scott fish, but no fish named for Fainting Philip Scott would ever really deserve the name. Fainting Philip discoursed some spins and spirals in his diving that no fish could ever hope to equal.

SOLDIERS' FIELD GOES WRESTLING; 6 BOUTS TONIGHT

Tonight's Card

Jim Londos, Greece, vs. Jim McMillen, Rock Lake, Ill., two falls out of three to a finish.

Charley Fox, Cleveland, vs. Jack Smith, Illinois.

JAMES STEINKE.

The head men are Jimmy Londos, Greek claimant of the heavyweight championship, and Jim McMillen, who gave up the profession of pro football and civil engineering to seek a career in the grunt and groan industry.

The crowd probably will be pro-McMillen, as Jim, former gridiron star at the University of Illinois, has a large following here. It's McMillen third out with Londos, he having failed in one fall tests in the east last year. But with a 15 pound weight advantage and the battle going two to a finish McMillen believes he will stop Londos' streak of victories. Londos will enter the ring weighing 215 pounds and McMillen 220. Both started training yesterday.

Six others are on the bill. One is a former title claimant—Dick Shikat, who meets Mike Romano, veteran Italian. Shikat's countryman, Hans Steinke, goes against Don De Long, French strong man, in another.

Two other Italians are on the bill, Gino Garibaldi hooking up with Frank Brzowicz, New York Pole, who won twelve matches in a row here last season, and George Calza opposing John Maxos, Greek. Jack Smith, Chicago physical culture exponent, and Charley Fox, Cleveland policeman, are principals in the sixth battle.

Levinsky to Try New Blow on O'Kelly

King Levinsky's chances against Dan O'Kelly Wednesday night at White City depend upon his success with a new style of attack.

Heretofore Levinsky was accustomed to rush across the ring starting a right hand from the floor. With this attack he missed frequently. In his workouts he has now become a judge of distance and starts his uppercut when close to his opponent. He sends a short right hand to an opponent's heart under the lead of the other fellow's left hand.

George Neron and Pete Wistort face each other in the six round semi-windup. They are heavyweights. Young Stanley of Kewanee meets Al Wolgast of Cadillac, Mich., in another six rounder. Baxter Calmes clashes with Mick Taft and Dick Sisk and Jackie Davis meet in other bouts.

AMATEURS TIE IN FOURSOME BEST BALL PLAY

Four players who competed in the national amateur tournament at Beverly met in a best ball foursome over the No. 4 course at Olympia Fields yesterday, but couldn't come to a decision, finishing the 18 holes all even. They were Johnny Lehman of the home club, who tied for the national medal, and George T. Dunlap, jr., who won his national intercollegiate title over the same course in June. They opposed T. Philip Perkins, who was paired with Arthur [Bucky] Yates, co-medalist with Lehman and Charley Seaver. Lehman had a medal score of 76, Dunlap 77, Perkins77, and Yates 78.

In another exhibition match, playing back of the amateur stars, were Jess Beebe and Harry Johnson jr., who lost, 2 and 1, to Willard Hutchinson, Olympia Fields professional, and Ben Gottlieb of New York.

PREDICT RECORD ENTRY FOR NEXT A. B. C. TOURNEY

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The executive committee of the American bowling congress, meeting here today, predicted a record breaking entry of 1,400 visiting teams for the tournament which begins here Feb. 27.

The committee said Chicago will send 200 teams and was told that Detroit will have 1,400 to equal the out of town entry list. The previous ruling which barred seven Milwaukee teams was discussed, but was not changed. The committee reported that the congress is in good financial condition with $62,000 in the treasury.

FORT SHERIDAN RALLIES TO BEAT RISING SUN, 7-6

Fort Sheridan's polo team defeated Rising Sun, 7 to 6, yesterday at the Oak Brook Polo club in the final of the Oak Brook Cups tournament. Bolstered by Capt. C. A. Wilkinson, star on the United States Army international team, the Fort Sheridan quartet staged a rally in the last two periods that netted three points while Rising Sun was going scoreless.

Capt. Wilkinson's goal in the last chukker won for the Army post. The final bell ended a Rising Sun drive that would have tied the score.

Maj. C. C. Smith, teammate of Capt. Wilkinson on the Army international four, scored in the seventh period to even the count at 6 goals.

Because of the serious condition of Tex Crites, who was seriously injured in an automobile accident Saturday, all games scheduled on the Oak Brook field have been deferred, it was announced after the game.

Canzoneri and Berg to Head Week's Card

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—For the second time in five months Tony Canzoneri, sturdy New York Italian, will risk his lightweight championship this week and once more the challenger's corner will be occupied by Jack [Kid] Berg of London.

Berg's second effort to relieve Canzoneri of his crown will be made at the Polo grounds Thursday night over the championship distance of 15 rounds.

Won Title from Singer.

Canzoneri, one time holder of the featherweight title, ascended the lightweight throne by knocking out Al Singer in a single round here last November. In April the knocked out the challenging Berg in three rounds at Chicago. That victory not only enabled Canzoneri to retain the 136 pound title but gave him Berg's junior welterweight championship as well. He still holds both crowns.

The eight round semi-final will match Jack Rosenberg, New York middleweight, with the coast invader, Benny Miller. Jimmy McNamara, New York lightweight, meets Ray Miller, Chicago southpaw, in the opening eight.

Loughran Meets Jack Gross.

Loughran battles an old foe in Jack Gross, from Salem, N. J., at the Phillies ball park on Wednesday.

Schaaf meets Roberto Roberti of Italy at the Boston arena Thurday night. Wolgast, recognized in some states as flyweight champion, engages Happy Atherton, Indianapolis veteran, in a ten round nontitle bout at Indianapolis Tuesday and Francis, the Italian featherweight, takes on Claude Varner of Bakersfield, Cal., at Los Angeles the same night.

Dempsey and Leonard, two old masters attempting comebacks, will appear in exhibition roles, Dempsey at Tacoma, Wash., Thursday and Leonard at New Haven, Conn., Wednesday.

Bouts of the national schedule include:

Tuesday—At New York: Ben Jeby, New York, vs. Dave Shade, California; Paulie Walker, Trenton, N. J., vs. Baby Joe Gans, Los Angeles Negro, and Joe Glick, Brooklyn, vs. Emil Rossi, each eight; at Hartford, Conn., Louis [Kid] Kaplan, Meriden, Conn., vs. Jackie Pilkington, New York, and Al Gainer, New Haven, Conn., vs. Jimmy Sullivan, Florida, each ten; at Los Angeles, Kid Francis, Italy, vs. Claude Varner, Bakersfield, Cal., ten; at Indianapolis, Midget Wolgast, Philadelphia, vs. Happy Atherton, Indianapolis, ten [non-title].

Wednesday — At Philadelphia, Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, vs. Jack Gross, Salem, N. J.; Steve Hamas, Passaic, N. J., vs. George La Rocco, New York; Walter Cobb, Baltimore, vs. Frankie Cawley, Pittston, Pa., and Arthur Dekuh, New York, vs. Leonard Dixon, Philadelphia, each ten; at Louisville, Ky., Jackie Stewart, Louisville, vs. Jimmy Sayers, Fort Wayne, Ind., ten; Bill Thomas, Louisville, vs. Len Harvey, Lafayette, Ind., eight; at St. Louis, Royal Cox, Indianapolis, vs. Peewee Kaiser, St. Louis; Dave Barry, Springfield, Ill., vs. Dude McCook, Enid, Okla., and Mickey Doyle, Akron, O., vs. Sailor Barrere, San Antonio, Tex., each ten; at Chicago, Con O'Kelly, Boston, vs. King Levinsky, Chicago, ten; at New Haven, Conn., Benny Leonard, exhibition.

DE PAUL PLAYS FIRST GAME AT DETROIT SEPT. 22

Athletic Director James D. Kelly of De Paul university yesterday announced that the Blue Demons would play their opening football game with the University of Detroit Sept. 22 at Detroit. The contest is to be a feature of the national American Legion convention, which will be held in Detroit that week.

First practice of the season will take place tomorrow afternoon on the north side campus. Dr. Eddie Anderson will start his seventh year as head coach. Ben Connor will serve again as line coach. Director Kelly will assist in the coaching of the back field.

Ouimet Dons Amateur Golf Crown and Wears It Home

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Golf's biggest problem of the last year—that of finding a successor to Bobby Jones as amateur champion of the United States—has been solved to the satisfaction of everybody in the game, including Bobby himself. Nobody was more pleased than the champion of them all when old Francis Ouimet of Boston returned to the Beverly Country club last week and won his second national amateur title from one of the most talented and youthful fields in the history of the tournament.

Ouimet's comeback at Beverly was one of the most remarkable in sports of the last decade. After having been the hero in the 1913 open and the 1914 amateur, the tall, bespectacled Bostonian was on the stage at the amateur every season, playing a secondary rôle to golfers like Jones, Von Elm, Sweetser, Evans and Johnston. He spoke his lines and made his exits, but the big chance never came again until last Saturday afternoon, when he defeated Jack Westland of Chicago, 6 and 5, in the final match.

At Top of His Game.

Ouimet was just a seasoned old trouper when the tournament at Beverly began a week ago this morning, the sort of player who goes just so far in the big show, and then is eliminated by a younger opponent along about the third round or in the semi-finals. He deceived the gallery and a majority of experts, since very few knew that Ouimet was at the top of his game for the first time in years and had been playing sub-par golf on Massachusetts courses for several weeks.

He qualified with 152, one of the best trial scores of the tournament and then began the match play. During it he did not meet a golfer over 26 years of age. He defeated Johnny Shields of Seattle, Wash., who turned in the third best score of the qualifying round. Then came young Frank Connelly of Mount Clemens, Mich., and Paul Jackson of Kansas City, who had 154 in the qualifying play. Next was 19 year old Billy Howell, a stranger to national competition, who gave Ouimet his most difficult match of the tourney, carying Francis to the 35th green before going out.

Westland, his opponent in the final, had not lost a match in more than a year and had been medalist in the Chicago district qualifying round at Onwentsia. Ouimet was not to be denied after his 17 year battle to repeat as champion, and he proved it by building up a five hole lead at the end of the morning round.

Yesterday he was en route to Boston and more particularly one of its suburbs, Brookline, where he still makes his home and where he first learned to play golf.

Aside from Ouimet's long delayed triumph, the most remarkable feature of the tournament was the impression made by Chicago's golfers, all of whom have plenty of time to make themselves better known in the future. There was Westland, three times Chicago district champion, who matched Ouimet's perfect golfing temperament, never displaying any emotion, even during the title match, when his iron shots were decidedly awry.

In addition to Westland there were Chicago's other qualifiers for the match play rounds—Dick Martin of Briergate, Johnny Lehman of Olympia Fields, and Russ Martin of Flossmoor. Dick Martin furnished the biggest upset of the morning round Wednesday when he pushed George Voigt, one of the favorites to win the title, out of the tournament.

Lehman Only Master of Par.

Johnny Lehman was eliminated, 1 up, in the morning round by Paul Jackson of Kansas City, but it took Ouimet to beat the Missouri youth before the tournament was over. Johnny also was the only player in the entire six days of the meet to break par 71, coming in with a smashing 70 at the end of the second 18 holes of the qualifying round to tie Charlie Seaver and Ducky Yates for the medal. Russ Martin was 4 up on Maurice McCarthy, an ultimate semi-finalist, at the end of the first nine holes of their first round match, but lost.

Champion Gets Noisy Welcome on Arrival Home

Newton, Mass., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Francis Ouimet received a boisterous homecoming welcome from more than 2,500 friends and admirers as the newly crowned national amateur golf champion arrived tonight from his conquests at Beverly Country club, Chicago.

Included in the crowd that met Ouimet at the station were his wife, mother, two daughters, brother, and sister. After greeting his family he ascended a stool and told the crowd that this was the happiest moment of his life.

GOLF AND GOLFERS

WALTER CROWDUS, defending champion, and Jack Mytton will meet in a 36 hole match for the Olympia Fields club title today as a result of semi-final victories yesterday. The former won from Ben Stevenson, 4 and 3, while Mytton eliminated Dr. G. H. Maxwell, 4 and 2. A field of 730 turned out for the day's play. Belmont Track Will Open Fall Season Today

New York, Sept. 6.—[Special.]—Thoroughbred competition returns to the metropolitan district tomorrow with the opening of the Belmont Park fall meeting. The holiday card includes seven races, and the fall high-weight handicap again is the opening day feature. Eight have been named for this six furlong dash, which had its first running in 1914, and among the competitors are several which have flashed good races during the month-long meeting just finished at Saratoga.

The present Belmont Park meeting comprises 12 racing days, and will see renewed such famous stakes as the Lawrence Realization, the Jockey Club Gold cup, and the Futurity, the last named exceeding $100,000 in value and being the richest race in the world.

Twenty Grand to Race.

Twenty Grand, which gained new fame and glory in the running for the Saratoga cup last Saturday, and Tick On, winner of the $50,000 Hopeful at Saratoga, also last Saturday, almost certainly will be seen in competition at Belmont because they are eligible for several of the big tests.

A Maryland owned horse, the famous speed merchant, Balko, seems sure to be favorite for the highweight handicap tomorrow. He is owned by Mrs. Charles Minot Amory's Sagamore stable, and has been rested and freshened up all during the Saratoga meeting. Last year he carried 136 pounds in the highweight to finish the 6 furlongs in the sensational time of 1:09 2-5. A new record.

Steeplechase on Card.

He has been assigned 138 pounds for the Labor day race, but admirers of the black son of Omar Khayyam and Rahu have great confidence in his ability to carry such an impost to victory. The seven others named for the dash, which will be down the Widener chute, are Joseph E. Widener's Chestnut Oak, C. V. Whitney's Halcyon, and Magnifico, and the Brookmeade stable's Hellanthus. Each of these horses has a chance.

The other two features on the card are the Labor Day purse and the Broadhollow steeplechase. The former has attracted some of the better class milers of three years old and upward, while the steeeplechase has a fine field of seven including Laufjunge and Gracie.

$8,000 FUTURITY HEADS CIRCUIT PROGRAM TODAY

Inadianapolis, Ind., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The Horseman futurity for an $8,000 purse will bring together some of the greatest 3 year old trotters in the country here tomorrow afternoon, marking the opening of the grand circuit races in connection with the state fair.

Protector, the sensational youngster from Illinois; Calumet Butler, winner of the recent $50,000 Hambletonian race; Keno, a great colt from Georgia, and a host of other stars are entered. The race will be one of the outstanding trots of a week of grand circuit contests here.

The Cedar Hill Stock farm, 2:16 trot for a $1,500 purse; a 2:09 pace for $800, and a 2:16 pace for $800 complete tomorrow's program.

Ankabar, a fine gelding, will go to the post a favorite to win the Cedar Hill trot. Bonnycastle, the Ohio trotter, and Calumet Aster are other outstanding entries.

Greenberg Beats Badden for Humboldt Park Title

Jacob Greenberg, west parks champion, yesterday won the Humboldt Park tennis tournament, defeating Al Badden, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

Heavy Rain in Europe May Aid Wheat Market.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

All grain markets in North America will be closed today while Liverpool and other foreign markets will be open as usual.

Grain prices continue to hang around the lowest level known, with conditions dissimilar to any other period in the history of grain trading. Wheat prices declined to new low levels last week, although they were only a fraction below those reached on previous declines. As compared with the season's high on September wheat, 76c, with the low of 44¾, reached on Thursday, there was a loss of 31¼c.

Shy at Short Side.

There is little disposition to work on the short side and about all the new business is in the way of buying May for investment, or in spreading operations, buying September and selling December and May, or spreading between Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg. Were the latter cut off there would be very little trading.

There is, however, more constructive feeling in the wheat situation than for any time in months. The whole world situation is slowly changing for the better, it is believed although there are no indications of a pronounced or sustained advance in prices in the near future, or any disposition to advance prices to any extent for the present.

A factor in the foreign situation has been excessive rains in France, England, Germany, Russia, and several of the other countries, where harvesting is on. Field work has been delayed and crops damaged in quantity and quality. So far, however, foreigners have shown no disposition to greatly enlarge their buying of supplies of wheat, but the foreign markets have developed more strength and markets in exporting countries also have hardened.

Exports Enlarged.

Those in close touch with the foreign situation, however, do not believe there will be any rush of buying to anticipate requirements, because of financial conditions. Russia's harvest is believed to be smaller yet its shipments continue heavy and in the last two weeks aggregate nearly 10,000,000 bu. Export sales of Canadian and American wheat, especially the former, have enlarged, with more than 1,000,000 bu sold for export on Saturday.

"So far as the short side of wheat is concerned," said Fred Uhlmann of the Uhlmann Grain company, "we see nothing to be gained at this level of prices. Were this the first of March and May wheat the same price as it is now, about 53c, any short would be scared, assuming the usual crop damage reports, which always come whether they are true or not."

Wheat Cheapest Grain.

Wheat is relatively the cheapest of all grains. It is selling at about ¾c a pound, or ⅝c a pound cheaper than barley, which weighs only 48 lbs to the bushel, while wheat runs 60 lbs. All reports indicate that wheat is being fed more extensively than last year, owing to the low prices. The movement has fallen off in the country, although in the southwest wheat piled up on the ground gradually is being loaded into cars and shipped to terminal markets.

There is less disposition to sell wheat, even in Canada, the movement there being materially less than last year.

Crop Report Due Soon.

The trade will have the government report on Thursday, which is expected to show close to that of the private reports, 115,000,000 bu, or 3,000,000 bu less than last month, and will compare with 251,000,000 bu harvested last year. What statistics continue bearish. Commercial supplies in the United States are 261,000,000 bu, an increase of nearly 8,000,000 from the previous week, and compare with a total of 201,000,000 bu last year. World supplies, as given by Bradstreet last week, were 413,000,000 bu, or practically the same as the previous week and compared with 345,000,000 bu last year.

September wheat declined to a new all-time level on Thursday, 44¼c, and closed at 46½@46¾c. December finished at 49⅞@49⅝; March, 52¼; May, 54@55⅝c, or only 7½c over September, while recently it was much wider. As compared with the previous week, September finished ¼c lower and other deliveries off 1@1¼c. Prices for the week follow:

Conditions in Steel Trade Are Sluggish

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The steel trade has failed to reflect any indications of seasonal improvement, with conditions described as sluggish. Specifications placed during the week have shown no trend and in some instances slight decreases have been reported.

Recession in production in the automobile industry and the outlook for little or no improvement in pipe and rail buying were partly offset by a fair volume of awards for constructional projects, part of which were for governmental building programs.

Production Rate Steady.

Miscellaneous lines remain quiet, owing partly to the fact that many plants will remain closed until after Labor day. Ingot production remains at about 31 per cent of capacity. With little pressure to sell and no incentive to seek business at concessions, prices held steady. Pig iron production decreased 12 per cent in August, with demand light and prices unchanged.

Buying of copper remained dull at 7⅛ to 7⅜ cents for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut valley. Custom smelters continue to supply what demand there is, with mine producers still out of the market. Domestic consumers generally held off owing to an expectation of a further increase in refined stocks in August, statistics for which are not yet available. Foreign demand was only moderately active early in the week and tapered off further later.

Tin Prices React.

Continued advances in tin early in the week on the effects of the formation of the international pool were followed by reactions when demand failed to broaden and the trade placed an unfavorable interpretation on the August statistics.

Demand for lead continued to broaden with all consuming lines participating in the buying for September, and, in some instances, October needs. The price holds unchanged.

While buyers of zinc continued to restrict purchases, sellers remained firm in their price ideas in anticipation that demand would broaden owing to small supplies held by consumers. Antimony was dull and unchanged, with consumers limiting inquiries to small lots.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET BLOWS DULL AND WEAK

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The curb market alternated between extreme dullness and a moderate degree of weakness last week. Prices tended to take the downward path, however, even when activity was almost at a standstill, and with the line of least resistance obviously in that direction a more active sag followed the stagnation of the earlier sessions.

Short sellers had their best success with the specialties. High priced issues of that description trade in odd lots and have a thin market at best, so that offerings brought some large declines. Aluminum of America, Parker Rustproof, Singer Manufacturing, Mead, Johnson, and a few others were noticeably soft.

Trading at mid-week was featured by the recipitant slump in national short term securities, "A" stock. Officials of the company which extends short term loans on building construction projects in and near New York City, attributed the break to the bears, asserting the corporation's financial condition was excellent. The stock broke from 20½ to 3¼ and subsequently went a little lower, although it was quiet and steady in the last trading day of the short week.

Oils, with few exceptions were dull. Expectations that the east Texas field would reopen brought slight losses in most issues, although Gulf had a sharp break. With prices on the upgrade, both for crude and gasoline, the industry is anxiously awaiting immediate developments in the southwest.

Utilities had a heavy undertone, perhaps because professionals felt the smaller electric power output this year would have an effect on earnings. The only break of consequence, however, was in North American Light. Its sharp decline was attributed to special liquidation.

Gold Imports So Far This Year About $305,604,000

During the first eight months this year gold imports amounted to approximately $305,604,000, compared with $273,802,000 in the like period last year, a compilation by Continental Insurance company, which handles a considerable volume of insurance on gold consignments, shows. Exports for the period this year were $22,526,000, compared with $90,524,000 during the corresponding eight months of 1930.

The gold statement of the federal reserve bank of New York for the week ended Sept. 2 shows imports of $965,000 from Mexico and $260,000 chiefly from other Latin-American countries. Gold earmarked for foreign account decreased $3,494,000. There were no imports.

School Opening Aids Retail Houses.

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—If the autumn stimulus to trade has been tardy, business appears to be taking the attitude of better late than never, and traces of cheer appeared in reports of the last week, at least from certain lighter lines of industry and trade.

The mercantile reports have indicated an appreciable expansion in wholesale trade in each of the last two weeks, and cooler weather and the reopening of schools have helped sales at retail. On the whole, clearance sales of recent weeks seem to have moved most of the remainder of summer merchandise, although at little or no profit in many cases.

The recalling of workers in some volume by the leading maker in the low priced division has been a sign of seasonal stirring in the automotive industry, although it has on the whole been slow in starting work on new models, and production has fallen to extraordinarily low levels. The belated work on new models is in part the result of the agreement to defer their introduction until late in the year.

Cite Steel Outlook.

The steel industry continues to drag along at close to 30 per cent of ingot capacity, and hopes of anything very satisfactory in the form of an autumn upturn are vanishing. An autumn upturn in the steel industry has not always materialized over the last several years, and the weekly steel trade reviews of the last week were rather gloomy.

The few heavy construction projects under way remain a sustaining factor in steel. Railroads are still restricting purchasing, with few exceptions, to absolute essentials, in view of the low state of their revenues. The steel industry, furthermore, is expecting new production in the motor industry to get under way gradually, and is not counting on much immediate business from that quarter.

Are Bright Spots.

Despite the several heavy construction projects under way the volume of building construction remains low. The report of contracts let in the third week of August shows some improvement over the first two weeks, but the daily average for three weeks is well below that of July. Wall street had heard much of plans afoot for liquidating some of the frozen real estate loans with which banks in some sections are burdened, but has evinced little enthusiasm over measures yet proposed.

The textile and shoe industries continue to provide the outstanding bright spots in the business picture. It is recalled that an upturn in textiles in the previous major depression was followed by a turn in the heavier industries, notably steel, in about six months.

Electrical Equipment Orders Pick Up Somewhat

Demand for electrical equipment and apparatus picked up somewhat in most districts in the last week, Electrical World reports. Heavier commitments in power and construction industries made up the bulk of the week's business. Maturing large building projects for the government and private interests are bringing sizeable equipment awards in the eastern district. With some heavy prospective business to be closed for similar account during the next few weeks, the market is developing an encouraging outlook in this line. Central station buying, on the other hand, has been almost at a standstill, in spite of a fair volume of inquiries.

27 Unfavorable Dividend Actions Reported for Week

Unfavorable dividend changes last week numbered 27, against 26 in the preceding week, Standard Statistics company reports. Dividends were passed in 20 instances and reduced in seven. Favorable actions numbered 9, there being 5 extras and 4 initials. Among the more important corporations which passed their dividends during the week were J. I. Case, Lehigh Valley railroad, National Family Stores, Southern Natural Gas company, and Ulen & Co.

Sinclair to Boost Price of Kerosene in Car Lots

New York, Sept. 6.—Effective tomorrow, Sinclair Refining company has advanced the price of kerosene in tank car lots a quarter of a cent a gallon to 5 cents at New York, Philadelphia, Portsmouth, Va., and Charleston, S. C. Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, effective tomorrow, will advance the tank wagon and service station prices of gasoline 1 cent a gallon throughout its entire territory, with the exception of Delaware.

General Railway Signal Calls Special Meeting

General Railway Signal company has called a special meeting of stockholders for Sept. 14 at Rochester, N. Y., to vote on a proposal that 32,500 shares of common stock purchased in the open market and now held in the treasury be retired.

RETAIL MARKET IN CHICAGO DEVELOPS CONSIDERABLE ACTION

The Chicago retail merchandise market came to life during the past week in a manner reminiscent of the late prosperity period, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Aided by seasonal demand and bargain offerings extensively advertised in newspapers, sales attained a volume that stood out in marked contrast to the quiet period recently prevailing. Buying of children's clothes and supplies coincident with the opening of school accounted for a large part of the increased activity.

Business was brisk throughout the city. Loop department and specialty stores were particularly busy. Fall garments, including hats, shoes, dresses, coats, and gloves were in demand. The heavier lines, such as blankets, rugs and other household accessories, also received the attention of buyers.

Activity in the wholesale field was less pronounced, although orders from both the city and country were in good volume and approximately equal to the corresponding period of last year.

Settlement of the labor wage scale dispute concerning state highway projects tended to increase the number of inquiries in the cement, gravel and allied materials field. Coal dealers were active as their season of greatest sales got under way.

MAYOR CURLEY TO WELCOME 'AD' MEN TO BOSTON

America's financial advertising leaders will gather in Boston on Sept. 14 to open the convention of the Financial Advertisers association. Having as its theme "The Creative Force in Finance," the entire program of the convention has been planned to meet the needs of the present day. Outstanding leaders of a number of business organizations as well as leaders in the financial advertising field will address the convention during its three day session.

Mayor Curley of Boston will welcome the members on Monday morning and the theme speech of the convention will be delivered by Francis H. Sisson, vice president, Guaranty Trust company of New York. Kenneth M. Goode, writer and advertising critic, will also be on the program the first day, as well as another business leader whose name will be announced later.

John Benson, president American Association of Advertising agencies, will consider the question of "Where Does Advertising Stand Today?" Mr. Benson has long been an aggressive spokesman for the advertising business and his comments will be based on the wide observations he has been able to make in his official position, which brings him in contact with every phase of advertising.

Of interest to every one attending the convention will be the exhibit of the year's advertising by the members of the association. Cedric A. Morris of the Union Guardian Trust company, Detroit, is chairman of the exhibit committee of the convention, which has already completed arrangements for one of the largest exhibits of financial advertising in the history of the organization.

Europe Reported Investing Heavily in U. S. Securities

A steady stream of European money is going into American securities and there will be more as industries prove their stability, according to Ross J. McClelland of the stock exchange firm of Tucker, Anthony & Co., who recently returned from a three months' visit to the chief European financial centers. Mr. McClelland, who is in charge of Tucker, Anthony & Co.'s foreign business, formerly was chief engineer of Electric Bond and Share company.

New York Hide Trading Is Unusually Active

Trading in hides on the New York Hide exchange during the week was described as unusually active, with sales totaling well over 17,000,000 pounds. Prices continued to decline with futures values registering net losses of from 40 to 50 points for the week.

EXPECT UPTURN IN U. S. TO HELP REST OF WORLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 6.—In these days of financial perplexity the question often arises to mind, how much of the present discouraged mood arises indirectly from the difficulties of financial Europe and how much from unpleasant events at home.

The recurrent passing of dividends on domestic companies, railway and industrial, the fall in railway bonds, partly because of the poor outlook for earnings but more particularly because of failure of many perfectly sound securities to comply any longer with the exacting "savings bank requirement," are purely domestic influences; but of both it is possible to say that the course of events in these respects was plainly enough foreshadowed months ago. So of the fall in wheat and cotton, except for the earlier vague and unfulfilled hope of heavily reduced harvests, through which the prices might have been sustained, this season's results were foreshadowed.

Situation Abroad.

Doubtless discouragement has been emphasized by the mere sight of these reactionary movements; the succession of unpleasant realities, even if indicated beforehand, makes for mental depression on the part of the general public. But the picture presented in Europe, being of a much more spectacular and startling kind and having, moreover, not been at all foreseen six months ago, is a powerful cumulative influence. The sense of something badly out of gear in the whole world's economic system of the day has a strong effect on sentiment. Newspaper readers who complain that for months there has been nothing but unpleasand financial news in the columns of the daily press are citing a potent cause for the psychology of the day.

Such a period is inevitable after a major financial crash and the misuse of credit which had preceded it; not even the worldwide character of the present depression is new in financial history. Usually, at the low point of despondency, relief has come through recovery in the strongest of the countries which have had to face economic readjustment.

This was apt in older days to be Great Britain; but the part then played by England at such times is assigned by the necessity of present day conditions to the United States. When the long delayed turn for the better comes, the logic of experience indicates that it will come first in this country, and that revival of confidence here will solve a good part of the problems existing elsewhere. The recent course of events in Europe has been of a character to postpone it; yet even of Europe, there is much to say for the fact that we have at any rate now passed from the period of impending trouble into that of remedial measures.

Staple Prices Seen Key.

It is agreed on all hands that the key to the economic situation is the movement of staple prices. The heavy decline of the two past twelve-months has been the primary cause for the prolonged shrinkage of business profits and for the distress of producers and governments which had incurred indebtedness at the previous price levels. As profits of industry decreased, so did public revenues. This has given an unpleasant color to the last week's further declines of agricultural prices and to the further reduction of 2⅝ per cent reckoned up for August in the general average of commodities.

It was noteworthy, however, that the decline as calculated for last month resulted almost wholly from the period's rapid fall in breadstuffs and textile material, the breadstuffs group alone having fallen 9¼ per cent. This called attention to the unevenness with which the downward movement of staple prices has been distributed.

U. S. FINANCING IS CHIEF EVENT IN BOND MARKET

Railway Issues Lose Earlier Gains.

New York, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The most important single event of the last week in the bond market was the offering of $300,000,000 of 3 per cent twenty years treasury bonds of the federal government.

The interest rate on the issue is slightly below the yield rates on similar outstanding government obligations at the time the new issue was offered. However, substantial subscriptions from banks were received, as expected. The banks are allowed to pay for the bonds in "book credit." That is, they credit the government with deposits of the amount of the subscriptions. The banks pay one-half of 1 per cent interest on these deposits and receive the difference between that and the interest on the bonds as their profit. This 2½ per cent difference is considerably higher than the open market rates for prime loans, which are not at all plentiful.

Protective Feature.

On the other hand the banks are protected to some extent against restricted distribution of the bonds and a possible declining market by the privilige extended to foreign government debtors of offering liberty and treasury bonds at par value in settlement of their debt payments. As son as these issues drop below par the foreign governments would be likely to buy them for presentation under the debt settlement agreements at par.

Incidentally because of the book credit to the government, bankers do not expect any unusual developments in the money market as a result of the treasury financing, although there may be some reflection of the quarterly income tax payments due on Sept. 15.

Bond Market Declines.

As a whole the bond market declined irregularly, railroad obligations as a result of weakness on the last two days of the week lost all or most of their gains of the earlier part of the week although still considerably above the final levels of two weeks ago. Recent reports of seasonal increases in carloadings, which were much smaller than normally, probably helped to check the advance in the rails which had been so conspicuous on the six consecutive days ending last Tuesday.

Public utility and industrial loans declined irregularly also but the movement in them was less uniform than in the rails and therefore less noticeable.

FRENCH BANKERS SEE AGRICULTURE AS KEY TO CRISIS

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 6.—French bankers profess themselves unable to make definite predictions regarding the duration of the world crisis. They consider the present crisis to be chiefly due to agricultural overproduction and believe, therefore, that no durable recovery can be expected until reduction in the quantity of wheat and cotton produced becomes a certainty. This matter, however, will hardly be determined before the spring. Bankers also believe that business will recover very slowly by reason of the serious losses incurred in the present crisis.

While the American situation here is judged without either optimism or pessimism, French banking circles still believe that the signal for recovery will be given by the United States.

Output of Lumber Trails Demand for Third Week

For the third successive week lumber production trailed new business received by the mills during the week ended Aug. 29, reports from 840 leading hardwood and softwood mills to the National Lumber Manufacturers association show. These mills reported orders 6 per cent in excess of their combined cut of 196,436,000 feet. Their shipments were 12 per cent above this figure. A week earlier 832 mills reported orders 13 per cent above and shipments 12 per cent above a cut of 191,296,000 feet.

Unofficial German Trade Prior to Boerse Reopening

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—There were many inquiries from abroad, when prices broke heavily at the opening of the Berlin Stock exchange on Thursday, to to whether there had been anything like an unofficial market during the seven weeks' closing of the boerse, through which the change in prices which occurred at the reopening might have been foreshadowed. The fact is that, while the boerse was closed, unofficial trading was permitted and was conducted on a considerable scale.

The quoting of the unofficial prices in the newspapers was forbidden, but the banks say that Thursday's reduced official quotations on the boerse roughly corresponded to the unofficial prices made on the irregular outside market shortly before the boerse reopened.

New Jersey Will Offer $20,000,000 Road Bonds

Offering by the state of New Jersey of $20,000,000 3¾ per cent highway bonds on Thursday accounts for about two-thirds of the $33,531,929 in new financing scheduled by 65 states and municipalities this week, the Bond Buyer reports. The weekly average of new offerings for the year to date is $37,156,517. Kansas City, Mo., is offering $1,304,000 4 per cent airport and auditorium bonds on Tuesday, and Buffalo, N. Y., is offering $2,210,000 general improvement obligations on Tuesday.

By-Products Coke.

I own a $1,000 bond of By-Products Coke company and have been advised to exchange it for a different one. Please give me your opinion on this bond.—Mrs. M. L. S.

Interlake Iron corporation, formerly By-Products Coke corporation, is one of the largest producers of merchant pig iron and commercial coke. It sells its surplus gas to utility and municipal plants. By-products include coal tar and ammonia.

In 1930 sales were $22,600,173, against $18,725,844 for 1929. Increase in sales of about 21 per cent was partially due to properties acquired in 1930.

Unfavorable trade conditions and lower prices for its products were responsible for a smaller margin of profit. This and an increase in fixed charges resulted in fixed charges being earned 4.69 times in 1930, against 6.70 times in 1929. They were earned 4.74 times in 1928 and 4.67 times in 1927.

For the first quarter of 1931 sales were about $4,500,000, against $8,700,000 for the first quarter of 1930. Interest was earned 1.40 times, against 6.12 times for the 1930 period.

For the second quarter of 1931 loss, after all charges, was $264,762, against $532,632 for the second quarter of 1930.

By-Products Coke corporation first 5½s, series A, due Nov. 1, 1945, to the amount of $6,187,000, are secured equally with $5,000,000 Interlake Iron corporation 5s, due 1951, by a first mortgage on all property owned.

The bonds are regarded as a business man's investment.

North Continent Utilities.

Kindly advise me your opinion regarding North Continent Utilities 5⅛ per cent bonds, due 1948. Are they a sound investment?—Miss B. G.

North Continent Utilities corporation supplies electricity, gas, and ice to 96 cities and towns in 7 states. It serves both industrial and domestic consumers. Sales of gas and electricity have increased every year since 1926. Sales of ice in 1930 were less than in 1929.

Fixed charges and subsidiary dividends were earned 1.55 times in 1930, against 1.45 times in 1929.

Funded debt on Dec. 31, 1930, consisted principally of $3,939,000 of first collateral lien and refunding 5½s, series A, due 1948. Subsidiaries' funded debt was $5,580,000.

The 5½s, due 1948, are a direct obligation of the company and are secured by pledge of all indebtedness and most of the capital stock of controlled companies. They are somewhat speculative.

AN EXECUTIVE SALESMAN

$197.50 AND $184.23.
Would you accept these for your last week's work?
These were just two checks drawn by two of our men who had no selling experience. One a former mechanic, the other a bookkeeper. We have a few men making this kind of money and more, and a few men making $40, $50, $60, and $70 a week. O, yes, we have failures, too; but a man who has a good supervised training and will follow instructions, can't fail to make a fine living in this business.
You put up no money. We give you very thorough instructions on how to do the job.
A man must be able to carry himself for one week, while he is getting started. These are permanent jobs, and only good men with permanent addresses will be considered.
Come in and see our wonderful product and hear our plan. If you are satisfied, and we are also, after our talk, we will make arrangements to start you in at once.
